

UNIONISTS GAIN EIGHTEEN

First Round in Fight for Control of Parliament Not Decisive.

LIBERALS WILL PROBABLY WIN

Opposition Expected to Gain Twenty-Nine Seats Yesterday—Majorities of Elected Candidates Are Greatly Reduced.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—At the close of the general elections today the standing of the various parties is as follows:—

Unionists, 42; liberals, 37; laborites, 6; nationalists, 5; unionist gains, 18; liberal gains, 3; labor gains over liberals, 1; no change, 2.

Of the twelve seats contested in London the liberals hold seven, the unionists, five, three of the latter being gains in North Lambeth, Hutton and Fulham.

In the provinces the unionists gained Southwest Manchester, Stalybridge, Salisbury, Rochester, Burnley, two seats in Devonport, Cambridge, Yarmouth, Gloucester, Wolverhampton West and South, Wednesday night two seats in Bath.

The liberals won Manchester, Northwest Darlington and Grimsby. The labor gain was in East Manchester.

First Round Not Decisive.

The first engagement in the fight for tariff reform, a great navy and the supremacy of the lords as against free trade, reform of the House of Lords and Home rule ended tonight with another party in a commanding position. The results of the polling today tend to confirm the forecast that the liberals will retain control of the government with a greatly reduced majority.

The unionists have gained an encouraging number of seats, although less than the twenty-nine which they expected to take away from the liberals out of the seventy-four balloted for.

The popular vote goes strongly against the liberals. The members of that party who hold seats won them today by majorities ranging from 30 to 90 per cent below their majorities in 1906, except in a few boroughs where special conditions figured in the campaign.

Sweeping Change in London.

In Manchester unionists increased their votes, for while the liberals still have five of the six seats, the liberal majorities were decreased nearly 9,000.

The most sweeping change in London was in Fulham borough, where the middle class population went enthusiastically for tariff reform, giving W. Hayes Fisher, the unionist candidate, a majority of 2,000 in this borough. In St. Giles the election seat went to a liberal by 600.

Devonport, where the big navy issue was predominant, wiped out the liberal majority of 1,500 and returned two unionists by 590. Sir J. Jackson and Sir C. Kinloch Cooke, Sir Henry Norman, the liberal journalist, who is well known in America and who recently was appointed assistant postmaster general, was beaten at Wolverhampton South by a small majority. In order to retain his place in the cabinet he will be nominated for another borough.

Astor and Durand Beaten.

Waldorf Astor and Sir H. Mortimer Durand, the former ambassador to the United States, who contested the two Plymouth seats as unionists, were defeated but cut down that city's liberal majority from 2,807 in 1906 to 94.

Davidson Daker, a promoter and at one time conspicuous in Wall street, running the unionist ticket turned out J. H. Seaverns, a liberal and former American from his seat for the Brighthelm division of Lambeth.

W. Joynton-Hicks, the unionist who beat Winston Spencer Churchill in the Manchester bye election of 1906 by 429 votes loses his seat to Sir G. Kemp, liberal, by 28. The Rt. Hon. G. Windham, who will be governor general of Canada if the unionists take on the government, carried his seat by a slightly increased majority.

The liberals took away a thousand votes from Sir Gilbert Fisher in Ravensden district, but he retains his seat as a unionist. The famous barrister, Rufus S. Isaacs, keeps leading for the liberals by a small majority, but Russell, a prominent ship owner whose face was familiar at the recent peace conference, loses Gloucester to the unionist, H. Terrell. J. T. Lincoln, liberal, ousted Sir Eric Forster, running the unionist ticket, by 20 votes, while Premier Asquith's brother-in-law, Sir E. Tennant, lost his seat.

Attack on Chancellor.

The most exciting scenes of the campaign occurred at Grimsby, where a menacing crowd threatened David Lloyd George, chancellor of the exchequer, compelling him to flee from a hall where he had been speaking, under police protection, much as he was driven from a pro-Boer meeting at Birmingham during the South African war, when he made his escape disguised in a policeman's uniform.

Part of the provocation for the hostility shown towards him was caused by the chancellor's unusual course in addressing the voters on polling day, which has never obtained before in England, and which is considered by many to be unconstitutional. The chancellor's speech included a prediction of disaster to the German fleet if it fought the British. Referring to the inability of the British navy, he declared:

"If the German fleet in a moment of madness ever attacked Great Britain it would be at the bottom of the German ocean in a very few hours."

A big crowd waited outside the hall, and when the chancellor of the exchequer appeared raised shouts of "Traitor!" "Pro-Boer!"

The chancellor retreated within the building and a cordon of police was drawn up to keep back the crowd. The chief constable, with an escort of police, conducted Mr. Lloyd-George out of the back door and the party retreated a quarter of a mile along the railroad, where a small station was used as a refuge. An automobile was telephoned for, and in the meantime the chancellor busied himself in writing letters. When the motor arrived he drove into town by a circuitous route.

Grimsby furnished a great surprise, for it shifted 2,000 votes and a seat for the unionist to the liberal column, T. E. Bwing defeating Sir G. Doughty, one of the foremost unionist orators.

The streets in the center of London were almost impassable after the dinner hour from cheers and throngs awaiting in from the suburbs to get the election returns. The newspaper offices on Fleet street were the party magnets. Many screens were erected on street corners on which the results were bulletined.

Reports were read at the theaters and music halls to big audiences, but compared with election night in American cities the occasion was tame and subdued. A landslide in either direction, however, would have provoked lively scenes and many fights.

Affairs at South Omaha

P. J. Trainor Becomes Candidate for Mayor of City.

URGED BY MEETING OF FRIENDS

Trade Excursionists Return from Trip Throughout Western States—Swedish Home Prospering by Investments.

P. J. Trainor consented to file for the nomination for the office of mayor last night at a meeting held by thirty or more men of this city who have been most prominent in political circles during past campaigns. Mr. Trainor was not present at the meeting until a delegation consisting of H. C. Murphy, Lew Etter and J. B. Watkins was appointed to go after and bring him in.

Previous to this the meeting organized by electing Senator C. Gibson chairman. A motion was made by George Johnson that "it be the sense of this meeting that P. J. Trainor be requested to become a candidate for the office of mayor and that he have the hearty and undivided support of all present. In discussion of the motion nearly every man of the thirty or more present spoke in favor of the proposition. Speeches were made by Jay Laverty, J. B. Watkins, L. C. Gibson, W. P. Adkins, Fred Smith, George Johnson, Swan Larson, H. C. Murphy, Lew Etter, John Urbanek, George Roberts, J. C. Trouton, E. L. Gustafson and many others.

All speeches were of the same tenor, namely, that Mr. Trainor had the qualities which would get votes. Cognizance was taken of the fact that normally South Omaha is democratic by 600 majority and it is only when a man can be found who will be able to exceed the vote of his own party that there is hope for victory. This has been done in several campaigns in South Omaha. None of the speakers failed to express the warmest friendship and respect for the announced candidate, Otto Leptin, but all declared it was their belief Trainor had a better chance to win.

Trainor Accepts. In the midst of this discussion P. J. Trainor was sent for, and arrived in time for the chairman to state the question for the election night with a speech full of additional compliments to Mr. Trainor, and put the motion by calling a rising vote. The vote was unanimous and Mr. Trainor made a short speech in acceptance of the request and promised to file for the office at the beginning of the week. He made a request that the meeting be adjourned to a date to be determined by the other officers to be induced to file.

This work the assembly agreed to undertake at an early date. The meeting held was impromptu in character and most of the number were seen last evening by the prime movers and invited to come in and express an opinion.

Trade Excursionists Return. Twenty-two South Omaha stockmen and commission men returned Friday from a trip through the west in the interests of the South Omaha market. In the tour the Wyoming Wool Growers' association at Cheyenne was visited. From that point the tour was extended to Utah where the National Wool Growers were in session at Ogden. Sunday, January 9, was spent at Salt Lake City. The early part of last week was spent at Denver at the American National Stock Breeders' association and the National Stock show. The trip was largely among friends of the South Omaha market and themes of interest and good feeling were the point of discussion.

The great cause of anxiety in the west this winter is the severity of the season and the deep snows over a large portion of the sheep and cattle ranges. The conditions were worst in Wyoming, but far less in Utah and the great basins country. Secretary A. F. Strickland of the Livestock exchange headed the South Omaha delegation and he declared the trip was likely to bear more fruit in the increased friendly relations in the west than any previous excursion.

Swedish Home Gaining Favor. The Swedish Building association, an association of the Swedish residents of Omaha and vicinity for the purpose of building a "Swedish Home," held its annual stockholders' meeting January 8. The secretary and treasurer's report for the year showed an increase of 87 per cent in the funds collected. Considerable of the increase arose from careful and paying investments. The building directors were re-elected for a term of three years. J. A. Anderson was elected to fill a vacancy for the term of one year. The board of directors organized January 13, and the following executive officers were elected. John Larson, president; N. P. Swanson, vice president; Albert Peterson, secretary; August Weidner, treasurer.

The board of directors has issued a call on behalf of the "home" to all Swedish-Americans requesting them to take shares in the stock.

President—Frank L. Weaver, Secretary—Jacob L. Kaley, Treasurer—Jacob L. Kaley, Executive Council—M. A. Hall, John A. Ryan, C. E. Foster, C. G. McDonald and Henry Maxwell.

These were elected officers of the Omaha bar association at its annual meeting held at Commercial club rooms last night, attended by about fifty members of the Omaha bar and presided over by President Arthur Wakeley.

The report of the treasurer showed the receipts during the year to have been $24.74, expenditures $19.44, leaving a balance on hand of $5.30. Members in good standing number forty-nine.

The feature of the evening was an address by Willard Eddy upon the subject of "Patent Laws." At the outset he said that while the trusts were a bad thing in their way, and should be broken up as if their cards were to be somewhat clipped, there was one form of monopoly not thoroughly understood—the patent laws, a subject of interest to every lawyer. "There is a patent issued to some Nebraska for every working day of the year," said Mr. Eddy, "but most of these patents are issued elsewhere throughout the country. It frequently occurs that great interests are involved in some patents, while many others are worthless."

He spoke of the enormous value of some patents, notably the cotton gin, the reaper, and the telephone and telegraph. All patents, he held, were subject to more or less litigation, and cited as one instance an automobile patent, the record of litigation of which comprised thirty-six large octavo volumes. He then went into the early history of patents and patent laws, showing that the first formal patent law enacted in the United States was in 1790. He showed also that 6,000 practitioners were registered to practice before the United States patent office. He deprecated the red tape that is woven about all patent procedure. He before the house with a speech full of invective and a patent, the latter being the legal grant and right to receive a benefit from an invention. He told that a patent issued for a thing not an invention was void, and went into some length describing the real and legal meaning of an invention.

His address was extended to Mr. Eddy for his address, following which the meeting adjourned to enjoy a light luncheon prepared by the entertainment committee.

Back to Judiciary Committee. WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The fight between two committees over the jurisdiction of the measure proposing a constitutional amendment to change the date of the presidential inauguration from March 4 to Thursday in April resulted today in the house referring the matter back to the judiciary committee, which had reported it. The action was a temporary defeat of the advocates of the Henry resolution, but Mr. Henry later announced that an effort would be made to reach an understanding with Chairman Gaines of the committee on election of president and vice president, which had reported an almost identical measure, and that the judiciary committee would take up the Henry resolution and report it back to the house within ten days. The battle was fought in a confusion of parliamentary tactics.

The house received the report of the territorial committee recommending statehood for New Mexico and Arizona, and Chairman Tawney of the appropriations committee announced that he would try to bring up the urgent deficiency appropriation bill next Monday. A number of members on the late United States Senator Shoup of Idaho the house passed a concurrent resolution accepting the Shoup status just placed in Statuary hall of its capital. The senate was not in session.
