That night Pan tried to rub the man who takes care of the team against the stall, and Puss when fed her oats, with her nose scattered them all over the stall, and had a look as though she was wondering what a divorce would cost.

The moral of all this story is that if in these days men hesitate to go walking on narrow sidewalks with their wives, or if they are cross at dinner after the wife has been out in the afternoon, perhaps it does not come from inherent meanness, but from an aggravation of circumstances over which the poor devil has no control.—Goodwin's Weekly.

Don't go "Lumbering" along Like an "Old Ox Wagon!"

Quit "Lumbering," and BUY LUMBER. You need a Snugger House, or, if you have a good house, you need a Barn, Shed or Chicken House. We've got the Material!—You've got the MONEY, —or at least we hope you have. Let's SWAP! We'll make you an even trade—Dollar for Dollar in value, and Nobody Harmed.

Come and see us, and talk it over.

BOOTS AND MEN.

Boots have soles; so have men.
Boots sometimes get tight, so do men.
Poor boots are run over; so is a poor boot.
A boot will shine if polished; so will a man.
A boot to get on needs a pull; so does a man.
Some boots have red tops; so some men.
Some boots are imitation calf; so are some men.
Boots are tanned; so are men, in their youth.
Some boots can't stand water; there was some men.
When a boot is well soaked it is a hard case; so is a man.
A boot when old gets wrinkled and hard; so does a man.
A boot to be of much account must have a mate; so must a man.
A boot well heated always feels comfortable; so does a man.—Selected.

hitched them up on Sunday morning, he tied the derby on Pan. He pawed the ground in admiration of himself and gratitude to his owner. He fastened the lady's hat to the head stall of Puss, making holes through the hat for her ears, and no lady that attended church on Easter was prouder of her top-adornment than was Puss.

When the owner was ready, he got into the buggy and started out for his spin. Puss is a few pounds heavier than Pan, and not quite so high of head, and so she is worked on the off side. They had gone but a little way until the rim of Puss' hat struck Pan right under the ear. He was surprised, but thought it was an accident.

When out on the drive the driver tightened the reins and chirruped, and they started on a 2:27 gait. Puss always had a way of shaking her head when she was at full speed, and with every shake she would hit Pan with the rim of her hat. He bore it a good while in silence, as he thought it was one of Puss' ways of making a joke.

But at last it became irksome to him, and he remonstrated by lopping his ears. But that did not do any good. The tapping of the rim of the hat came with the regular precision of her step, until finally Pan, for the first time in his life, grew angry and made a savage lunge at Puss.

She continued through the drive and the owner admitted to his wife that he never had seen those horses act that way before. When they reached home and the harness was removed Pan was still angry, and he let go both feet into the ribs of Puss, something he had never been guilty of before in the world, and Puss struck Pan a
