LIBERTY ENLIGHTENING THE WORLD AT NIGHT. This reproduction of a photograph taken on the night of May 31 shows the famous Bartholdi Statue in New York Harbor shining through the darkness for the first time, illuminated by searchlights of the battleship Michigan...

The same paper thirty years ago raised $100,000 to complete the pedestal, thereby saving America the disgrace of not being able fittingly to accept the statue toward which 400,000 people of France had contributed.

The World seeks no large contributions to this fund, but many small ones, in order that the lighting of the famous statue may be in keeping with the traditions of this great and international friendship.

designs, that applications at the New York school of Applied Design for Women exceed by several hundred the number that can be furnished. The peculiar aptitude, gifts and taste of the American woman in these lines, which fall little short of those of her Parisian and Viennese cousins, have come out brilliantly with the unusual opportunity offered by the war.

BEDTIMESTORIES FOR LITTLE FOLKS

HOW FLUFFY SAVED FRED.

"Poor old Fluffy," sighed Fred as he lay in the hammock, lazily swinging under the cherry tree. "I am afraid his time is almost up—he is getting blind and useless. Perhaps it would be a kindness to let him die painlessly."

Fluffy, a big, brown, curly-haired setter, lay on the ground watching Fred. His nose was between his outstretched paws and his soft eyes seemed to read the boy's thoughts.

"You're a mighty fine old fellow," sighed Fred, with a mist in his eyes. "How I wish you could stay with us always."

"Oh! Fred, come here!" called a voice over the gate. A moment later Donald Gordon ran into the yard.

"Why, come on out with us boys," cried Donald. "We have Uncle Frank's boat, and five of us are going for a row down to the Three Sisters' Island. We have a lunch and are ready to start."

Fred and Donald raced down the path toward the river bank. But fast as they went they did not see a brown dog following them on the other side of the hedge.

"You can't go old fellow!" shouted Fred. "You would upset the canoe." So Fluffy sat down on his haunches on the cliff and barked mournfully at the boat fast speeding away.

"I do believe Fluffy is following us up the river," said Fred as they turned a bend. "I can see a brown speck coming in this direction." In half an hour the boys landed on the island and commenced to eat their lunch.

"In half an hour the boys landed on the island and commenced to eat their lunch. When that was finished they proposed to swim to the bank opposite the side from which they had started. Fred did not know how to swim, so he sat on a rock to watch the others.

Chicago—The origin of the suffrage slogan, "Votes for Women," has been explained by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, who was the central figure in the big parade of yesterday. It seems that an uprising of the working classes took place in 1819 at Manchester, England. At that time the men were attempting to get representation in parliament and a parade for that purpose was organized.

Topeka, Kans.—The way that Kansas women are going after political jobs is causing no end of worry to the old-line politicians who must have these jobs for their followers in order to maintain their power. The candidacies for office are eagerly sought by women—in fact, there are 129 women actively campaigning for county offices.

Paris—With the death of Mme. Jane Dieulafoy, author, explorer, chevalier of the Legion of Honor, and permitted by the French government to wear male apparel, which occurred week before last, there passed one of the most remarkable women in all Europe.

There has been a cloudburst up the river," whispered Fred to himself, his voice shaking with fear. "The water is rising and in half an hour will be over this island and I cannot swim." In agony he watched the boat drifting slowly for it had not reached the swift current in the middle of the river.

"We have sent Donald back to Harrison's landing for a man and a boat," Fred called the boys from the bank. "Keep up your courage till he gets here." But the lad knew the landing was three miles down the river and it would take an hour for help to come.

Then out of the bushes on the bank from which they had started he saw a brown body leap like a shot. Then battling with the current, he saw the shaggy head of Fluffy swimming toward the boat.

"That's it, old boy!" shouted Fred in delight. "Get the rope and bring it to me." Fluffy seemed to understand. Fighting with all his strength the dog managed to reach the canoe and grasped the rope in his mouth. Then he started up the river toward Fred. It was a hard fight. The rising water spun and danced. Sometimes it swept over the dog; then he would come up with a brave shake.

Talks With Screen-Struck Girls

BY BEATRIZ MICHELENA

A girl writes from Cleveland asking, "does a motion picture actress have to work hard?"

She asked other questions as well, but they counted for nothing since this was her first and after that I knew she had no business in pictures. The girl who starts out worrying about how hard she will have to work is not the kind that will ever get anywhere, for there is work and lots of it between the feet of the ladder and the top in the motion picture profession.

And yet I believe there are girls, and men, too, who wish to get into pictures because they believe it all easy. How little they see of the real studio life in the film after it is finished for projection they cannot know.

They see their heroine on the screen sail triumphantly through a scene with never a hitch. There is not the least semblance of an effort. Nothing could very well appear easier. And yet very probably that same scene has been the source of illimitable worry and nerve-racking endeavor. It has very likely been rehearsed and then taken and retaken until every one felt his patience worn to a ragged edge.

Moreover, it may have been taken under a blistering sun with glaring white diffusers to make matters worse. Or it may have been under artificial lights that generate a suffocating heat and almost blind one through the intensity of their rays. At many a day's end does the actress find herself completely fagged in body and mind. Her eyes and head will ache at almost bursting point. It is caused by the sun and the glare and the maddening irritation of a make-up that she must wear from morning until the sun fails at night.

Nowhere does one need a better stock of patience than in pictures. It is very largely a matter of details that require the most tedious and undivided application. Nothing counts but the day's work and all thought of personal convenience must give way to that.

If a girl is genuinely in love with the profession and it is a love that concerns itself with results to be obtained for the profession instead of with certain points of personal vanity, she can very easily discount these hardships. But if she is the kind to worry about how hard the work is, she should never hope for success in motion pictures.

RELIEF HAS BEEN PERMANENT

Says Cardui Built Up System When Other Medicines Failed. Believes That It Saved Her Life.

Hendersonville, N. C.—Mrs. M. A. Redmon, of R. F. D. 1, this place, writes: "I wish to state that before having taken Cardui, my condition of health was all run-down, and had been that way ever since my marriage two years ago last May. I only weighed 107 pounds. My average weight is 135 pounds. I had such awful pains at times I could hardly walk. I had severe pains in my back and abdomen, and could scarcely do my work. I could not lift anything heavy."

In November, 1913, I began taking Cardui. I thought I would give it a trial, though my family doctor had sent me to the hospital for an examination of me. I saw my improvement after taking the first bottle. I am getting fat and well, and in March this year I weighed 128 pounds. Your Cardui tonic built up my system when all other medicines failed. I feel and look like a different person. I am still persisting in taking my friends' Cardui for I can truly say I believe it saved my life. My relief from all pain has been permanent."

If you are run-down in health and need a tonic, take Cardui, the woman's tonic. It will help you. For sale by all druggists.—Adv.

SALTS IS FINE FOR KIDNEYS, QUIT MEAT

Finish the Kidneys at once when Back hurts or Bladder bothers—Meat forms uric acid.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.
