DISTINGUISHED HERD SIRE, GRAIN KING AND CHAMPION MULES!

Gregg Farms Mercury is the name of this famous Scotch shorthorn herd sire owned by Dr. S. A. Donahue of Sioux Falls, South Dakota, and winner of grand championships at the South Dakota State Fair and the Sioux Empire Fair. Gregg Farms Mercury also won reserve championships at the Iowa State Fair and the American Royal and was named best senior yearling at the International. Dr. Donahue uses BOVINOL Stock Spray with Methoxy-chlor as part of his program to give his champions the finest care.

He's noted for wheat and corn. Since 1938 Ray Bolomey of Frankford, Missouri has taken some 300 prizes with his corn and wheat, including two corn championships at the International Grain and Hay Show and many blue ribbons at Missouri and Iowa State Grain Shows. His 1950 wheat took the Missouri State prize. Power farming is important to Grain King Bolomey and appropriately he uses PERMALUBE Motor Oil for top quality lubrication and STANDARD RED CROWN Gasoline, the King-Size Gas Buy, for low cost power.

Mules are his hobby. Fine mules raised by J. E. Goffinet of Blue Mound, Illinois have taken 250 blue ribbons and 40 trophies in fairs in four states. With Mr. Goffinet, center, are W. M. Murphy, right, his partner, and L. D. Salisbury, his Standard Oil man. "Raising prize mules requires a lot of farm work," says Mr. Goffinet. "My Standard Oil man makes my job easier by regular deliveries of the dependable STANDARD RED CROWN Gasoline and Iso-Vis Motor Oil I need for all my equipment."

June's the time to check your home heating system

The end of the heating season is the time to check your equipment to be ready for instant operation when cold weather comes a few months from now.

The heart of your heating system is the oil BURNER. It has three vital parts, the motor, the fan, and the pump. All three should be maintained in top operating condition.

In addition, the atomizing nozzle should be inspected. If cleaning is necessary use a broom-straw or some other soft material as pictured. The strainer through which oil passes to the combustion chamber should be checked.

Now is the time to call on your heating service man for any needed repairs or adjustments.

For economical operation of space heaters, empty oil from the heater tank at the close of the heater season. Clean the oil strainer, then the burner bowl to remove any accumulation, as shown in photo. After cleaning the stove pipe wrap it in paper and store in a dry place.

If your space heater fails to function properly call your service man to check all operating parts.

Fill your storage tanks now. Whether you have an oil burner or space heater fill your tanks now for next fall. A full tank prevents damage due to condensation.

Order STANOLEX Furnace Oil, or STANDARD Heater Oil, as required.

Now is the ideal time to fill your storage tank. I can give you prompt delivery on your order.
