

CONDUCTOR GETS $30,000 VERDICT

E. P. Wright, Hurt While Fixing Trolley on Top of Car, Secures Record Amount.

MORE THAN HE FIRST ASKED

Edgar P. Wright, former street car conductor, who sued the street railway company for damages, alleging that his back had been crippled in an accident, was awarded a verdict of $30,000 by a jury in Judge Lee's district court.

Sutton, McKensie and Cox, the plaintiff's attorneys, originally sued for only $5,000, but during the trial amended their petition by asking for $30,000 more.

Wright alleged that he sustained a shock which threw him to the ground, when his head came in contact with a feed wire while he was standing on the roof of a street car, attempting to bring the trolley wheel in contact with the wire.
