FOR SALE—County Warrants.
PERRAULT & GALLES.

The Sierra Grande Press had a case of "pied" form last week.

One Kingston letter too late for publication this week.

June Fuller will rusticate with friends in the country till Monday.

Hillsboro can show down with any New Mexican town for the greatest number of young men, but—where are all of our young ladies?

We learn that Hopper Bros. have just arrived on their ranch, two miles south of town, with some fine thoroughbred cattle.

FOR SALE—A complete sawmill in good running order. For prices, terms etc., call on PERRAULT & GALLES, Hillsborough, N. M.

We never mentioned the name of the Black Range but once before and then only in a short complimentary notice on its general "make up."

Mrs. Rhodes, of Lake Valley, like every body else, has fallen so deeply in love with Hillsboro that she came over again Thursday and will remain over several days.

Col. Woodall, proprietor of the Sierra Grande Hotel No. 1 and J. E. Curren, editor of the Sierra Press, Lake Valley, were visitors at our office Monday evening.

The type manipulator of this layout is getting admirably over the sickness mentioned last week and the week previous. Nothing the matter now, only our big toe has the headache.

The citizens of the placer mines below Hillsboro should hold a meeting and give that camp an appropriate name. It is an old camp and will be a camp and a town for ages to come, and should have a name—and, a postoffice. We will take pleasure in doing anything we can toward getting that place a weekly, semi-weekly or tri-weekly mail. Give the town a name.

Judge W. H. Burke, of Albuquerque, was killed at the Union depot in that city last Monday evening, by a moving train. Deceased had been a resident of Albuquerque about four years, and was from Ottumwa, Iowa. He was probate clerk at the time of his death, and a man that stood high in the estimation of the people. The remains were shipped east for interment.

We would like to know who keeps the Albuquerque Journal so well posted on our mining affairs. In Thursday's Journal it stated "the Kingston smelter will start up to-day." This will be news for the people of Kingston, and in fact, for the whole country hereabouts. The Kingston smelter is making all possible haste toward starting up, which, from what we can learn, will be in about three weeks from this date. Various ores for smelting purposes are being delivered on the dump, so that when it does start, the fires will not go out for months to come.

If a stranger had seen the long ox and mule teams passing through our streets this week he might have arrived at the conclusion that we needed a railroad, but we don't. No, no railroad for us, thank you; not as long as we can raise an ancient or modern mule, or a longhorn, we will stick to home institutions; and should these fail us, we will fall back on the time enduring burro. If Lake Valley had not have been cursed with a railroad there would not have been 130 less men idly there to-day than there were last Tuesday.

June Fuller has been convicted of stealing from Uncle Sam's mail bags and will be sentenced to the penitentiary; although a packed grand jury failed to find a bill, which showed the dirty finger marks of Nicholas Galles and one Hopewell.—Deming Headlight.

June L. Fuller, the mail robber and natural thief was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary in Pennsylvania. It will be remembered that this muchly petted son took $800,00 which belonged to the Percha bank of Kingston, he was postmaster at Hillsboro. We presume he will lay aside his style and get down to work, something which will be very hard for him. "As we predicted," "the family circle" is no more, the mighty and great of Hillsboro have fallen. Deming Headlight.

I would not answer or take any notice of Alva C. Lowry's lies but for the reason that because my brother-in-law, Mr. W. E. Pratt, loaned him (Alva) $20 when he, (Alva) was dead broke in this town, and now he (Alva), seeing fit to throw dirt on the "family circle" of which Mr. Pratt is a member. I feel it my duty as a man to brand Alva C. Lowry, the editor of the Deming Headlight, as a liar, a dirty cur, a dog and a coward, for the articles above printed.
JUNE L. FULLER.

Stepping into the saloon of John Clary's Wednesday morning we had the pleasure of seeing one of the costliest and prettiest cabinet of ores we have ever seen in the west. The specimens embrace a large scope of our mineral producing country, while our home products form a very conspicuous part of the collection. One nugget of gold he has on exhibition is worth about $15, but has others of less value. Here can be seen some of the largest pieces of mica found in any country, which came from near Santa Fe; also brimstone from Las Vegas. It is a fine cabinet and well worth a visit.

About the grandest event that has taken place in Hillsboro in months and months,—months was what we said,—was the opening of the Parlor saloon last Saturday night by Mr. McDonald, the proprietor. The Parlor, as it is very appropriately named, had just received the finishing touches from the brush and exquisite taste of the artist, Mr. Rhodes, of Lake Valley, and in the reflection of the brilliant chandeliers a scene of dazzling beauty was presented. As early as 7 p. m. the crowd began to assemble and partake of the sparkling wines and liquors that were lavishly set forth by Mr. McDonald. Besides the magnificent supply of costly drinks, Havana cigars and palatable lunches were spread in oriental profusion on the counter and partaken of by the elated guests. It was after midnight when the last visitor quit the scenes of festivity and Mr. McDonald closed his doors and sought the quietude of rest. Everything passed off in good cheer and the best of feelings existed throughout the entire affair. Mr. McDonald has, indeed, one of the prettiest and pleasant public resorts in the county and is himself a capital good fellow who is possessed with a whole soul and evidently a gizzard too, for he is dead certain to do you good if you go to see him.

Mr. Webster, our gentlemanly postmaster, has caught the fever and is putting on metropolitan airs and will soon be in a brand new post office, which he is having built around on Hydrageriasubmur street or something of that kind. We haven't got names down to a fine point yet. Not much.

If our correspondents want names printed right, they should spell names plainly. It must be humiliating to a correspondent to see his neighbor John Smith's name printed "Bartholomew Nimrod."

Rev. J. R. Smith, at Marietta, Ga., recently sued a railroad of that state for services as preacher to convicts. The court threw the case aside on the ground that gospel is

From the Placers.

Rising almost in the center of the placer gold district, is Animas Peak, through which appears to run almost all the gold-bearing quartz leads of the district. The mountain is isolated from any other prominent peaks or mountains, and from it are connected with it by small gulches, run all the principal streams that have produced the placer gold, which have evidently been fed from the numerous quartz ledges in the vicinity.

Mr. R. Woolsey is at present at work upon a group of gold veins on the southern slope of the peak, several of which are proving very rich in the precious mineral.

In this connection I must speak of the numerous copper veins in this district. Notably the Copper King, owned by Mr. Jennison, and situated near the head of Grayback gulch. This mine has now on the dumps probably 500 tons of first class ore that will average from 35 to 50 per cent copper. The Copper King is one of the largest deposits of copper ore I have ever seen, and, owing to the ease with which the ore can be extracted, and the immense quantity near the surface, is destined to be a valuable piece of property.

Mr. Jennison is at present engaged in boring an artesian well near his residence on Grayback gulch in order to get a supply of water for running machinery. The well is already some fifty or sixty feet deep.

A prominent, and at the same time peculiar formation of this camp is that known Slap Jack hill, composed of a lime cement and gold-bearing gravel, in several of which latter heavy, coarse gold has been found. The hill is worked principally by tunnels and shafts, a number of which inclose it on all sides. These tunnels are all run in on a slight incline, thus giving ample evidence that what is now a round topped mound, was at one time a basin, filled in by the wash from the higher mountains surrounding it. All the little gullies and depressions running from and down the sides of Slap Jack hill have been worked, and in some instances have proved very rich.

All over placers can be found a substance having the appearance of slacked lime, yet nowhere can be found pure limestone. The quarry is, where did this lime cement come from, or did it once compose the summits of the mountains in the vicinity and has been decomposed by the elements and gradually filled up the basis?
Placers, March 24, 1885.

One or two of our high strung citizens have ornamented their homes with shade trees and posterity with glory by so doing. This was all done one day the past week. Hillsboro is quite ahead of most towns already in this highly commendable enterprise, but this is a work yet that could be very advantageously done for the town. We notice those trees transplanted the past week by Mr. Bundick and Mr. Pratt, at each of their residences, are pine, juniper and cedar. This is all well enough in its place, but we think the most thrifty and attractive shade tree is the cottonwood. This is more easily nurtured and matured, gives a larger shade and leaves out quickly. But this to every man's own liking, only let us see the avenues and streets of the coming city a labyrinth of majestic trees of some kind.

Sierra Grande Hotel No. 1, Lake Valley, has just received a thorough renovation and many noticeable attractions for the comfort of guests have been added. Col. Woodall has went to the expense of putting in new furniture for the rooms, office and dining hall, besides furnishing the ladies' parlor with new and superbly rich carpets, chairs, tables, etc. The Sierra Grande is the only two story building in the town by the lake, and ample room is afforded the public with downy beds and sheets of whiteness. The edibles furnished the tables are not behind any in the west, and for convincing proof of this you have only to give this popular house a call.

General Grant is sinking fast. Visitors are not admitted to his bedside.

Mr. Rhodes, of Lake Valley, has been doing Hillsboro again this week in the line of fancy house carpentering. Mr. Rhodes has made about $500 in a very short time in our town, and as he is not one of us he ought to be held up for half the money.
