

Dear Abby...

Your Finances Aren't Any Of Mom's Business

By ABIGAIL VAN BUUREN
DEAR ABBY: I am a member of that long-suffering group which I call the GWMSOC — "Girls Who Married Somebody's Only Child." I have learned to endure Mamma's references to "My Baby," (now grey-haired and 44.) I let her cook the way she wants when she visits us. I even laugh it off when she forgets and calls me by my husband's ex-wife's first name. But she still insists on asking personal questions about our finances such as, "How much are you making now? Did you get a raise? Is your car paid for yet? What else do you owe?" She doesn't help us financially, (in fact we help her) so must we answer her questions?

DEAR ABBY: The 14-year-old who wrote of her disgust at seeing sex books and magazines everywhere brought a good reply from you. (To turn her gaze to higher and better things, and to seek good books, wholesome friends and spiritual learning.) There IS a lot of good around. What we seek usually determines what we experience. As parents, we should work to clean up our local stores of this immoral rubbish. How? By shopping elsewhere! We may have to walk a little further, but it is worth it. The merchant who takes a stand against the sale of such trash deserves our support. Find out who he is, and reward him with your patronage.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have enjoyed a wonderful friendship with a married couple for over 30 years. They are living on a limited budget, so when I had a big family party to celebrate our anniversary, I did not invite them because I didn't want them to spend the money for a gift. Ever since that time they have been very cool and formal to me. I would give anything to have their friendship again as it was before. Was I wrong to exclude them from a party to which a gift should be taken? How can I let them know I am heartbroken over this?

DEAR FRIEND: You should
