DEMOCRATIC CLUBS.

QUADRENNIAL NATIONAL CONVENTION AT THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

Thousands of Delegates Present from Every State in the Union.

Force bill, said the organ of the Republican party, edited by its candidate for Vice-President, William McKelvey, a hundred McKelvey bills. The Republican candidate for President has never wavered in his support of McKelvey, but he has back a Federalist congress, and the right of free elections will be closed down in order that the people may not have the right to elect the President by a direct vote.

The election of Cleveland and Stevenson, with a Democratic congress, is within easy reach. We not only poll the full Democratic vote in November, and the beneficent revolution will be accomplished.

Mr. Black finished speaking at 11:50, and just three minutes later ex-President Cleveland was introduced.

Mr. Cleveland's Speech.

Mr. Cleveland's speech was an historic one. It was a masterpiece of oratory and was a fitting tribute to the memory of the late President. He spoke of the great achievements of the past and of the challenges of the future. He called for a new era of progress and reform. His speech was met with a tumultuous ovation and was widely reported in the press.

Ex-President Cleveland Makes an Address of Welcome.

Ex-President Cleveland, accompanied by his family, arrived in the city on Monday evening. He was met by a large group of friends and supporters. On Tuesday morning, he addressed the delegates at the Academy of Music. His speech was a landmark event in the history of the Democratic Party.

At the Academy of Music, where the National Convention of the Association of Democratic Clubs was opened today, was all ready for the reception of the delegates early this morning. An army of decorators had been at work in the big hall ever since midnight, and at 9 o'clock they had completed their task.

Flags had been draped over the stage and proscenium boxes where the distinguished guests were to sit, and the gallery fronts were tastefully ornamented with festoons of bright colored bunting, interspersed with draped shields, banners and a multitude of small flags.

At the back of the stage, on either side, were mammoth portraits of the National Democratic candidates, each draped with American flags. Seats were prepared on the platform for 300 guests.

The places reserved for the delegates were in the body of the house, the sections for each particular State being marked by placards and banners as in the National Conventions. Several delegations had to be put in the first balcony because the parquet could not accommodate them all.

Delegates began to arrive at the Academy and take their places by 9 o'clock, and half an hour before the opening of the Convention the hall presented a scene of great bustle and activity.

The eighth Regiment Band, which was stationed in a corner of the top gallery, made things lively while the crowds came thronging in through the Irving place entrance and the delegates were hunting around for their places.

POINTERS ON THE RACES.

Well Contested Events Should Be the Order To-Day.

Mount Vernon Stakes and Fall Test Handicap the Features.

The card at Morris Park to-day looks hard to pick winners from. These kind of programs invariably furnish the best races. Well-contested events, with real finishes, should be the order of the day. The features are the Mount Vernon stakes, for two-year-olds, and the Fall Test Handicap for three-year-olds. In the former Ajax will struggle to outdo and endeavor to give weight and a beating to Helen Nichols, Eagle Bird, Lassie and other good ones. In the Handicap Yorkville Belle, Candelabra, Mars and others will make an interesting contest. The track will be dry and fast. The entries and selections are as follows:

First Race - Sweepstakes for three-year-olds of $20 each, with $1,000 added; six furlongs.
A. F. Devereux	115
W. D. Devereux	115
