

The Tri-Weekly CITIZEN.

TUESDAY EVENING, DEC. 1.

Have! Have!!—For all cheap copies or large tags delivered at this office in large or small quantities, we will pay ten cents per pound.

In almost every family a large quantity of paper is wasted, which, if preserved, would soon accumulate into a large heap, and become to those who look for trouble to see them, quite a source of income. But the profits arising from such a piece of economy, should be the smallest consideration; in these times of scarcity it is the duty, and should be a paramount object with everybody to save every thing that can be turned to account, or made useful, by any possible plan. People want newspapers to read, and to furnish them, printers must have paper on which to print; to furnish them, the paper mill must have material out of which to manufacture that indispensable article. Hence constitute the cheapest and best material for this purpose. Hence, it is the duty, and should be the pleasure, of all persons to save all the rags they can and sell them to publishers, in order that the supply of printing paper may not be exhausted.

THE ARREST OF MR. GIDDINGS. PARTICULARS OF THE CASE.

From the Toronto Globe.

The telegraph informs us that Hon. Joshua Giddings, American Consul General to Canada, has been arrested and held to bail on the complaint of one W. J. Louis Redpath. The case, so far as it has yet been made public, is very much mixed up. As nearly as we can get at it, it appears to be something like this:

A man named Jones, who, there is reason to believe, is connected with some portion of the United States police, met at Montreal, at a boarding-house, the said W. J. Louis Redpath. At the house he appears to have been called "Lewis," surname being discarded by his intimates. Jones conceived the idea of kidnapping Redpath, and taking him to New York. To aid him he secured the services of an old, intemperate man named Hawkins. The two went to Redpath's house. Jones pretended that he was a Montreal detective; Hawkins, that he held a similar office in the New York police. As it would appear from the account we have, Redpath allowed himself to be placed in a cab, and conveyed to St. Lambert ferry, and to be placed in the cars, without making any resistance. The "detectives" showed him, he alleges, a letter, purporting to be signed by Mr. Giddings, authorizing them to apprehend two men named Louis and Burke, and convey them to the States, appointing Hawkins as an assistant to Jones, and promising that all reasonable expenses should be paid on their arrival in New York. As a reason for arresting "Redpath" instead of "Louis," Jones told him he was certain he was the man, as he had been called "Louis" in the boarding house where he first met him. He (Jones) also volunteered the information that a charge was pending against Louis alias Redpath for arson, and the murder of a negro during the New York riots. He was conveyed to New York, but succeeded, before he got there, in writing to the Mayor of Montreal. The fact becoming known to his captors, he was released from his confinement upon signing a paper pledging himself not to take any proceedings against either Jones or Hawkins.

Upon returning to Montreal, Redpath made his case known to the press of that city. Mr. Giddings immediately contradicted the report that he had in any way authorized the arrest. He says that Jones waited upon him, represented that that he wished to start with a prisoner for New York, but as he was a dangerous man, an assistant would be necessary. He was afraid, however, to employ any one for the purpose, least the police in New York would refuse to reimburse him. Would Mr. Giddings, he asked, give him a note advising payment? With this request, believing the man to be a Montreal detective, and deceived by his gentlemanly bearing, Mr. Giddings complied. He has now been arrested upon a charge of complicity in the act of kidnapping. That he was intentionally guilty we cannot believe, but it does appear as though he had been guilty of an indiscretion. It is quite possible, when the contents of the note which he gave to Jones are published verbatim, if that can be done, that the language used on the spur of the moment will be proved to go further and to read more than was intended. Until further evidence on this point is offered, judgment must be suspended.

We are glad to announce, says the Daily Mississippi Extra, that Governor Clark received a dispatch from Gen. Joseph B. Johnston, announcing that he has suspended the order for the imprisonment of slaves in western and north-western Mississippi. This will release many of our citizens in those exposed regions of a load of anxiety.

A duel was fought on Monday evening between Col. William E. Peters, late of the Senate of Virginia, and Major John B. Harris, with rifles, at sixty paces. One shot was exchanged without effect, friends interposed and the affair was settled.

DISSOLUTION OF COPARTNERSHIP.
THE copartnership of J. J. Richards, & Co., is dissolved by mutual consent, dating from Oct. 30, 1863.

COPARTNERSHIP.

THE undersigned have formed a copartnership under the name and style of Orrick & Landers, and are authorized to settle the business of Mosby & Richards; and J. J. Richards & Co. All persons indebted to the above firm are earnestly requested to settle with them. Confederate money will be received for all claims made before or during the war.

It is our intention to confine ourselves strictly to the drug business, and keep our stock full and complete, and we hope to be able to merit the patronage of our friends.
ORRICK & LANDERS,
Canton, Dec. 1st, 1863. 7-1f

$100 REWARD.

ON Saturday, November 28, we gave our negro boy, SHELBY, a pass to look for a stray mule in the vicinity of Canton. On Saturday night we learned that he had gone as far as the Confederate pickets on the Yazoo road, by whom he was stopped. He then turned back towards Canton, but has not since been heard of, and we have reason to believe he has run away.

Said boy is about 17 years old; black complexion; five feet, six or seven inches high; will weigh about 145 lbs., and is a smart, intelligent fellow. He was purchased from Mrs. German, of Silver creek, Yazoo county. The above reward will be given for his apprehension and delivery to us at Jackson, or safe lodgment in jail so that we get him, together with the mule, which is a large mouse colored horse, six or seven years old, bought of Mr. Lambeth, of Yazoo county. Address either of us at Jackson, Miss.

HEADQUARTERS JACKSON'S CAVALRY DIV.,
JACKSON, MISS., NOV. 28, 1863.

CIRCULAR.]

To the Citizens of Leake and Madison:
The Brigadier General commanding this division calls upon you for assistance in repairing the N. O., J. & G. N. R. R. to Pearl river. The benefits which will accrue to you from the speedy completion of this road, are well known to you, having for years prospered with it. Let the demands of your country and your own interests, induce you to send forward your negroes, without his having to resort to impressment. They will only be for this special work; and the moment it is finished they will be returned to you.

Send forward immediately to Capt. T. S. Williams, Superintendent N. O., J. & G. N. R. R., at Canton, Miss., or deliver to Lieut. W. W. Keith, 28th Reg. Miss. Cav'y, who is now in your midst, as many of your able bodied negro men as you can spare for this work, and receipts will be given you by them. If you desire to do so, send your overseers or agents along with them, to attend to their treatment and welfare.

Let them bring their blankets; rations will be furnished by the government. In all cases where receipts are given, the officer giving them must take name and full descriptive lists of the negro, date he received him, and the name of the owner and his residence.

By Command of Brig. Gen. JACKSON,
GEO. MOORMAN,
