DOC CORNISH PLAYS GOOD BALL

Albuquerque Lad Pride of the Yale Freshmen Team; May Make Varsity Team Next Season; No Errors; Slugger.

Doc Cornish, who gained for himself an enviable reputation here in Albuquerque as a star football and baseball player at the local University, is making good with the Yale freshmen. Doc took all the honors recently in a game between the EM freshmen and Worcester academy. Doc, playing shortstop for the Yale freshmen, played an errorless game and to crown such an achievement he faced the pitcher three times, getting three hits, one a three-bagger and one a two-bagger, scored one run and with his three-bagger in the fifth drove in two men ahead of him. He would have scored himself had it not been for a little error by one of his teammates. The run scored by Doc was one of the two runs of the position.

The freshmen of Old Eli, although they lost the game to the Worcester slugs by the score of 4 to 2, are fond in their praise of the ability of Doc and predict that he will make the varsity team next year if he does not have a slump. His batting strength is admitted to be one of the essentials for Old Eli next year as many of the old men who have been on the team for more than a year will be leaving and the need for strong new ones will be greatly felt.

New York, May 1.—The decisive defeat of the "One Round" Hogan in his battle with Wolgast means the retirement of Hogan from the ring. The champion declared that after the fight he would never box again. "I am done with this boxing game. I was in perfect condition, and if Wolgast shipped me in such short order, I am convinced that I can never be champion. Wolgast has shown this time that he has the goods and can beat them all."

IDEAS ARE WORTH MONEY THERE

Denver, Colo., May 1.—Ideas are worth money. Develop them and we'll pay you for them," is the sentiment and substance of the latest edict sent out to its men by the Pennsylvania railroad. General Notice No. 2 just sent out from the office of the general superintendent of the Pennsylvania railroad at Buffalo states that the Buffalo and Albany Valley division plans to re-employ employees for suggestions which investigation may prove to be of sufficient value to warrant adoption.

The object of this unique method adopted by the Pennsylvania railroad is to develop in its employees habits of thoughtfulness, originality and initiative and thereby to secure greater efficiency from the men. All employees have always been free to make suggestions, but the company has tended to pay for valuable ideas received from men in the ranks and for under the new plan those employees not in charge of men are requested to submit suggestions for which they will be paid.

Everything has been done to facilitate the working of the scheme, and great latitude is allowed the men in that suggestions need not necessarily be confined to the immediate duties or department of the employee to whom a valuable idea occurs. General Notice No. 2 says: "An employee of one department may make suggestions for improvement in another department, branch or division of the service."

In outlining what the management is seeking in the way of ideas, the general notice has the following: "Suggestions must contain all which will improve efficiency of operation, increase methods of operation, be beneficial from economical standpoint, increase safety and convenience of passengers and patrons of our company, increase patronage, promote safety of employees, or in any way promote the interests of the company, whether pertaining to improved mechanism, better office practice or other features. This electric motor cost $100, had a tank, and the pump and motor cost $400.

The pump of the improved type pumps 100 gals. of water in 100 seconds and runs 100 gals. per minute, but it runs only 110 seconds per minute, but it runs only 110 seconds per minute, but it runs only 110 seconds per minute, but it runs only 110 seconds per minute.

The Churches

DR. SMART SPEAKS IN TEMPLE ALBERT

Dr. Robert Smart, prominent physician of this city, delivered the following address before the congregation of Temple Albert, in accordance with the movement of the National Society for the Prevention and Study of Tuberculosis which has been launched in Albuquerque.

The National Association for the Prevention and Study of Tuberculosis, mindful of the great devastation throughout the United States by this disease, has asked that thought and work should be given over to a discussion of this disease in all of the 299,000 churches throughout the United States.

The association wishes to concentrate the minds of the entire church-going population upon this subject at the same time. It is merely a case of united effort. We have all often seen a broken stick in the mud and the two strong horses unable to move it because each one tried to pull the other way. The horse will use all of its strength and all to the purpose, but the horse both of them never pull at the same time. So with the national society, and its powerful supporters, the local societies, while they are all working all of the time for the common cause, it is agreed that at this time a united effort be made to get the people to think and to think seriously, about the subject of consumption.

Even educated people have been misled by the fallacy of the disease. They are sure that even well read people who recognize that in this country 1,000,000 persons die annually of consumption. Hardly any of you can imagine a disease which it possible to die of, unless you are somewhat of a general reader of the press, which is a general reading of the press.

When a national epidemic occurs in which as many as 1,000,000 persons are killed it is a national epidemic. When 1,000,000 persons are killed each year in the United States by only one disease, 1,000,000 makes little impression upon the minds of most persons; but look at this figure in another way. If one annual army of consumption died could be mustered at the end of the year and stood shoulder to shoulder it would reach 30 miles. If this army should form ranks and march by, it would fill the industrial parade in Washington and you should undertake to stand by and view it. It would be necessary for you to be on your feet 1800 hours while it was passing. If you were to bury this dead in one continuous grave, jamming one coffin right up against the neck of the grave would reach from Albuquerque to Las Vegas; or if you would pile these coffins one on top of each other there would result 600 piles each one as high as the Washington monument. That is what tuberculosis of consumption means to the people of the United States every year. Out of every seven deaths from all causes one is due to consumption. Every horse, every cow, every pig and every sheep that dies has a certain monetary loss to its owner. Every man, woman or child that dies means a certain monetary loss to the state. This value increases up to the age of thirty-five when a man is supposed to be at his most useful age in life. At 25 years a life is estimated to be worth $5,000. The victims of tuberculosis all die at the period between 25 and 45 years of age when the estimated value of life is about $4,000. This represents a loss three-fold to the United States each year of about $300,000,000. How long would consumption thrive if it were possible for the cattle, or sheep industry to suffer a loss of six hundred million dollars? Not long. But because it merely happens to be man, the highest and most important animal and because man is free and not held as a chattel of some other man this loss is allowed to go on from year to year with no governmental organized effort to suppress it. If one child in a family were worth $10,000 in gold to its parents, and after the death of the child the parents actually lost $1,000 there would be very little difficulty in getting every father in this community to go to the council and demand the passage of ordinances and the proper provisions for their enforcement which would protect the lives of these children from preventable disease; but because each of our children would not be brought to us as a man or woman because the mother's love could not be measured in gold the father of these children, who has the power to make the laws for their protection, sits passively by, says no abolition to their menace from disease, from crime, from the care to the state, and declares his entire love to the passage of laws for the preservation of his young, fertile, or other community which he may possess which has a gold value attached to it.

This is true. Every man knows it; every man knows it; it is within his power to have proper legislation made for the protection of his home and family, but each one waits for the next to take the step.

It is within the power of man to protect himself from tuberculosis from the earth; to save every 150,000 persons in the prime of life, from an early death. Surely if this is possible, it is worth striving for; it is worth joining hands and making a united effort to accomplish.

 You may never be directly well, and so may never meet with your family, but remember it is your property which is keeping you well. There is hardly a week goes by that you are
