TINSLEY TELLS DRY FARMING METHODS

Agricultural Instructor Issues
Advice to Farmers of New Mexico

There yet remains in New Mexico a large area of virgin soil to be broken, and of this the greater part is what is generally called sod land although much of it bears at most a very light sod. For many years to come there will be a large amount of this virgin land to be broken each year, and for this reason the handling of sod land is a matter of much importance. For centuries the sod land in New Mexico has been beaten and compacted by dashing rains, and for many years has been trampled by cattle, sheep, and horses with the result that the surface has been packed so firmly that it is now almost water proof, as is shown by the large amount of water running off after the rains. This compact surface is also very favorable to evaporation, so that the land rapidly loses the little moisture that it absorbs. Because the water penetrates slowly, and evaporates quickly, sod land usually contains much less moisture than land which has been cultivated. Crops planted on sod land do not have a supply of moisture stored in the soil to draw on, so must depend on the moisture that falls during their growing season. For this reason crops on sod lands are uncertain, and one should not be discouraged when the yields are poor.

Methods of Breaking Sod.
There are so many methods of treating sod land that it is difficult to say which is the best, especially as so much depends on the teams and machinery at the disposal of the farmer. The subject may be roughly divided under two heads: early breaking and late breaking.
Under this head will be classed all breaking that is done several months before the ground is to be planted. The best time for the early breaking is during the summer as the grass and other vegetation will be full or mature and this, with the combined influence of the heat and moisture in the soil, will cause the sod to rot most rapidly. The loosening of the soil at this time, will also allow the rain to soak into the soil instead of running off. The loosened surface, provided that it is properly firmed, will act as a mulch and retain the moisture. The early loosening of the soil and the rapid decay of the vegetable matter favor changes in the soil which increase its fertility.
Depth of Plowing.
When land is broken early, it is safe to plow deeper than when it is broken late, because the soil will have time to settle firmly back against the bottom of the furrow and to establish capillary connection with the lower part of the soil, before the time of planting. The farmer need not fear that he will turn up unproductive soil by deep plowing for as a rule there is no marked difference in the productiveness of the upper and lower layers in the soils of New Mexico. There are practically no subsoils in New Mexico, using the term subsoil in the sense that is generally applied to it in the humid regions. Plow as deeply as possible. Twelve inches would not be too deep on light land if it could be done. Six to eight inches is as shallow as it should be done to call it deep breaking.

Deep breaking is one of the secrets of success in dry farming. It opens up a volume of soil sufficiently thick to catch and hold the heavy showers, and also provides room for the development of plant roots.

It is very important that the land be thoroughly turned, and the sod thrown to the bottom of the furrow. When the land is plowed, the surface should be partly firmed. It should not be worked down as fine as for a seed bed, but the larger clods should be broken up. If the surface were made too fine the land would crust, and also might not be sufficiently uneven to catch drifting snows. The partial firmed of the surface should be done at once, the best rule is to work down what has been plowed in the morning before going to dinner, and the afternoon plowing before going to supper. Never turn land and leave it rough to be firmed when breaking has been finished or to be weathered as in the humid region. Observations for the past three winters on land broken and left rough have shown quite conclusively that land so treated was as dry if not drier in spring than unbroken sod.

In early deep breaking, the subsoil packer may be run after the plow but the soil would probably settle without it and its use is not so essential as in the case of late breaking. The disc is probably the best tool for the partial firmed as it not only cuts up the clods but also packs the soil considerably. If a disc is not available, the ground should be gone over with a spike toothed drag harrow or with some form of drag. The land may be allowed to stand in this condition until spring, and then worked to a seed bed. The method of early deep breaking that has been described requires heavy teams and considerable labor but it will pay.

Where deep breaking is impossible the sod may be turned three inches or more, and allowed to lie over winter. This will be better than not breaking at all, provided the sod is not firmed. Where for any reason it is impossible to break the land early, much good may be accomplished by discing the sod, especially if it be double discing with the discs set to lap one half. In many cases this double discing will do about as much good as shallow breaking. It partly opens up the surface to let in water, and produces a partial mulch.

SUFFRAGETTES PLAN ACTIVE CAMPAIGN

They Have Rented a House at Washington and Will Lay Siege to Congress.

Washington, Jan. 21.—The National American Woman's Suffrage association has come to Washington prepared to present to Congress the biggest petition it has ever received—all in the cause of "votes for women." The association has provided itself with a permanent home at No. 1823 H street in the most fashionable section of the city.

Formal ceremonies of dedication have not yet been held, but within a few weeks the Rev. Anna Shaw, president of the association; Mrs. Rachael Foster Avery, vice president, and other officers of the national association will come over to Washington to see that the headquarters are opened auspiciously. In the mean time the house is being furnished, lecture rooms are being equipped and every preparation made for occupancy.

Thousands of signatures are being appended to this greatest of all petitions of the suffragettes, and with the patience of Job the association will wait to present it to the next Congress if the paper cannot be prepared in time for this session.

The House, which will be the permanent national home of the suffrage movement in this country, is a spacious one in H street northwest, with large airy rooms and smaller ones to be used as offices by members of the national board of association. Arrangements for its lease and equipment were carried on so quietly that few had any idea the suffrage bus was buzzing so near the heads of lawmakers up on Capital Hill.

One of the conspicuous members of the local organization is Mrs. Katherine Reed Balantyne, daughter of the late Speaker Reed, who is president of the local executive committee. Mrs. Balantyne was in Washington not long ago to petition Congress to give its support to the woman suffrage movement, but received little encouragement from the great number of men who were associated with her father during his term as presiding officer of the House.

THREE CENT FARE HAS CREATED BIG DEFICIT

Cleveland, O., Jan. 21.—Attorneys representing creditors of the Cleveland Railway company and the Municipal Traction company have asked Judge Taylor of the United States circuit court to issue an order directing the receiver of the railway properties to at once begin charging the rate of fare fixed by the original ordinance under which the lines are operated.

The motion in effect is that the rate of 5 cents cash fare or eleven tickets for 50 cents shall be charged on the old Cleveland electric lines and 3 cents on the Municipal Traction company lines instead of a flat 3-cent rate of fare now charged.

It is charged that since the receiver took charge a deficit of $125,000 has been created under 3-cent fare because of the efforts of the receivers to furnish adequate service to the public. Judge Taylor has taken the matter under advisement.

DR. T. FRANK LYNOTT

"I have a standing offer in this paper to send a free treatment to any sufferer from kidney trouble, bladder trouble or rheumatism who will send me their name and address. If you need it I urge you to take advantage of the offer. These diseases are my specialty. I have been successful with old and young. Many bed-wetting children owe their present good health to me; many old people who had enlarged prostate glands had to get up as many as ten times a night are now cured of too frequent desire to urinate; many men and women no longer suffer from pain in the back, terrible rheumatism, etc., since taking my remedies.

SEND FOR MY FREE TREATMENT

If you suffer from any form of kidney or bladder trouble or rheumatism, no matter how old you are or how long and severe you have had it, write me today describing your condition and let me send you a free treatment to show you I can cure you in your own home. I want to show you and your neighbor that I can and do cure these diseases. Address: DR. T. FRANK LYNOTT, 307 Occidental Bldg., Chicago.

Some Reasons Why

The C

Because The Citizen is a home paper. It is either delivered by carrier at the house or is carried home by the business man when his day's work is done and it STAYS THERE. A morning paper is usually carried down town by the head of the family and hurriedly read.

I

The Citizen is not read hurriedly, but thoroughly so that all advertisements receive their share of attention. It presents the store news a little ahead, giving the prospective purchaser time to plan a shopping tour for the next morning.

T

Wise advertisers patronize The Citizen because they know their advertisements are seen and read at the homes in the evening, and if they are offering something worthy of attention, their ad has accomplished its mission.

I

The Citizen has never given premiums to subscribers but is subscribed to and paid for on its news merits, showing that its subscribers have money with which to buy what they want from legitimate merchants. These are the people The Citizen invites to your store.

Z

The Citizen employs a man whose business it is to look after your advertising wants. He will write your copy if you wish, if not, he will see that your ads are "set up" to look their best and he will attend to them from day to day.

E

Are you advertising in The Citizen? Your competitors are, and are profiting by it. Do you think conservative business men are spending money where they are not getting results? Get in the swim and watch your business grow.
