OUTING

THE OUTING MAGAZINE, edited by Caspar Whitney, is one of America's most popular magazines. It is a high-grade publication, numbering among its contributors such well-known authors as Emerson Hough, George W. Wingate, Robert Dunn, A. E. Marr, C. M. Russell, Ralph D. Paine, Vance Thompson, H. P. Burchell, Frank Presbrey, equally well-known and brilliant writers who make THE OUTING MAGAZINE one of particular interest to intelligent readers everywhere. It appeals to the very highest class of readers and interests old and young alike, because it presents each month an array of reading matter that arrests and holds attention. This magazine is for the man who loves the earth under his foot and the hum of the earth close to his ear, and for the reader who delights in high-class fiction. The power of description, delineation and character-drawing presented in its pages each month causes you to love this magazine and to recommend it to your friends.

METROPOLITAN

THE METROPOLITAN MAGAZINE, issued monthly by The Metropolitan Magazine Company, is replete with short and serial stories that hold the interest of its readers throughout. It is seldom that magazine readers find as strong and varied a collection of articles and fiction as is found in THE METROPOLITAN. Among the contributors to THE METROPOLITAN are George Gregory, Lieutenant Hugh M. Kelley, U. S. A., Charles H. Cochran, Both Stater Whitson, Robert Alexander Mason, Margaret Fay Coughlin, Herbert Vanderhoof and other writers of national repute.

One of the special features of THE METROPOLITAN each month is an article under the caption of the "World at Large," which gives the important news of the month condensed and illustrated. Another feature is a high-grade frontispiece, in colors, reproduced from some famous painting.

BOHEMIAN

THE BOHEMIAN MAGAZINE is full of reading matter that is clever and bright. It is the aim of the publisher to secure only the very best fiction that can be written. Among the many writers who contribute to its pages are found such authors as Aubrey Lanston, Rem A. Johnston, Warwick James Price, Robert Coulton Brown, Berta Hart Nance, John Barton and James L. Mason.

THE BOHEMIAN regularly publishes short stories, special articles, anecdotes, verse and satire. Fully one-third of the magazine is devoted to illustrations, which are the best that contemporary photography and draughtsmanship can produce. This magazine is published solely to entertain, and is designed to interest men and women during their hours of recreation from the cares of the day.
