AUGUST.

Last year,
Alack and alas!
Beverly, Mass.
And Bill on the flat
Of his back in the grass
Sounding the depths
Of the opaline sky
And watching the clouds
Floating dreamily by.
Last year,
Alack and alas!
Beverly, Mass.
This year,
Sagamore Hill,
Strenuous still,
And no one complaining
For want of a thrill,
Shindy and sass
Just as certain as fate—
Beverly, Mass.,
Can dream early or late,
Snore as it pleases
And snooze as it will—
This year,
Sagamore Hill.

Of August it may first be said, its name is from Augustus, whom men likened unto Ted, perhaps without injustice. He made the world go round about as many times a minute, and the news was always dull without the great Augustus in it.

He had his Avianias Club for liars and for fakers, and he loved to sail his little tub among the Roman breakers. He counted peace a sort of plague, and never did pursue it, but let it rally at The Hague, and you couldn't beat him to it.

He preached about the same old things that Teddy has been preaching, and most of Rome's awakenings resulted from his teaching. He battled hotly for the right, and valiantly imbued it, and the stork could not attempt to light but what he up and shooed it.

There was however, one affair to tell which is to fattle, and that was where this Roman bear was coming in from battle. He had, of course, put everything opposing him to slumber, and Rome awaited him to sign some laudatory number.

But here the parrallel desists. Augustus said them, 'No, sir!' and when he entered with his fists it might have been the grocer for all the greeting that he got from that admiring chorus, the which desire, of course, was not a bit like Theodoros.

But howsoever, when he died the month that loves to grill us was being written far and wide the season of Sextilus. They wanted to commemorate the hot time he prestented the nation with, at any rate, so August was invented.

The dog days will resume again,
And the men who voted water
With the whether down to eight or ten
Below will grow the hotter
With wishing that he had foreseen
The season hot and stewing,
And anthing but a choice between
Pink lemonade and bluing.

It will not strike him, we're afraid, as when the clod was stinging, and up and down the wind-swept street the icicles were clinging. There's nothing like a dry parade, the shonts of Halleluliah and the children skilfully arrayed for what you want to fool you.

It's very easy to forget there's such a thing as Summer, or such a quantity as sweat, what time the busy drummer is rub-a-dubbing up the street a' million bumps a minute, and the line sweeps by with rhythmic feet and the little shavers in it.

It somehow makes it seem that booze is only fit for motors, and in the scuffle that ensues not very many voters bethink them that a chance remains that milk won't give them gristle to last when August bo's their brains and their ears begin to whistle.

A crafty temperance is that contriving its elections when Boras is at the bat in these disputed sections. There is a time for everything, to labor and to potter, and one to sit way back and sing inaudibly for water.

At any rat, the world will adin
With very small pretensions,
And the Fall election will begin
To clamor for attention.
The next few weeks will fire the gun
Repeatedly and oftly,
And a lot of folks begin to run
For office very softly.

The bold insurgent will have polled the principal chautauquas and will by that time have been fold how far discreet his balk was, or if to follow his attack with further demonstration, or quietly to tip-toe back upon the reservation.

The hopeful Democrat will tool this way and that way training, and hope to have us as a rule have none of their explaining. He'll carefully trim up his wicks and get his pump pulsating, and pass the grand stand every six or seven seconds waiting.

There'll be some dust put up, it seems, when this exent gets going, and some things starting and the seams that wanted proper sewing. No wonder Roosevelt came back, and nowadays his gun is rusting in the shooting rack, when here is where the fun is.

The time of green and growing things will near its termination, and the song the thrashers sweetly sing will come with moderation. We'll sort o' think of autumn time, the hunter and the nutter, and the fishing hole will wear a slime thick as apple butter

And then September will return in good autumnal fashion, And the poet fall upon his harp in something of a passion.

IT SERVED THE PURPOSE.

The Uniontown Ciceroe is responsible for this. A prominent young doctor took his best girl to the opera house not long since. The curtain was late in rising and the young lady complained of feeling faint. The doctor smiled sweetly upon her, took something out of his vest pocket and whispered to her to keep the "tablet" in her mouth but not to swallow it. She shyly placed it on her tongue and rolled it over and over, but it would not dis-sove: she felt better however. When the show was over she slipped the tablet in her glove, being quite curious to examine at home this tasteless indissoluble little substance which had given her so much relief in the opera house. When alone in her room she pulled off her glove and out came a—pants button.

MANLESS PANTS.

"What makes a horse act naughty when he sees an auto?" one little girl asked. "It's this way" replied the other. "Horses is used to seein' other horses pullin' rigs' and they don't know what to think 'em goin' along without a horse. I guess if you was to see pants walkin' down the street without a man in 'em you'd be scared too."—Ex.,

THE NEW MEXICO FAIR.

The 30th Annual New Mexico Fair, which is also the First State Exposition, is now expected to take the form of a great big Statehood celebration, the first to be participated in by the people of the whole state. The people realize the importance of making the State Fair a splendid exhibition of the new state's resources, for the country will be watching the show this year, and there will be hundreds of eastern men here to see what we have. On the success and completeness of this fair largely depends the development of New Mexico's resources in the coming year.

Governor Mills shows an enthusiastic interest in the Fair, and in order to open the show, and see most of it, he will temporarily move the State Capital to Albuquerque during the Fair week. Everything is moving rapidly and smoothly toward the greatest exposition the Southwest ever had.
