SATURDAY, MARCH 26, 1870.

We would like to know if two widowers with a daughter each marry each other's daughter, what relation will their children be to each other?

We regret to announce the death of Mr. Joseph Edwards, formerly of Virginia, but lately a resident of Warren county. He died of consumption on the 24th, at the residence of Mr. G. A. Chappel, near Bovina.

We were pleased to meet in our sanctum, Col. D. Wyatt Aiken, of the Rural Carolinian, published at Charleston, South Carolina. He is taking a flying visit in the interest of his most excellent magazine. Our readers will refer to our notice of it in the issue of March 9th. We urge our people, the planting community especially, to subscribe for this periodical. It is one of the best in this country and peculiarly adapted to Southern wants.

From the Meridian Gazette.

A Word with the Times.

The editor of the Vicksburg Times, whose life is bent to loyal duty, devotes nearly a column to the Lauderdale affair, in the Gazette and our duty in directing the people as to the course they should pursue in checking crime—particularly in cases where a white man kills a negro. This is the burden of our neighbor's song, and he waxes eloquent over it. He wants no "idle diatribes," but with a little small discerning, and a hatred of what Davenant calls the "minds immoderately," proclaims in favor of "proper terms and plain English." He attacks us vigorously—the left hand rushing frantically through his hair and the right scattering ink-drops of sense and learning, both and wind, at the "stuff" which appeared in the Gazette. And he does all this, too, without giving his readers an opportunity to pass judgment upon the "stuff" he conveys. Our neighbor looks at it with bleared beams, garbles a sentence or word here and there and then pronounces us guilty! A jury of his own readers might have found a different verdict. But seriously, the Gazette never attempted to gloss over the Lauderdale killing; we have pronounced against such lawless outrages all along, and in our first notice of the Lauderdale killing we styled an "assassination"—a term probably strong enough for the stomach of the Times. We want to do equal and exact justice to all men; to protect industry and quietude against vagrancy and turbulence. We do not wish to abridge the black man's life or liberty, nor will we countenance it in others, but we are white men and the representatives of white men, and have grown weary of the howl raised over a black man's murder, and the silence that is observed when a negro murders a white man or outrages a white woman. We will go hand in hand with the Times or any other print in crusading out crime when "color" is not at the foundation of vigilance. We fully comprehend our position as a journalist and trust to be ever found battling in "truth's bold cause to rouse each fearless heart."

Cook's Silk Cotton.—This cotton was brought from Mexico to Texas, and from Texas to Mississippi in 1857. It was raised in Bolivar county and sold in New Orleans for 21½ cents per pound in 1858-9. A crop of 250 bales raised in Texas during the war by Judge Jones, was sold in 1865, in Liverpool for 63 cents gold, when common cotton was sold for 41 cents.

It is pronounced by competent Judges in New Orleans and Memphis as fine as peeler, and much stronger in staple.

It is admitted to be as fine as the famous "Molina" cotton by the producer, Rev. J. H. Eakin, also by his merchants in New York, Wm. Bryce & Co.

It is prolific, as the following letters will testify. W. S. Mullins from Hinds county, Miss., writes: "I planted one acre with the seed sent me, and have already picked 800 pounds, and expect to get a six hundred weight bale. I planted on old land. I think it the finest sowing I ever saw; beats Peeler and Dixon all to pieces for fine staple, and from what Peeler cotton I have seen your silk cotton will be ahead in the field."

St. Patrick's day was celebrated in Vicksburg by the Fire Department. The Time, after giving a full description of the procession, and a synopsis of the Rev. Father Lenny's sermon, and noting the different interesting features of the day, says:

It was a memorable and interesting occasion; one to be long remembered. The various companies in their bright uniforms presented a very imposing appearance.

MISSISSIPPI RAILROADS.

It should be gratifying, and must be so to every thoughtful mind, to note the activity of the railroad interest of this State.

We may lay aside other considerations, those of private, individual or local gain, and look only to the good to result to the people at large, as well as to particular sections. These railroad enterprises may prove losing affairs to some of those who engage in them, although we doubt it, but the majority of these routes must eventually prove richly paying investments and the rebuilding of our State.

Several of these railroads are leading from Vicksburg, and have, as objective points, New Orleans, Grenada and Memphis, and in addition, the Shreveport and the Little Rock routes. We also hear of several other routes, or extension of routes. Among these are the Elton and Aberdeen, Jackson and Natchez, the Meridian and New Orleans, the Ship Island and the Grenada and Houston. It may be that in some of these cases and for private reasons of self-interest and profit, "airy nothings" are receiving "local habitations and a name," but generally these routes, at least all those mentioned are bona fide ones and are destined to ensure to the propriety of their projectors and the welfare of the State.

These roads will open the interior to settlement. Immigration will flock in and it will be but a short time, should our government prove to be one of justice and fostering care, before traffic and travel over the new routes prove remunerative.

These roads, also, are projected through the richest counties of our State, and no sooner has the way been opened than settlers will eagerly seek the lands bordering upon this path of the iron horse, and if our people are wise and far seeing they will afford these immigrants opportunities of purchasing small farms and making themselves homes, thereby increasing the value of their own remaining property, adding to the wealth and population of the State, and giving a source of revenue to the railroads.

We call the attention of capitalists to the significance of this movement. Especially do we point their attention to this city which, as the great commercial centre of the State and of the cotton belt, as well as being the radii of several important railroad routes, is entitled to pre-eminence claims as a place for the productive investment of capital.

A Day of Thanksgiving and Prayer.

The Governor appoints the 21st day of April as a day of thanksgiving, fasting and prayer, for—

Because, a renegade has been elected to the chief magistracy of an oppressed and insulted people.

Because, instead of white military government, we have a negro civil government.

Because, instead of our rulers being elected in accordance with "Republican forms," from among the people, they are official usurpers from Yankeeedom and Africa.

Because, instead of the people who own, possess and live in this country electing their rulers, they are elected (?) by a lot of ignorant and contemptible negroes and a few low down thieving white (livered) men by the aid of the bayonet.

Because, instead of living in office men in whom the people have confidence, we have those who will astonish and disappoint us if they do not show their sole aim to be—booty.

Because we have a renegade Governor, a Yankee Lieutenant Governor, a nigger Secretary of State and a carpet bag and scallawag Legislature. We might go on to enumerate causes why we should give thanks and fast, but if there are not enough, and if these will not make us pray (for help and deliverance), then God pity our hard and stony hearts.

Mrs. STOKESWALL JACKSON is to be married.

SAVANNAH, GA., is shipping lumber to Ireland.

In some places the sea is so high and a quarter mile in depth, as indicated by soundings, in other places so shallow that it is difficult to land.

Benjamin Child has a man in jail who has not yet been fined since last August.

A RADICAL VIEW OF RECONSTRUCTION.

The following is taken from the N. Y. Nation, a high toned leading Radical paper. Comment is unnecessary. When the high handed outrages of scallawags and carpet baggers can excite the virtuous indignation of their own party, then, indeed, there seems some hope for us.

We may safely say the day is close at hand when that detested class of Radicals at the South who now rule with such unblushing effrontery, shall hide their diminished heads in inglorious shame, and the people breathe freely because relieved from the awful incubus of military despotism; or—forbearance will cease to be a virtue.

"The whole process, since the Senate decided to begin reconstruction in Georgia the second time, has been one well calculated to alarm as well as disgust every friend of free government on this continent. It has consisted in the surrender of a great community, fresh from a civil war, to probably as bad a lot of political tricksters and adventurers as ever got together in one place, to have all its places of profit and trust scrambled for by them under military superintendence, and by means of nearly every device known to the gambling house, the mock auction room, the thimble rigger's table; and all this in the presence of a large, newly enfranchised, and very ignorant constituency, to whom the very form of government, not to speak of its principles, are still unfamiliar. And to make the shame and humiliation all the greater, all this has been done under the pretence of establishing "a Republican form of government," and securing "equal rights for all."

We must say, that we think the silence or acquiescence of the Republican press, with a few honorable exceptions, in this disgraceful procedure, does it little credit, and certainly has not helped the party, as time, we know, will show."

"The cry now comes from Washington that not only ought the Bingham amendment to be struck out of the bill, but the whole State ought to be relegated to military government, pure and simple, and kept there for the next four years, owing to the outrages on the line of the Brunswick and Albany railroad, and the threats of the 'rebel press' as to what they will do when they get the State into their own hands once more. We should like to ask, seriously, those who talk in this way, whether they really believe that at the end of the four years the condition of public sentiment in the State would be any better than it is now, or as good? Whether they ever heard of a community being trained into peaceableness, love of order, and respect for law by a 'military government,' which was simply another name for the rule of a hated and despised faction, composed largely of worthless adventurers? Whether there is any State in the Union in which people's blood would not be made to boil in their veins by such a spectacle as their Capital as that which Georgians have been witnessing in theirs during the last three months? Whether they really believe in the older European doctrine that men can be civilized and bayoneted into good behavior, and have totally abandoned the American one, that all the political and social virtues, like nearly all the other good things of this world, are the results of growth, and slow growth too? How long do they think the political habits of the American people—which have hitherto been the salvation of the Government—their respect for the forms of law, their love of peaceful discussion, their willingness to abide by the results of elections, their confidence in official integrity, will survive if the policy now pursued, or threatened, in Georgia be persisted in? If a minority has only to cook up stories of 'outrages,' of 'riots,' and 'denials of justice,' and run with them to Washington, to be able to get the State Government overruled, how long would it be before we were in the condition of Mexico, with a distinct and well-marked civil war in each State, our Federal army roaming from one to the other, fighting a little here and there, fighting a little there, setting up a 'Republican form of government' in one place, changing a dictator in another, and so on? General Butler is said to be busy with his bill providing for the application of the Georgia policy to Louisiana, making introduction necessary here every day; but if the Republican party comes to any more of this politics, it may as well make an attempt to 'run' as well make an attempt to 'run' as it is to get the country into a condition of anarchy."
