DARK MYSTERY.

Startling Developments in a Louisville, Ky., Sensation.

DOUBLE MURDER EVIDENT.

A Business Man of Some Standing Found to Be Leading a Quadruple Life—One of His Mistresses in a Fit of Jealousy Denounces Him as a Murderer.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 16.—As time passes the mystery grows and interest increases in the cases of Mrs. Emma Austin and Mrs. Eugenia Sherrill, found dead in their room a week ago. Then it was thought to be an ordinary case of suicide of two fallen women—one without shame, the other a disgraced wife. It is now declared to be a double murder, with mystery enough for a Dumas and scandal enough to satisfy a Sardon.

Wicked Paris could not stir up a more sensational or mysterious story than that developed in the last few hours. To make it complete it is necessary to review the case.

Last Saturday morning Mrs. Emma Austin, keeper of an immoral resort, was found dying in her room on Second street, near Market, in this city. In another room in the same house Mrs. Eugenia Sherrill, the respected wife of a young business man, was found dead. Suicide by poison was the first theory. As days went by hints about murder were set afloat, and then the coroner received an anonymous letter telling him to summon certain persons as witnesses and compel them to tell all they knew. The persons named in the letter are Vincent Spangler, Josephine Cole, Police Officer Feeney and Emma Koch, a daughter of Mrs. Austin.

A quiet investigation was set on foot and astounding facts have been brought out. It has been developed that Spangler, who is a business man of some standing, and who has a wife and children and who is looked on as a model husband by his neighbors, has been living not a double, but a quadruple life. He occupied the position of husband to four women besides his lawful wife. These women were Mrs. Austin, her daughter, Mrs. Emma Koch, and Mrs. Cole and her daughter, Carrie Cole. The women lived in different parts of the city, and Mrs. Austin, who had been the man's mistress twenty years, was the only one of the four who knew positively of the relations that existed between Spangler and the others. Mrs. Koch had suspicions that Spangler was criminally intimate with her mother, and the daughter and mother quarreled about this. Mrs. Cole, a jealous woman, repeatedly quarreled with Spangler. The peculiar relations of Spangler to these women and the jealousy of Mrs. Cole furnished a slight clew to the detectives, and they have been at work on the case. Spangler and Mrs. Cole have been arrested, and the woman has confessed that she wrote the anonymous letter to the coroner. She says that Spangler told her on more than one occasion that he intended to get rid of Mrs. Austin, and on the day of the tragedy he was at her house and told her in an excited manner to say nothing.

Spangler denies that he knows anything of the poisoning, and asserts that Mrs. Cole is actuated by jealousy. It has not been established that he was about Mrs. Austin's house on the day of the tragedy, but he was there on the night before. The poison, according to theory, was administered through the butter cakes which Mrs. Austin prepared for breakfast. Spangler, it is asserted by a neighbor, left Mrs. Austin early the night before the killing, and as he was going away said he would be back for breakfast, and asked the woman to have hot cakes for him. He did not go back, however. So far the circumstantial evidence against Spangler is strong, but there is a break and another clew.

Mrs. Emma Koch, the daughter of Mrs. Austin, who, as stated above, had quarreled with her mother over the division of Spangler's affections, visited the house early on the day of the tragedy, and was on hand when her mother died. The moment the woman breathed her last Mrs. Koch began clearing up the breakfast things. She took particular pains to get rid of the scraps of the butter cakes and the butter left on the dishes. Why did she do this? Is the question those working on the case are asking.

Mrs. Sherrill was an innocent victim of either a black-hearted man, who wanted to get rid of an old mistress, or of a revengeful woman. No one knew that she would take breakfast with Mrs. Austin.

Carrie Cole, the fourth mistress of this modern Don Juan, is a young and handsome girl, who has gone to the bad merely because her mother set the example. When the mother and Spangler were arrested she drove to the jail in her carriage to see them. At the examining trial to-day these two were admitted to bail in $5,000 each.

Mrs. Koch is being watched by the police.

Looks Like Him.
St. Louis Chronicle.

"Three cheers for Warner, the next governor," yelled a score or more republicans waiting to take the evening train to the suburbs at the union depot. A dark complexioned, stoutly built man with a drooping moustach was walking toward the ladies' waiting room from and in coming train.

"Hurray for Major Warner!" yelled a colored shabbard who had heard the cry.

The whole gang followed the Major into the ladies' waiting room and the republican enthusiasts were on the qui vive to have their leader give them a little talk.

But Bill walked straight ahead with a dignified disregard to the cheers. Finally one more enthusiastic than the others wailed up to the Major and clapping his hand on the square shoulder said:

"Major Warner, we'd just like a little word from you to cheer us on the way if you—"
"Major wh?" cried the Warner-looking stranger. "Major Warner, eh? I guess the drinks are on you. I'm a democrat from Stone's own county. I couldn't overlook if it wasn't that I've been taken for Warner a dozen times in the last few days. But that I look like Warner isn't my fault, thank God."

It's sometimes said patent medicines are for the ignorant. The doctors foster this idea. "The people" we're told "are mostly ignorant when it come to medical science." Suppose they are! What a sick man needs is not knowledge, but a cure, and the medicine that cures is the medicine for the sick. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures the "do be lieves" and the "don't believes." There's no hesitation about it, no if nor "possibly." It says—"I can cure you, only do as I direct." Per haps it fails occasionally. The maker's heart of it when it does, because they never keep the money when the medicine fails to do any good. Suppose the doctors went on that principle. (We beg the doctors pardon. It wouldn't do.)

Choking, sneezing and every other form of catarrh in the head, is radically cured by Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Fifty cents. Sold by druggists everywhere.

The Chicago Tribune says: "Simon Wing the presidential nominee of the Socialistic Labor party, is a Boston tailor. He reports the present condition of his campaign as only sew sew."

Shiloh's cure will immediately relieve croup, whooping cough and bronchitis. Sold by H. L. Tucker.

Magnetism may be of some use in the future. A patent has issued for a lock which can only be operated by a magnetic key. This will probably not apply to the night key.

The Rev. G. H. Thayer, of Bourdon, Ind., says: Both myself and wife owe our lives to Shiloh's consumption cure. Sold by H. L. Tucker.

Meddiers used to be regarded as nuisances. Now they are not so. It has been said that it is actually getting so that the man who attends to his own business is apt to get left.

Why will you cough when Shiloh's cure will give you immediate relief. Price 10c, 50c and $1. Sold by H. L. Tucker.

RUN AGROUND.

The Ill-Fated Normannia Passengers in More Trouble.

CEPHEUS STUCK ON A BAR.

Immigrants Escape From the Moravia and Are Found Living With Their Friends Since September 6—A Leak in the Quarantine Some where.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—The cabin passengers of the Normannia seemed to be especially singled out by fate for misfortunes and it is safe to say that, if they ever succeed in landing in safety in this city, they will think many times before they again undertake trips to Europe.

This morning the passengers who had been held as prisoners of the board of health at quarantine since the morning of September 3, and who had been buffeted about by unkind fate since then on the vessel and at Fire Island, were awakened at daybreak to prepare for their last joyous voyage to dry land and liberty. The early hours were the most delightful they had spent in three weeks, and at 8 o'clock about 400 of them embarked on the steamer Cepheus bound for the city, each one armed with a clean bill of health.

The vessel had, one only a few hundred yards ere there was a grinding, grating sound. The next moment the engines were reversed, but it was all in vain. The vessel was hard aground in the shallows, and the passengers were even farther away from home than before they started, for the tide was out and they are compelled to await the flood for release from the sandbar.

About 100 passengers of the Normannia refused to go on the Cepheus, preferring to go over to Babylon and take train for the city. They left Fire Island on board the boat Ripple at 9:15 o'clock for Babylon under military escort and there took a train on the Long Island road for New York.

Two steerage passengers from the Moravia have been found in this place.—Mrs. Marx Henkelman and Mrs. Paulina Janowski, the wives of two Russian Hebrews who have lived in this place several years. The local health board investigated the case and learned that the two women arrived here by the way of the steamer Shelter Island, September 6. The husbands said their wives arrived in New York on the Moravia from Hamburg. The women brought with them several children and considerable baggage. They came direct from Russia.

The house in which these people live is in a thickly settled part of the village and the health board has ordered a strict quarantine until the cases can be more fully investigated. District Attorney Reeves said there could be no mistake about the name of the ship by which these people had arrived, as he himself had carefully questioned the women's husbands on this point, and they were sure it was the Moravia. They make no statement as to how their wives escaped.

A man named Goldstein, employed by Herman Sandman, in Greenport, says that on Sunday, September 4, Sandman received a telegram for Henkelman from the latter's wife saying she was at Ellis Island. Goldstein says Henkelman went to New York Monday and returned with two women and their children and baggage on the steamer the next day. Henkelman told Goldstein that his wife came over on the cholera ship Moravia.

GOATS' HAIR CASE.

Importers to Pay Duty Under the McKinley Bill.

BOSTON, Sept. 16.—The United States government has been sustained by the United States court of appeals in the celebrated goats' hair case. The decision is of vast importance, involving many millions of dollars and affecting the rights of manufacturers and importers all over the country. The ruling reverses the decision of Judge Colt, of the circuit court, who decided in favor of L. C. Chase & Co., the firm that brought the test case, and against the board of general appraisers and Collector Beard. The last mentioned official assessed a duty of 12 cents a pound on goats' hair goods, which the importers contended should be admitted duty free. The collector claimed that he was authorized to assess the duty under the McKinley bill, and the board of general appraisers, to whom the importers appealed, held the same opinion.

Stewart Goes to Weaver.

WINNEMUCA, Nev., Sept. 16.—At the convention of the silver party last evening for the purpose of instructing its electors to vote for Weaver and Field, Senator Stewart declared that both Presidents Cleveland and Harrison had disregarded their respective platforms after election and used their power to demoralize silver. He said a vote for either Harrison or Cleveland was a vote for the enemy of the paramount industry of Nevada. Weaver was the only presidential candidate whose position on silver harmonized with Nevada's interests. He declared he would vote for Weaver and advocate his election on the stump throughout the state.
