Some Basin Mummies wearing a silver "mournful chain" and earrings copied after those worn by a queen of Egypt.

On the Left—Miss Billie Burke's interest in ancient Egyptian style is revealed in her modern dancing costume.

Above—An Egyptian woman's costume, photographed on no longer Paseo or London or dress token was ever used in that Valley of the Tomb, where Mummies were said to have been shooting to light such wealth of Egyptian art in the form of jewelry.

Many ancient Egyptian tombs were left because the Egyptians had a strange belief in life after death, and had left so many tombs in such a state of beauty that the ancient tombs formed a sort of religious art in the eyes of the world.

A great deal of research has been done in this connection, and many of the tombs have been opened, and the jewelry and other objects found in them have been examined and studied.

One of the most interesting objects found in these tombs was a necklace, which was made of gold and precious stones, and was worn by the queen of Egypt.

The necklace was made of gold and had a charm on it, which was thought to bring good luck to the wearer.

It was believed that the necklace was a symbol of the sun and had the power to bring good fortune to the wearer.

The necklace was made in the shape of a sun, and was thought to have the power to bring good luck to the wearer.

The necklace was a symbol of the sun and had the power to bring good fortune to the wearer.

The necklace was made of gold and precious stones, and was worn by the queen of Egypt.

The necklace was a symbol of the sun and had the power to bring good fortune to the wearer.

The necklace was made in the shape of a sun, and was thought to have the power to bring good luck to the wearer.

The necklace was a symbol of the sun and had the power to bring good fortune to the wearer.

The necklace was made in the shape of a sun, and was thought to have the power to bring good luck to the wearer.

The necklace was a symbol of the sun and had the power to bring good fortune to the wearer.