CHEAP WHISKY.

The Republicans Will Put It Down to 25 Cents a Gallon.

Wipe out the internal revenue of together, what would be the result then? Down would go whisky to 25 cents a gallon, as by retail to 3 cents a glass, and it was all in anti-war days, when the best Monmouth whisky could be had for 5 cents a swig, and common whisky for 3 cents; and all the evils of those days would be let loose again with redoubled force, because money with which to buy liquor is so much more plentiful now. There are plenty of men living who can remember the 25-cents-a-gallon whisky days. They can remember how the farmers came to the towns, some with jugs, some with barrels. Some would give excuses that they were afflicted with all the diseases to which flesh is heir, and which could only be cured by whisky. They had malaria, and might have snake bites to cure. Their drinking was so poor they could not use it without mixing whisky with it. Never were farmers in such an unhealthily and moribund condition as in those days. They could not get through the harvesting, threshing, ploughing, cornhusking, or log-rolling without it.
It was necessary to the hay-mowing and the harvest as the scythe and the sickle. The whisky jug on such occasions was as common in the west as the rum-jug in New England, when every one from the deacon to the farm hand had his "wet rations." In those days of cheap whisky there were ten drunkards to one now. Delirium tremens was a common disease; now it is rare. Then every one filled up with whisky or rum. It was one of the staffs of life in every house.

Then came the high tax on whisky. Nearly a dollar was imposed on every gallon, and the price was correspondingly enhanced. The whisky which had sold for 3 cents a glass went up to 10 or 15 cents; the finer qualities to 20 and even 25 cents a glass. The keg and barrel business among the farmers ceased, and even the jug business became rare. If the farmer brought home his jug it lasted five times as long as when it cost but 2 shillings. The consumption of whisky fell off. Mr. Blaine said in his Paris message in answer to Mr. Cleveland's tariff message last December: "The amount of whisky consumed in the United States per capita to-day is not more than 40 per cent of that consumed thirty years ago." And the statistics more than bear out his assertion.
—Chicago Tribune.

"Kansas or bust!" was the motto inscribed on many emigrant wagons rolling out west a year or two ago; and it has "Been to Kansas and busted" with most of them. They are coming back by ones, by twos, by squads. A party of nine "schooners" passed through Seneca Tuesday morning. It is the same old story; they went to western Kansas to find a paradise, and found a desert.
Nothing raised since they went there; for two years a famine. Where are they going? Anywhere except back to western Kansas. "We may go to hell, but to Kansas never!" But hope springs once more in the sunken cheek, the weary eye. They see the abundant fruit, the rich field of wheat, the waving corn, the luxuriant grass in south west Missouri and northwest Arkansas; they drink from the springs and are refreshed; their flesh is no longer burned by the hot winds of the desert, and their ears filled with scorching sand.
They feel new energy. They stop with us and go to work; in a few years they have comfortable homes, in a climate unexcelled and where crop failure is never known. They rejoice and thank their Maker that they have been brought through tribulation into joy; from starvation into plenty; from utter desolation to fullness and contentment.—Seneca Dispatch.

The Governorship.
There are opponents of Mayor Francis, and it is known that of the delegates so far chosen, Mayor Francis has within half a dozen of as many as all the other candidates combined. Under these circumstances we are not surprised at a statement in the St. Louis Republic of a combine among the three candidates, as far as the city of St. Louis is concerned. The Republic says:

Evidence is accumulating that the field is arrayed against Francis. The Mascotte, from all appearances, has made such headway that the other avowed candidates for the governor-ship have leagued together to endeavor to encompass his defeat.
The avowed candidates for governor—Francis, Morehouse, Glover and Claiborne—are busy mending fences, planting and plowing seed.
Less than one eighth of the delegates to the nominating convention have as yet been selected, and while it is generally conceded that of these Francis has a majority, still claims on the friendship of delegates are so conflicting that it is difficult to apportion the respective strength of the candidates.

Francis has developed more strength in the country than his opponents anticipated. The "grain gambling" scandal was prematurely explored, and while in some instances it hit what it was aimed at, still it fell far short of doing the damage expected by its inventors. In fact the St. Louis mayor has made such headway in the interior of the state that his opponents in the city have been forced to combine against him.

For nearly a month past the friends of Morehouse, Glover and Claiborne have been arranging the basis of a combine to oppose Francis.
Several meetings, at which representatives of the three candidates named were present, have been held, the last one a few evenings ago, at 815 Pine street. The chief engineers of the meetings were Bill Swift, Billy Baggott, Tom Morris, Pat Banbrick and Frank Tate. The latter, who is secretary of the public commission, acted as secretary of the combine meeting. A plan formally was formulated to unite the strength of Morehouse, Glover and Claiborne in the city. It was agreed that Claiborne had a stronger following than any other member of the combine in the Fourth, Eighth, Tenth, Twelfth, Sixteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-first, Twenty-second, Twenty-fourth and Twenty-sixth wards, and that Glover could produce the most strength in the First, Second, Third, Fifth, Ninth, Thirteenth, Fifteenth, Seventeenth, Nineteenth, Twenty-third and Twenty-seventh.

It was agreed that the combined opposition to Francis should support the Claiborne delegates in the wards in which he stood in most favor, and that Glover should receive the united Anti-Francis vote in the wards in which his friends were numerous.

Billy Baggott represented Gov.
Morehouse at the combine meeting, and agreed that a strictly Morehouse ticket would not be run in the city provided both Glover and Claiborne were willing that the governor should inherit their support when it became apparent that neither Glover nor Claiborne could be nominated. This was the basis of the agreement, and the combine feel certain that they can defeat Francis in this city.

The Francis, people, however, are not discouraged. They claim that if primaries could be held now Francis would sweep the city, with the possible exceptions of the Eighth, Twelfth and Twenty-sixth wards.
The Francis people, too, are inclined to think that the knowledge of the city combine will help rather than hurt the Mascotte before the people of the state.
