

DEAR MRS. CARTER'S BILLS.

LETTERS PUTTING FAIRBANK IN THE LIGHT OF A BUCKER.

Belasco Says There's Nothing Dear About It. He has been holding outdoor spellbinders, who have been holding outdoor spellbinders, who have been holding outdoor spellbinders...

The question of tipping a barber becomes very much more important in the high-class shops where 20 and 25 cents are charged than it does in those establishments which are satisfied with the usual compensation of 10 cents.

Mr. Deming started to put them on the counsel table. "No, you don't," said Mr. Dittenhoefer. "You were only bluffing about those letters, and we've called your bluff. You must read them here."

The children's classic of our grandparents and great-grandparents, "The Sandford and Merton," is now being sold by downtown street vendors at two cents a copy.

Mr. Deming's marriage surprised everybody who knew her, because only a few weeks before it took place there was a well-defined rivalry between her and Mrs. Wall.

Best Reviews of Important and Interesting New Publications. In "A Social Highwaysman," by Elizabeth Phelps Train (J. B. Lippincott Company, Philadelphia), we have the history of a man whose heart, like that of Barba, according to Macaulay, was black with wickedness. It is remarkable, even taking into allowance the well-known stupidity of police detectives since Gaborini...

Mr. Andrew Dean, and "Dartmoor," by Maurice H. Vervey (Frederick A. Stokes Company); "In Homes," by Edith Nesbit, and "Nets for the Wind," by Una Taylor (Roberts Brothers, Boston); "The Vigilantman," by George F. Clark (Thomas Y. Crowell & Co.), and "Camp Fire Stories: Sketches of the Union Army in the Southwest," by Edward Anderson (Star Publishing Company, Chicago).

Mr. Albert Grundy: Observations in Philadelphia, by Harold Frederic, is published by the Merrimac Company. "Goatsuck" is published by Roberts Brothers, Boston, in Katharine Prescott Wormeley's translations of the Balzac novels. "The Lamp of Gold," poems, by Florence L. Snow, is published by Way & Williams, Chicago.

HOV DAMSEN'S CHAIR IS RUN. A Woman Prisoner Released by One of the Inspectors. The room in which the hearing of the charges against Sheriff Tamm regarding the management of Ludlow Street Jail was held for two days so small that yesterday another and much larger room in the old Court House was appropriated by Commissioner William H. Robertson.
