The People Know

That the First State Bank of Las Cruces was looted and wrecked.

That the public record proves that Governor McDonald and his bank examiner knew in October, 1913, that its capital had been impaired over 80 per cent; and that in January, 1914, four months later, this impairment had increased to 150 per cent and that the bank was hopelessly insolvent.

That the Governor of New Mexico, and the bank examiner, his appointee, did nothing to protect the 600 depositors and the funds of the State Agricultural College.

That the sacred fruits of this school were used by McDonald's appointees to pay Democratic campaign debts of the election of 1911, in which McDonald was elected Governor.

The Wind From Maine.

A wind that's from the rocks and sea and scented by the pine Sweeps through the sycamores today, and where sequoias line The ranks of giant sentinels that guard the western slopes, The balsam of this briny breeze brings heavy hearts new hopes.

The mountains and the rivers cry the message that is Maine's To men whose pride was shattered, and their desperation wanes; Again their hearts are raised to look the future in the face For Maine has been the clarion that's heartening a race.

'Twas shame that sunk the souls of us to depths we never knew In days our flag was honored in the harbors where it flew, When nations paid us homage, for they knew our hands were white, Ere blood of our own countrymen had stained them like a blight.

And now again our songs we sing of deeds that we must do To make the dream that passed away come marvelously true; For the sturdy souls that breathe the pine have brought to life again The faith that fills a nation's heart that feels the wind from Maine.

Editorial Comments

If you had two dollars to invest would you trust it to the business sagacity of Josephus Daniels? Then, why let him handle the millions that are to be spent on the new navy?

Judging by the signs of War Department activity the Administration is cunningly arranging to bring the militiamen home just in time to enable them to vote for Mr. Hughes.

A train of thought on a one-track mind has to be composed of shuttle cars.

Three years ago Woodrow Wilson was explaining that hard times were psychological, but he isn't trying to squirm out of responsibility for the present prosperity.

The disaster to the Memphis caused very little excitement, Americans being used nowadays to seeing the navy on the rocks.

This Democratic Congress has passed into history—profane history.

President Wilson's speech of acceptance could have been phrased even more succinctly in the graphic words of Boss Tweed, "What are you going to do about it?"

We see by the interviews with the Mexican commissioners that the campaign slogan this year in the Sonora handit belt is "Thank God for Woodrow Wilson."

Mr. Wilson's eulogy of Lincoln at Hodgenville was more literary but less sincere than the one he pronounced upon himself at Shadow Lawn.

The new half dollars will have an olive branch on one side and on the other an eagle, in full flight. Wilson money.

Motto of the McAdoo shipping law: "The sun never rises on the American flag."

A Democrat's idea of an ideal watchdog of the Treasury is a Pommeranian.

Mr. Wilson is now busily engaged working the other side of the suffrage street.

First fruits of the Adamson bill: The New York street car strike.

SINFUL MUTILATION OF FAMOUS SPEECH

We notice that the editor of the Democratic campaign book, made up of samples of "Woodrow Wilson's Wit and Wisdom," has tampered with one specimen speech by omitting the phrase "too proud to fight."

This smacks of lese majeste, to say the least.

The only possible excuse for this sin of omission that we can think of is that there may also be times when a haughty handbook compiler is too proud to print.

Mr. Wilson has made no reply to the charges of Mr. Hughes. Is he still too proud to fight?
