EDITH BERKMAN IS RELEASED

BOSTON—(F.P.)—Edith Berkman, who has been held for deportation for many months because of her textile strike activities, has been released.

She has been suffering from tuberculosis and her illness apparently was either aggravated seriously by her imprisonment or caused by it, since she was able to work hard and effectively for the National Textile Workers Union before she was jailed. Secretary of Labor William N. Doak, who has become nationally notorious for holding prisoners months on the chance he might be able to deport them eventually, had ordered Miss Berkman held since she led a textile strike in New England last spring. Every effort has been made by the International Labor Defense and the American Civil Liberties Union to bring about her release so that she might be taken care of by her friends, but to no avail until just before election. It is believed that constant exposure of Doak's record has caused a temporary softening of his bitter labor-hating attitude.

In the New England district he is ably seconded by Mrs. Anna C. M. Tillinghast, immigration commissioner, who makes no effort to conceal the fact she considers her job as a strike-breaking job. She told Prof. Colston E. Warne of Amherst College that she was only "jailing strike leaders" for deportation. Her tactics in the past have been to hold the leaders in jail until the strike was broken, then release them. But she and Doak became furious over the efforts to force Miss Berkman's release, and held her for months. Miss Berkman has been sent to a sanitarium to recover from the effects of the "Doak cure."

Baker Admits 'Great Drifting Mass' of Homeless Waifs

NEW YORK—(F.P.)—"One of the most disturbing by-products of the depression is the great drifting mass of human beings who are now roaming the highways and by-ways of our nation searching for a foothold somewhere," admits Newton D. Baker, chairman of the Welfare and Relief Mobilization, in making public a report on America's homeless children.

Picturing the transients as a new class of wanderers, the report goes on to describe various groups among them who have taken to the road since the depression, in the faint hope of finding work. "Whereas a considerable number are boys under 20 years of age," comments the report, "one finds also in their ranks expectant mothers, sick babies, young childless couples and grim-faced middle-aged men and women dislodged from lifetime jobs. They present a tremendous problem to the nation and to the communities through which they pass. Hitch-hiking, riding the rods, sleeping in missions, municipal lodges and temporary shelters, swelling breadlines everywhere, they are found in all parts of the country, and the question of how to deal with them effectively becomes a national one. Children who remember no home and have never been in school because their parents have been constantly on the move, are among this number, as well as others who because of unemployment have been uprooted from comfortable homes and schools where they were leading normal happy lives.

"Not only are the numbers of transients increasing each month," comments the report, "but their problem has become more acute and difficult because towns and cities are of Silver Bow, State of Montana, the following described real property, to-wit: Lot numbered Seven (7), in Block numbered Four (4) of the Marie Blanche Addition to the City of Butte, Silver Bow County, Montana, according to the official map and survey thereof now on file and of record in the office of the County Clerk and Recorder of Silver Bow County, Montana; and the tenements, hereditaments and appurtenances thereon.
