Last Battles of War With Spain

While the peace negotiations with Spain were in progress to bring to a close the war which has been waged since April 21, and even after the protocol was signed and a temporary cessation of hostilities declared, some of the most important battles of the war were fought and won. On the day the protocol was signed Admiral Dewey and General Merritt, with the land and naval forces under their commands, made a combined attack on Manila, forcing its surrender in twelve hours, taking 7,000 prisoners and 12,000 stands of arms. The day before, at which time Spain's answer was in the hands of the president, Manzanillo, on the south coast of Santiago province, was bombarded for twelve hours and at dawn on the day peace was declared surrendered. Meanwhile General Miles in Porto Rico was pushing his advance lines on San Juan and even after receiving word of the declaration of an armistice had several lively skirmishes with the Spaniards.

While Secretary of State Day and Ambassador Cambon of France, representing Spain, were appending their signatures to the peace protocol, Manila, after a stubborn resistance, was surrendered.

The stars and stripes were flung out to the breeze that very evening on a staff where had floated so proudly the banner that for 350 years represented Spanish sovereignty in the Philippines. Just as the fresh breeze snapped Old Glory straight on the halliards the sun, which had been behind clouds all the week, burst out in a flood of brilliant light, saluting the first free flag hoisted over the Philippines in formal recognition of oppression's overthrow and freedom's onward march.

The cheers from land and sea that greeted the glorious ensign had hardly died away when the guns of Admiral Dewey's flagship, the Olympia, began roaring out a national salute to the new sovereignty in the Philippines. The Charleston quickly followed, and then the Raleigh, Concord, Hugh McCulloch, Petrel, Boston and Baltimore, and even the little Callao, that three months ago boasted allegiance to the flag that has now been supplanted.

In Cuba a similar scene, although not so important, was being enacted. On August 12 Manzanillo, on the south coast of Santiago province, west of Santiago de Cuba, was bombarded for over twelve hourse, beginning at about 8:30 in the afternoon, when the second-rate protected cruiser Newark lay 5,000 yards off shore and threw 6-inch shells, and the gunboat Suwanee, the Osceola, Hist and Alvarado, at ranges of from 600 to 800 yards, swept the shore batteries with their 4-inch guns, 6-pounders and smaller guns. The active bombardment lasted until 5 o'clock, when there was a lull for an hour. After that the Newark used her 6-inch guns every half hour through the night.

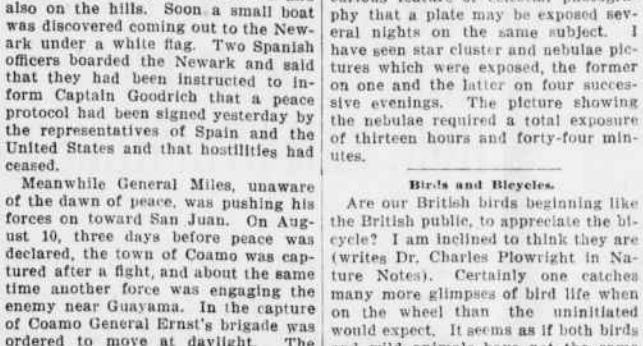
At dawn the next day white flags could be seen all over the town and also on the hills. Soon a small boat was discovered coming out to the Newark under a white flag. Two Spanish officers boarded the Newark and said that they had been instructed to inform Captain Goodrich that a peace protocol had been signed yesterday by the representatives of Spain and the United States and that hostilities had ceased.

Meanwhile General Miles, unaware of the dawn of peace, was pushing his forces on toward San Juan. On August 10, three days before peace was declared, the town of Coamo was captured after a fight, and about the same time another force was engaging the enemy near Guayama. In the capture of Coamo General Ernst's brigade was ordered to move at daylight. The main body went along the military road, while Colonel Biddle of General Wilson's staff, with the Sixteenth Pennsylvania, made a detour to enter the town from the north.

They met the Spanish forces outside the town and a fight took place, which lasted half an hour. The fire was hot. The Spanish in the trenches were driven out. The Spanish losses are unknown. Our loss was six wounded, one seriously.

While this battle was being waged the Fourth Ohio was having a skirmish about five miles beyond Guayama.

The Americans were caught in an ambuscade and had it not been for speedy reinforcements Companies A and C would have probably been wiped out. As it was several of them were wounded. This was the last fight in the war.



CELESTIAL PHOTOGRAPHY.

The Sensitive Plate Reveals More Than the Eye Can See.

In September St. Nicholas there is an article on "Photography: Its Marvels," by Elizabeth Flint Wade. The author says: Almost the first use in science to which the new discovery was put was the photographing of the moon, the first recorded picture being made by Prof. Draper, and presented to the New York Lyceum of Natural History. His son Henry grew so fond of astronomical photography that on leaving college he went to Ireland to see the great reflecting telescope of Lord Rosse. After seeing it he determined to make one like it. The reputation of the Yankee boy—that he can make not only the thing he undertakes but also the machine that makes it—was proved to be deserved by Henry Draper, for he made and he mounted the first American reflecting telescope. With it he took over fifteen hundred photographs of the heavens; and the instrument is still in use in Harvard observatory. The telescope not only reveals more than can be seen by the eye alone, but the sensitive film surpasses the power of the eye when aided by the telescope, for the camera records on the films objects which the eye can not see through the greatest magnifying lenses. No matter how far away or how dimly it shines, the light of the faintest star in time impresses the film, and thus that which is invisible to the eye becomes visible on the plate. In celestial photography the camera is kept moving during the taking of a picture. The exposure sometimes lasts several hours, and if the camera were stationary the motion of the earth would soon carry the subject out of line with the telescope. The camera, therefore, is attached to the tube of the telescope, and the object to be photographed is brought into the lens at the interesection of two crosswires. Then, by a system of clockwork, the telescope moves so that the subject occupies the same position on the plate during the exposure. In the picture of the Swift comet may be seen small white lines. These are the marks or trails of the stars. The telescope was adjusted to the speed of the comet, and as it traveled much faster than the stars the photographs of the stars appear as streaks instead of as points of light. It is another curious feature of celestial photography that a plate may be exposed several nights on the same subject. I have seen star cluster and nebulae pictures which were exposed, the former on one and the latter on four successive evenings. The picture showing the nebulae required a total exposure of thirteen hours and forty-four minutes.

Birds and Bicycles.

Are our British birds beginning like the British public, to appreciate the bicycle? I am inclined to think they are (writes Dr. Charles Plowright in Nature Notes). Certainly one catches many more glimpses of bird life when on the wheel than the uninitiated would expect. It seems as if both birds and wild animals have not the same fear of a cyclist that they have of an ordinary walking human being. The cyclist's approach is practically noiseless, and his image upon this retinae purely momentary, besides which he never carries a gun or a catapult, and is unaccompanied by a dog. It is by no means impossible, therefore, that these creatures should associate him with their less dangerous enemies. It is pretty generally accepted that rooks know when a man is carrying a gun, and it seems by no means impossible that birds should associate the peculiar mode of progression of the cyclist with safety. Be this as it may, they let you get much nearer them when you are cycling than when you are walking. The other evening we passed within a yard or two of a pair of partridges, which were squating on the grass by the roadside, without disturbing them. True, they had the "corner of their eyes" upon us, but they never stirred. Then again chaffinches, when they are feeding on the road, fly up and light on the nearest branch without troubling to go to any considerable distance, as they do when one is walking.

THROUGH THREE ZONES.

The Oregon's Voyage a Triumph for Any Ship and a Wonder for a Battleship.

Monday, May 9, the Oregon left Bahia, and on the second night out passed a fleet of vessels which she believed were the Spaniards. On May 14 the Spaniards were reported at Curacao, so it is hardly possible that the Oregon could have been near the enemy that night. With all lights out, however, she passed these vessels in the darkness, according to her orders, which were to "avoid all ships and make for home." She put into Barbados, flying a yellow quarantine flag to keep off inquisitive strangers, and within sixteen hours was off again, at full speed, making 420 miles in twenty-four hours. Upon receiving a dispatch announcing her arrival at Barbados, the secretary of the navy had given out to the nation that the great battleship was safe. Jupiter Lighthouse, on the sou heastern coast of Florida, was signaled on Tuesday, the 24th, and again reported the Oregon to Washington. Two days later she anchored at Sands Key, off Key West—safe at home, after the longest voyage ever made by a battleship. And what was her condition after her wonderful journey? Her officers reported: "All in good health; everything shipshape; no accidents; not even a hot journal." After a stay at Key West long enough to fling the coal into her bunkers, she joined the fleet. They were drawn up in a wide semi-circle, and she came sweeping into the midst of them at fifteen knots an hour, like a winner of a yacht race, cheered by all the Jack Tars! As the Chicago Times-Herald says, her voyage is "a triumph for any ship, and a wonder for a battleship." Over 15,000 miles without a mishap, and fifty-nine days at sea, "through two oceans and three zones," on the alert for an enemy during more than half the time—surely it is a marvelous record, and one not likely to be repeated. Do you know what it means? A battleship has fully seventy machines on board, run by 137 steam cylinders. She is an enormous fortress, crammed with delicate and complicated machinery. To build her, sail her, care for her and fight with her requires brains, skill, care, honesty, fortitude—In short, all the Christian and a few pagan virtues.

Photography in the Courts.

Photography is often called into court as a witness whose testimony can not be impeached. It is a detective of forged or disguised handwriting; for no matter how clever an imitation or alteration, the eye of the camera will search out, and the sensitive plate display, the fraud. A very important case, in which the entries in a document were in question, led to the building of what is probably the largest camera in the world. The bellows may be extended twenty-five feet, and is connected with a dark room, which also serves as a plate holder. The lens seems out of all proportion to the size of the camera, being but two inches in diameter, but its magnifying power is so great that letters one-fourth of an inch in height can be enlarged to seven and one-half feet and appear in their exact dimensions and without the slightest apparent distortion.—St. Nicholas.

THE RUSH FOR GOLD.

From the Times, Bluffs, Ill.

The rush of gold seekers to the Klondike brings thrilling memories to the "forty-niners" still alive, of the time when they girdled the continent or faced the terrors of the great American desert on the journey to the land of gold. These pioneers tell some experiences which should be heeded by gold seekers today. Constant exposure and faulty diet killed large numbers, while nearly all the survivors were afflicted with disease, many of them with rheumatism. Such a sufferer was Adam Vangundy, who now resides at Bluffs, Ill., where he has been justice of the peace and was the first president of the board of trustees. In a recent interview he said:

"A Forty-niner."

"I had been a sufferer of rheumatism for a number of years and the pain at times was very intense. I tried all the proprietary medicines I could think or hear of, but received no relief.

"I finally placed my case with several physicians and doctored with them for some time, but they failed to do me any good. Finally, with my hopes of relief nearly exhausted, I read an article regarding Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, which induced me to try them. I was anxious to get rid of the terrible disease, and bought two boxes of the pills. I began using them about March, 1897. After I had taken two boxes I was completely cured, and the pain has never returned. I think it is the best medicine I have ever taken, and am willing at any time to sign my name to any testimony setting forth its good merits."

(Signed) ADAM VANGUNDY.
