

ROTHSCHILD SAVED AGAIN.

An Anarchist Almost Succeeds in Blowing Up the Bank.

Paris, Sept. 5.—M. Rothschild's banking house in this city was the scene to-day of another Nihilistic attempt. At 3:20 o'clock a man entered the bank from the Rue La Fayette. In the vestibule a detective who was on guard there saw the stranger trying to light the fuse of a bomb which he carried with a cigarette. The ashes on the cigarette prevented the ready ignition of the fuse, and the man seeing that he was observed threw the bomb upon the carpeted floor. The weapon did not explode and the man was arrested. When he was taken to the police office he boldly avowed himself an Anarchist.

According to another account, when the man with the bomb was arrested he was ascending the first stair case leading to the banking office, and had lighted a match. When he saw that he had been detected he threw the bomb to the ground and ran out into the street, being pursued by the bank detective. When overtaken, the desperate man turned suddenly and confronted his pursuer with a razor. The officer ward off a blow which was aimed at him and seized the man by the wrist. A crowd assembled, attracted by the struggle, and another policeman coming up the two officers succeeded in overpowering the would-be murderer.

At the police office the man was examined by Inspector Carnette, acting in the absence of Commissary Guerin. He obstinately refused to talk and was taken to the central prison. There he became more communicative and openly professed Anarchistic theories, declaring he intended the bomb as an anarchist demonstration. The recently explosive letter received at De Rothschild's bank, and which cost Baron Alphonse De Rothschild's confidential clerk an eye, the man said was only a hoax, to day's attempt being expected to have a salutary effect.

The man told Commissary Guerin he made the bomb himself. He expressed regret that he had not taken enough precautions to insure an explosion. He had tried to light the fuse with a cigarette, but the ashes upon the latter interfered. The arrival of the detective had compelled him to throw the bomb hastily, and by that act he had not expected to explode it. He said the bomb contained chloride of potassium. "However," he added, "you are cunning; open it and satisfy yourself on that point."

When taken to the prefecture he refused to give his name or occupation. He was dressed in dark clothes and wore a shirt with red stripes. The bomb was made of a half pound of cocoa tin, tied with a string and wound about with wire. A round hole, a quarter of an inch in size, was in the side of the box and from this fell a whitish powder.

The culprit was miserably dressed and a razor and brush were found upon him, so it is supposed he is a barber's assistant. He refused to give any pretext for the attempted outrage. His family lived a long time at Moutnaerte, where active inquiries are proceeding.

Upon being further examined he said the bomb was composed of chloride of potassium and blasting powder and contained no projectile. His act, he said, was a protest against the proceedings of the bankers. He had traveled throughout France, never remaining long in the same place, in order not to awaken suspicion. He professed a contempt for work since every one lives at the expense of society. The news of the outrage spread rapidly in Paris, and many fear that it portends a renewal of an active Anarchistic campaign.

Bequests of a Rich Man.

Malvern, Ia., Sept. 1.—The late M. U. Payne, the famous Fremont county millionaire, who died a few days ago, was a most interesting and original character. He was a life-long friend of Jefferson Davis, and when the latter was elected President of the Southern Confederacy he appointed Payne Secretary of the Interior, but he never served in that capacity.

On the contrary he came north and settled in Fremont county, where he has since amassed a fortune estimated at from $1,000,000 to $3,000,000. He owned land in every state in the Union except one, though the most of his real estate was in Fremont county, where he had 16,000 acres. When Davis died he was called to his home in Mississippi to preach his funeral sermon.

Payne's will, just filed for probate, shows his money bequests to be $228,000, aside from his real estate. Besides making liberal provision for his widow, children, relatives and servants, he bequeathed to Charles S. Henry of the Firebrand, Shenandoah, and his school, $5,000; M. E. church (South) loan fund board of church extension, $20,000; M. E. church (South) on the home place thirty acres, so long as used for church purposes; Central college, Fayette, Mo., endowment fund, $10,000; Park college, Parkville, Mo., scholarship fund, $10,000; Tabor college, Tabor, Ia., endowment fund, $10,000; to the needy widows orphans under 12 years, spinsters over 20 years and all preachers now living upon the land in Fremont county owned by said testator, or who may hereafter live upon any of said premises during the ownership of his heirs, $30,000.

Mrs. Massie's Exploit.

Our former Rich Hill friend, R. C. Massie, has furnished the Kansas City Journal with the following further particulars of his wife's experience with a Chicago highwayman, an account of which the Review contained yesterday:

"The occurrence," says Mr. Massie, was in the middle of the afternoon and on one of the leading residence streets. The man followed Mrs. Massie several blocks and at a moment when there were no other pedestrians near, overtook her and attempted to snatch her purse. She returned with a blow of her umbrella. The thief then grabbed her hand and attempted to take the diamonds from her ears. She released herself from his grasp and took refuge in the doorway of an adjacent residence, and the would-robber took to his heels. Mrs. Massie suffered a sprain of the wrist, but otherwise was not injured. She has been in Chicago a week looking after the sale of several songs of her own composition, which have recently attracted considerable attention.

"Mr. Massie says he sent Mrs. Massie a postoffice order a few days ago, and he thinks the thief saw her cash the order and followed her until he saw an opportunity to take her purse."

Now, if Mrs. Massie had only captured that robber, then worked all the incidents of the affair into a song set to "catchy" music, she would have been a real heroine as well as a great composer—very shortly thereafter. Nothing succeeds like success, you know. Ladies, however, should select tame burglars to practice on. Mrs. Massie exhibited rare pluck in "holding her own" as she did.—Review.

On a Lone Island.

Santa Cruz, Cal., Sept. 4.—D. T. Hughes, R. F. Davis, R. L. Mann and Peter Chrisman of Gonzales and H. Mohrman and P. Jennings of Gilroy to-day sailed for a lone island in the Pacific Ocean, about 800 miles west of Peru, in search of buried treasure. Forty-three years ago Mr. Jennings was a sailor on the South Seas, and as such is said to have been one of the six who buried on a lonely island in the Pacific three large jars of Spanish doubloons, valued at between $300,000 and $1,000,000. Mr. Jennings is the only man alive that knows the location of the money, as the other five died in his presence on the Peruvian Coast. He has also a chart of the island and claims it is volcanic and uninhabited. Three months will be required to make the trip.

Enterprise in the South.

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 5.—The Manufacturer's Record says that the announcement of new cotton mills projected in the South during the last three months exceed that of any similar time in the history of cotton mill building in this section. There were reported seventy-seven mills, which will have an aggregate of over 300,000 spindles, which, added to the 500,000 spindles to be put in mills that had been reported before May 31, makes a total of about 800,000 spindles to be added to the number now in operation in the South. If these mills are all built, as indications show, the aggregate investment will be something over $15,000,000. With the continuation of high prices for cotton the enormous grain crop which has been produced and these active conditions in industrial interests, the South bids fair to have the most prosperous season which it has enjoyed for many years.

Hill vs. Whitney.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4.—A fierce battle is in prospect between David B. Hill and William C. Whitney for the control of the New York delegation to the next Democratic National Convention. It is reported that Croker will use Tammany in the interest of the ex-Secretary. Politicians here do not deny that both Hill and Whitney are anxious for the presidency.

Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher.

New York, Sept. 4.—Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher has returned from her trip to Port Townsend greatly refreshed and invigorated.

"I was gone just four weeks and three days," she said, "and enjoyed every minute of my trip. Unfortunately, the climatic conditions of Port Townsend were unfavorable, and I did not see the sun, moon or stars until two days before I left. The women are extremely well educated, and I am glad to say that the new-woman fever has not affected many of them. I wisely refrained from any discussion on that subject, for it seemed to me that those who had been stricken with this disease were extremely ill informed in the matter. I feel that women are not to be considered as equal to men—they are one with them and must work in harmony. All this talk about influencing the men in politics must be disgusting. These women who wish to help select the Mayor can not be attending to home duties, for if they were they would not know who was the best man, but would leave it to the men."

WATER WALL.

Six Feet High and Nearly Nine Miles Wide

Piedras Negras, Mex., Sept. 5.—(Spl.)—Advices have reached here of the almost complete destruction of the town of Rodriguez and Abastos, situated south of here in the valley of the Salado River.

Both places were wiped out of existence by a cloudburst, which occurred in the San Blas mountains, back of the towns. The water rushed down the valley, in a tremendous torrent, sweeping everything before it. It covered the ground to a depth of six feet and the flood was from six to nine miles wide.

The business houses and residences of the two towns were built of adobe and they melted away before the torrent of water like so much sand.

The town of Abastos had a population of 1,500 people. The inhabitants saw the torrent coming down the valley in time to make their escape to the adjoining hills.

So far as known there were no lives lost in that place, although not more than 15 houses are left standing. Every house in the town of Rodriguez, which had a population of 700, was washed away, but no lives were lost.

It is feared that there was great destruction of property and lives lost further down the valley, as that portion was thickly settled.

It is known that all the buildings on the hacienda of Jose Ross were caught in the flood and washed away, the loss of his property amounting to about $20,000.

Bed 1,000 Years Old.

New York, Sept. 5.—James Hudson of Washington, D. C., has placed a remarkable Chinese bed on exhibition in a big dry goods store on Fulton street. The bed is nearly 1,000 years old and was occupied originally by The Sing, the last emperor of the Sing dynasty. The bed weighs 2,400 pounds, is 7 feet 6 inches long, 4 feet 10 inches wide and 7 feet 3 inches high. It consists of forty-three separate pieces dove-tailed together like a Chinese puzzle. Not a nail, screw or fastening of any kind is employed. The panels are of carved teak, with sandalwood, bamboo and ivory inlaid work. There are 1,100 figures representing the history of the Sings from the time of Tai-Tsa, their founder, in 960 B. C., until The Sing. The figures are as distinct and their expression as perfect as if painted by a master. It is worth $11,000.

Bradley's Blunder.

Middlesborough, Ky., Sept. 4.—(Spl.)—This, the Eleventh Congressional district, is the Gibraltar of Republicanism in Kentucky, and for years has not failed to send a representative to Congress, but Col. Bradley has injured his chances of success by refusing to meet Wat Hardin on the stump, and has driven some Republicans away from him by what they term his political cowardice.

A week ago a good many gold money Democrats would have supported him in preference to Hardin, because of the latter's views on the money issue, but now they will swing into line for their Democratic candidate.

A mountaineer hates any form of cowardice, and Democrats and Republicans alike censure Bradley for hoisting a flag of truce so early in the campaign.

To a Limb.

Crown Point, Ind., Sept. 5.—The decayed body of an unknown man was found hanging to a limb of a tree in a big swamp in Newton County last night by a hunter. It has probably been hanging there for three months past, as all the flesh had fallen from the bones.

Five crows were engaged in devouring the flesh when approached by the hunter. The body is supposed to be that of a tramp who lost his way in the immense swamp, and on the point of starvation hanged himself to end his misery.

The Sugar Bounty.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 5.—A special to the Tribune from Washington, D. C., says: Comptroller Bowler of the treasury department will render his decision to-day or to-morrow in the sugar bounty cases. It will be against the sugar planters and will result in the refusal of the Controller to pay over to them the $5,260,000 appropriated by the last congress for bounties under the McKinley tariff act, which bounties were ended by the new tariff law.

In the latter part of July the Controller refused to pay or approve of the claim of the Oxford Beet Sugar Co. of Nebraska, which applied for its bounty under the congressional appropriation. This company's application had been favorably passed upon by the Internal Revenue Bureau, but the Controller refused to allow a warrant to be issued for the money, as he believed the appropriation was unconstitutional.

He consented to hear arguments, and on Aug. 17 a large number of the Southern sugar planters and the Western company sent lawyers. The Controller reserved his decision and has now prepared an exhaustive review of the law, touching upon such cases, and of the arguments submitted, and has decided not to pay these bounties, asserting that Congress had no right to pass the original bounty law.

Her Red Petticoat.

New York, Sept. 5.—Pretty Martha Garnee is station agent at Mount Ivy, N. Y., and yesterday sparks from a freight train set her station house on fire. She and her brother saved such things as they could. Then the plucky station agent remembered that an east-bound passenger train was almost due. The track in front of the station was covered with debris and there was risk of an accident. All the flags were bound up in the fire. Then Miss Garnee remembered her red petticoat. She sent her brother down the track with it, and he flagged the train. The passengers, who considered their lives had been saved, cheered Miss Garnee for her pluck. A Hackensack millionaire who was on the train offered her $10 for the petticoat as a souvenir. She declined the offer, saying that the garment would be sent to the office of the company and preserved among the other archives.

Buckner Out of the Race.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 4.—General Simon Bolivar Buckner, in a card to day in his home paper, the "Hart County News," announces his withdrawal from the race for United States Senator. The General states that in many legislative districts personal interests are arrayed against party success, and that candidates supposed to be favorable are, nevertheless, a target for opposition in the party. He says that untrammelled with any candidacy of his own, he can the more earnestly urge the support of the whole Democratic ticket and advocate the platform of principles as construed by every member of the party at the time of its adoption.
