TUCUMCARI NEWS
AND TUCUMCARI TIMES
VOL. XVI
TUCUMCARI, QUAY COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1917
NO. 4

NEWS REVIEW OF THE PAST WEEK

French Drive the Germans Back Toward the Border of Belgium by Prisoners and Guns.

SPLENDOR WORK BY AVIATORS

Aviators, Re-enforced by German Taxes, Open Effectively Against Harms—Twelve Handwritten in Riga 0.19

EDWARD PICKARD.

The Allied forces slaughter another of the most important successful attacks of the Western front since the battle of Amiens. After a barriers line was crossed, the French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans.

By EDWARD PICKARD.

Two of the most important success stories of the Allied forces against the German forces are the successful attacks of the Western front since the battle of Amiens. After a barriers line was crossed, the French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans.

By EDWARD PICKARD.

In the beginning of the battles, the French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans.

By EDWARD PICKARD.

In the beginning of the battles, the French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans.

By EDWARD PICKARD.

In the beginning of the battles, the French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans.

By EDWARD PICKARD.

In the beginning of the battles, the French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans.

By EDWARD PICKARD.

In the beginning of the battles, the French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans.

By EDWARD PICKARD.

In the beginning of the battles, the French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans.

By EDWARD PICKARD.

In the beginning of the battles, the French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans.

By EDWARD PICKARD.

In the beginning of the battles, the French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans.

By EDWARD PICKARD.

In the beginning of the battles, the French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans.

By EDWARD PICKARD.

In the beginning of the battles, the French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans.

By EDWARD PICKARD.

In the beginning of the battles, the French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans.

By EDWARD PICKARD.

In the beginning of the battles, the French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans.

By EDWARD PICKARD.

In the beginning of the battles, the French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans.

By EDWARD PICKARD.

In the beginning of the battles, the French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans.

By EDWARD PICKARD.

In the beginning of the battles, the French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans.

By EDWARD PICKARD.

In the beginning of the battles, the French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans.

By EDWARD PICKARD.

In the beginning of the battles, the French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans.

By EDWARD PICKARD.

In the beginning of the battles, the French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans.

By EDWARD PICKARD.

In the beginning of the battles, the French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans.

By EDWARD PICKARD.

In the beginning of the battles, the French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the Germans. The French aviators crossed over the border of Belgium and landed in territory held by the G