Pretty Bride Has Army and Navy Attendants

Dorothy May Morearty

Miss Dorothy Mae Morearty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. F. Morearty, will be a June bride, as her marriage to Mr. Martin J. Conboy will be solemnized Tuesday at St. Peter's church. A wedding breakfast will be served following the ceremony for 25 guests at the home of the bride's parents, and a large reception will be held that evening.

Both the army and navy will be represented by the wedding attendants for the ushers will be Lieutenant L. J. Conboy, brother of the bridegroom, of the U. S. navy, and Lieutenant Charles Morearty of the Fort Omaha balloon school, a brother of the bride. Miss Mary Conboy of Sterling, Ill., sister of the bridegroom, will be maid of honor, and Hilliard Morearty, brother of the bride will be best man. The little flower girls will be Miss Aileen Michaelson and Miss Corrine Morearty.

Cupid's Darts Strike Katherine Gould and Captain Robert Burns

One of the most interesting announcements of the season comes today, as Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Gould announce the engagement of their lovely daughter, Katherine, to Capt. Robert C. Burns, company M, 350th infantry. The wedding will take place June 29 in All Saints' church.

No invitations will be issued for the wedding, and there will be no announcements following. Miss Ruth Anderson will be the bride's only attendant.

Miss Gould, who is one of Omaha's fairest daughters, is a graduate of the Central High school, and also attended Penn Hall at Chambersburg, Pa.

Captain Burns is a member of one of Omaha's oldest and most prominent families. He is a son of the late Samuel Burns, and a brother of Mrs. Charles T. Kountze and Mrs. Osmond Eastman. Captain Burns is a graduate of the Central High school, later attending Harvard. He received his commission at the first officers' training camp at Fort Snelling and has been stationed at Camp Dodge for several months.

The announcement does not come as a surprise to the friends of the couple, for the attentions of the young officer have been very marked for some time. Gabby Detyales rumored the engagement some time ago, and prophesied the wedding date of this pretty girl and one of Omaha's most eligible bachelors was not far distant.

MISS KATHERINE GOULD.

the beaver of 1855 or '60, with bell-shaped crown and broad up-curling brim. It was presented to him at a banquet two years ago by Representative Joseph G. Cannon of Illinois, and Representative William Kent of California (now out of congress), according to the engraving inside. Mr. Clark always wears this to the ball games. The speaker rose several times during the game and stepped over to the president's box and exchanged some bright remarks, probably witty ones, too, for they and the vice president had good laughs over them. Miss Mabel Boardman of the Red Cross, who had only been back from France 48 hours, occupied a box with her mother and sister and held a regular little court of her own.

Miss Hitchcock Maid of Honor.

Miss Ruth Hitchcock, daughter of the senator from Omaha, was maid of honor this afternoon at the wedding of Miss Margaret McChord, daughter of the Interstate Commerce commissioner, and Lieut. George LeRoy Boyle of the aviation service of the United States, who carried the first aero mail out of Washington a few weeks ago. They were married at 5 o'clock this afternoon at the Willard, where the McChords have lived for years. Miss Hitchcock gave a lovely little picture party with supper in the woods, for the bridal party on Monday evening of this week. The whole party was entertained at dinner last evening by the former treasurer general of Persia and Mrs. Morgan Shuster. Mrs. D. C. Stapleton is leaving next week for a visit in the country and will then go down to Atlantic City for the remainder of the summer or the greater part of it. Mr. Stapleton hopes to sail from Panama this week for home, after his trip to South America. Capt. Charles Hamilton, nephew of Mrs. Stapleton, is still with her in the Washington home.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Penfield were among the guests at dinner of Mrs. F. B. Moran on Monday evening given in honor of the Japanese ambassador and Viscountess Ishii, at the Chevy Chase club. There were 30 guests seated upon the picturesque porch of the famous club. Mr. and Mrs. Penfield had just returned from a motor trip to White Sulphur Springs, and are leaving in a few days for a similar trip to Atlantic City. Mrs. Penfield's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bacon of Omaha, arrived here recently, having made the trip from Omaha by motor.

The knitting class of the Nebraska Women's Washington club knits on diligently, meeting every other Monday night in the home of Senator and Mrs. George W. Norris in Cleveland park. The club give the young women from Nebraska, here for war work, a pleasant excursion this afternoon, their first Saturday half holiday. They went to Mt. Vernon, the home of Washington, by boat, roamed over the grounds as long as they like, and had supper on the boat returning.

Miss Sheely of Hastings, Neb., is one of the latest arrivals from the state to take up work for the government here during the war.

Co-Operative Grocery Store For Postoffice Employees

Mrs. Albert Sidney Burleson, wife of the postmaster general, who conducts her war work mainly in co-operation with the employees of the Postoffice department and the wives of its officials, has been instrumental in establishing a co-operative grocery store, which, according to the organizers, has gone a long way toward helping the clerks meet the high cost of living.

This store is conducted on a strictly business basis. Membership costs $1 a year, and a charge of 5 per cent is made on purchases to cover expenses. The saving by wholesale purchase and sale of goods is estimated at 20 per cent. None but employees of the Postoffice department may become members of its co-operative store. Purchase tickets cost $1 and $5 each. A $1 ticket is good for 95 cents' worth of commodities; a $5 ticket purchases $4.50 worth.

Children's Bureau Needs More Employes

Owing to the constantly enlarging activities of the children's bureau, Department of Labor, due to war conditions and a nation-wide campaign to reduce infant mortality and for child welfare generally, the United States civil service commission has been asked to conduct examinations for assistant inspectors, special agents, and research assistants. Both men and women are eligible for these positions.

Assistant inspectors receive entrance salaries of from $1,200 to $1,680 a year, their duties being to inspect factories, mills, workshops, canneries, mines, and mills and to aid in the enforcement of the federal child labor law. Examinations will be held July 10 and for the other vacancies July 11 and 12.

Suffragists Ask Funds to Continue Fight on Anti-Suff Petitions

Good suffragists of Omaha are working to raise $5,000 to continue the prosecution of the suffrage referendum case, now in progress in the county court.

Half of the sum has been subscribed. John L. Kennedy is chairman of the committee now at work. Letters have been sent to hundreds of Omahans. The expense involved in securing witnesses and conducting the work is about $150 a day.

The purpose of the letter is explained in the following extract: "This letter asks you to give money for a fight for fundamental democracy at home, for the preservation of the referendum law, and the purity of the ballot, as well as for woman suffrage; and to defeat forgery, ignorance and misrepresentations made by people interested in bad government."

Although 80 witnesses a day are subpoenaed, not more than 25 per cent of the signers of the petition can be located. The hearing daily shows examples of forged signatures, names subscribed without witnesses and many secured by misrepresentation, according to the suffragists.

Following are the heads of teams at work on the money raising campaign:

F. D. Wead, F. M. Gunther, Dr. R. F. Leavens, Mrs. Charles Russell, Mrs. George A. Joslyn, R. B. Howell, Miss Eunice Stebbins, A. W. Carpenter, C. F. Harris, John W. Robbins, Mrs. Harold Gifford, W. F. Baxter, W. T. Graham, Mrs. R. B. Howell, C. S. Hayward, C. S. Stebbins and Mrs. Fred Carey.

Washington Society

From Washington Bureau.
1811 G. Street.

A FEW days of great heat will change the most important plans in Washington. This week there was almost an exodus of prominent people to the mountains, that locality being more popular just now than the sea-shore, thanks to the enterprise of German U-boats and possible airplanes being sent out from on board.

The secretary of the treasury and Mrs. McAdoo are already established at the White Sulphur, save for the trips they are making recently, for the first time the secretary's oldest daughter Mrs. Martin, who became the wife last Saturday of Clayton Platt, jr., of Philadelphia, and that of last Wednesday of Ray Baker, director of the mint, and Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, which took place at Lenox, Mass., both of which Secretary and Mrs. McAdoo attended.

There will probably be no summer White House established this year, as there has been in former seasons "before the war." The president and Mrs. Wilson will rely upon motor trips, probably frequently to the White Sulphur.

The ball game for the benefit of the war fund of the Women's Congressional club, played last Saturday afternoon by a team from the democratic side of the house of representatives against a team from the republican side. Sometimes a good hit was made, and once or twice a good run, which bore evidence of past experience on the diamond, but for the most part the men (in horse lingo) were "soft," their clothes didn't fit and they were "some too fat, and some too lean" to be entirely fit for the work in hand. Just the same it was a great occasion, with the president and Mrs. Wilson, Miss Margaret Wilson and Miss Bolling, the vice president and Mrs. Marshall, and Speaker Champ Clark with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James Thomson, in a little group in the center of the mammoth grand stand, giving encouragement mainly to the democratic side. Just which side, wh. the women in the grand stand knew, but they did know that a large sum was realized with which they could purchase materials to continue their philanthropic and patriotic work.

Ball Game for War Fund.

The Nebraska women, wives and mothers of the members of the delegation from that state, were all present, except perhaps Mrs. Hitchcock, who is ill much of the time, and they sold tickets for days preceding the game. They turned in over $600 from their sales, which was about the best record made by any delegation, even larger ones. The presidential party were all in white that afternoon except for the president's black coat. Otherwise he wore white, even to the daisy in his button-hole. Veils were conspicuous in the party. Mrs. Wilson wearing, with her white cloth suit and broad brimmed white hat trimmed with white flowers, a delectable French blue veil of tulle, about the hat and over her face. It was fastened at the back and brought around to the front and fastened at the corsage in a great soft bow, the blue being most becoming to her. She sat throughout the game and knitted with short ivory needles and white wool. She has mastered the art of knitting without watching, and never lost a funny point in the game. Miss Margaret Wilson, in a long white coat, wore on her head merely a turban band of white, with no crown other than her own pretty light hair, and a large square white chiffon veil thrown evenly over the head, and the point in front thrown back again over the head, making a graceful arrangement of the four points of the veil flowing over the shoulders. Speaker Clark wore his famous fawn-colored beaver, fashioned after the style of
