

Little Regard For Marriage Vows in Washington Society

Hearst News Service.
(By Mrs. John A. Logan.)
Washington, August 15.—One is shocked beyond measure at the innumerable cases of unfaithfulness on the part of husbands who have hitherto been reckoned among honorable members of society. A recent instance, if the newspaper reports be true, is especially sad. A member of a prominent Philadelphia family married a beautiful young woman eight or ten years ago. Two children are the fruit of this union. There has not been a breath of scandal against this lovely wife and mother. Now it is said that the husband has become enamored of another woman, that he deliberately proposes to settle $100,000 upon the mother of his children and give her one of the children if she will take up a residence in North Dakota long enough to obtain a divorce from him and leave him free to marry the woman who has robbed him of every sense of honor and decency. The fact that the wife has gone to North Dakota to live for a time being would indicate that the report is correct. If it is true, this wronged wife has made a mistake. No woman, so betrayed and abandoned without provocation on her part, should for one moment consent to anything that carried with it freedom to her faithless husband. This is the one weapon she has for her defense, and she should hold fast to that for her own and her children's sake, and she might eventually see her husband recover his senses and witness his keen remorse for his cruelty.

Such examples of infidelity by persons in high places have been followed by others in the lower walks of life. It seems worse for men who find it difficult to make comfortable provision for his lawful family to undertake to gratify the wicked caprices of sirens, who have beguiled them from the paths of rectitude and honor. The wives of such men have usually been loyally devoted to their husbands and children, self-denying and economic in their domestic affairs, accepting their fate with cheerful resignation, rarely knowing for a long time that their husbands were leading dual lives.

That which is the most astonishing in such cases, is that men of intelligence and self-respect can be attracted by women of the character they must be who would attempt to wean them from their families. And yet, when they are exposed, they talk with perfect effrontery of their escapades and of the "outrage" of anyone interfering with their "private business," affirming that their relations are based upon the love they have for each other, boldly declaring that when they are freed from the matrimonial bonds which forbid them to commit bigamy, they will hasten to be married.

Take the late case of one Hobson. When caught in New York with Mrs. Pyle, the wife of another Washington man, he is reported to have said: "Mrs. Pyle and I found we cared for each other some time ago, and so, when I was forced to make this little business trip, she came with me. We had both left our homes before we met each other, and we didn't consider either her husband or my wife as any hindrance to our happiness."

Mrs. Pyle was indignant because her trip to New York was referred to in the newspapers as a lark. "There's no lark about it," she declared. "This is the most interesting and important event in my life, and upon the outcome depends my future happiness." An interview with the abandoned wife of Hobson revealed the fact that she and her two little children under five years of age had not known of the husband's whereabouts for weeks, or received a cent from him for their support.

Instead of such offenders against society being ostracised, they are treated with leniency and many excuses are made for them, and in all too many instances the inoffensive wives and husbands are accused of all kinds of inhumanity and heartlessness. It is incomprehensible that the authorities are loth to punish these violators of the laws of the sacred institution of marriage, which is the foundation of morality and the most holy relation of life. Nine times out of ten the unhappy abandoned partners are unable to get any kind of redress and are left to spend the remainder of their days in melancholy reveries over the sacrifice of the best of their lives upon the altar of matrimony.

Chronic Diarrhoea Relieved.
Mr. Edward E. Henry, with the United States Express Co., Chicago, writes, "Our General Superintendent, Mr. Quick, handed me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy some time ago to check an attack of the old chronic diarrhoea. I have used it since that time and cured many on our trains who have been sick. I am an old soldier who served with Rutherford B. Hayes and William McKinley four years in the 23rd Ohio Regiment, and have no ailment except chronic diarrhoea, which this remedy stops at once." For sale by Hays & Field and Yellow Pine Pharmacy.

POSTPONE LUMBER RATES IN PACIFIC STATES UNTIL BETTER BUSINESS PREVAILS

Hearst News Service.
San Francisco, August 15.—Lumber carrying railroads of the Pacific coast, which were ordered by the Interstate commerce commission to reduce their rates on lumber and its products, effective today, have been granted an extension of time until October 15. It was shown by the carriers involved that it would be impossible to check up rates and file new tariffs in time to become effective today.

Assurance was given the commission by some of the carriers that if the extension was granted they would not apply for an injunction to restrain the commission's order from becoming effective. However, the carriers expressly retain the right to test the reasonableness of the rates ordered by the commission in a suit to be brought for that purpose, or in suits which may develop out of reparation claims made by shippers who have been shipping under the advanced rates.

This does not include the case involving rates from the Willamette Valley to San Francisco in which the Southern Pacific Co. has already filed a petition at San Francisco asking for an injunction against the commission's order.

LOS ANGELES ANNIVERSARY BEING FITTINGLY CELEBRATED

Hearst News Service.
Los Angeles, Cal., August 15.—The anniversary of the founding of Los Angeles by Spaniards' padres 127 years ago was celebrated today in the customary manner by the Society la Reina de Los Angeles.

Los Angeles had its origin on August 15, 1781, when Felipe de Neve, governor of Alta California arrived on the site of the present city, then marked by a collection of Indian huts, and gave to the redskin village the imposing name of El Pueblo de Nuestra Señora, la Reina de Los Angeles—the town of our Lady, the Queen of the Angels. For many years the Spanish padres controlled the destiny of the town and today's celebration centered about the Church of Our Lady of the Angels, on the Plaza which was once the heart of the village, in the old days of the vaquero and the guitar.

A Faithful Friend.
"I have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy since it was first introduced to the public in 1872, and have never found one instance where a cure was not speedily effected by its use. I have been a commercial traveler for eighteen years, and never start out on a trip without this, my faithful friend," says H. S. Nichols, of Oakland, Ind. Ter. When a man has used a remedy for thirty-five years he knows its value and is competent to speak of it. For sale by Hays & Field and Yellow Pine Pharmacy
