ELLIOTT ENTRY MAY WIN TWO RACES; KENOVA LOOKS BEST UNION FEATURE

Miss Mae Day and Hilee Should Capture Their Respective Contests on the Old Track, While Fourth at Carmody Course Should Go to Cromwell Mare—Arch Oldham Should Win.

AT THE FAIR GROUNDS.

From the appearance of the Fair Grounds entries in the fifth and sixth races to-day, the Elliott Stable has the best chance to carry off the long end of the two purses, for Miss Mae Day and Hilee look like winners in their respective fields.

In the fifth race Miss Mae Day seems to have the edge over her opponents. Save for Terra Firma and Lady Strathmore, the field is below her in class. With Terra Firma reported hardly at his best and with Lady Strathmore making her first start after a long period of rest, it seems as if Mae Day should have things her own way.

Terra Firma showed speed on one of his starts, and put up a good race for six furlongs. He worked out rather nicely last Saturday, and showed some speed going around the track. But he is hardly capable to the form he possessed as a 2-year-old, which would make his management a puzzle.

He can hardly be counted as sufficiently good to give Mae Day trouble, and Strathmore may not be able to give Mae Day the weight, even if the Hayes mare is back at her best. It is a good thing for Mae Day and Hilee that the Elliott entry.

The black and orange colors ought to be seen to the fore in the last event, also. Here old Hilee has the advantage. She is a fine runner after his intellectual attempts at Deimar. The old Hinyar gelding is said to have some chance, but he is not so good as he seems as if he should win. His last race, behind Just So at the county track, showed him to be a fourth class runner.

John Doyle will look in the track conditions more than on his last out, and should be a factor. Imboden will have a chance to show some speed, but he seems a bit out of it here. He ran a creditable race on his last start, and made about fifty furlongs in the county track.

The last race run by Brancas was creditable enough to show that the colt possesses class to make him dangerous in the future. He has secured a weight worthy as it was his first out after a long period of idleness. It ought to have helped him and he may defeat Young for the place to-day.

Just So is the disturbing factor here. He has a good race last one and a half miles, and he is a good runner. He is a good runner, and he is a good runner. He is a good runner, and he is a good runner.

Young beat Toledo in their last race. He is a good runner, and he is a good runner. He is a good runner, and he is a good runner. He is a good runner, and he is a good runner.
