SIX-DAY CYCLISTS RESORT TO TRICKS TO GAIN ONE LAP

Foreign Riders Stick to Fastest of Pace Set by Walthour and Other Americans to Put European Pluggers Behind in the Grind.

Patsy Keegan, One of the Irish Team, with Nose Broken and Head Cut in Spill, Pedals On, Swathed in Bandages.

SCORE AT SEVEN O'CLOCK P. M. Table with columns for rider names, miles, and laps.

The six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden has settled down to a steady grind, a series of sprints and loops and vain attempts of the riders to steal a lap by a trick for all efforts depending in more speed have been fruitless.

About twenty miles an hour are being rsted off, the racers who have not yet begun to feel physically the effects of the grind.

Once during the day twenty-six miles was done, but this was a record for an hour's riding and is not likely to be made again.

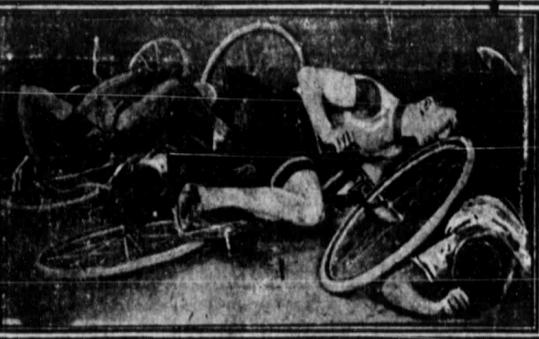

Mentally the men are showing the effect of the strain under which they are laboring. There have been frequent quarrels as to the nights when they shall appear on the track and falls are sure to result sooner or later as a result of these bickering.

So far the riders have been particularly fortunate as to spills, and except for Keegan, laid up early in the day with a broken nose, none are the worse off for their tumblers. Hooper and Caldwell, one of the four teams to lose a lap in the morning record breaking sprint are making terrific efforts to make up the lost ground and they apparently have a chance to do so. The other three teams are hopelessly out of it, and are likely to drop back another lap during the night.

Waiting for Accidents. Walthour and Munroe are perfectly satisfied to remain in the bunch and unless unusual opportunities present themselves neither will try and a lap to the good for some time to come. Early in the day they made several attempts to distance the others and failing settled down to wait for accidents. There is no mistaking the fact that the foreign riders are out of a tremendous figure in the race. Try as hard as they might, Bobby Wal-thour, Benny Munroe, the Beldels and the other Americans have been unable to shake off Gougoltz, Breton, Stol, Vanderstuyft and the rest of the continental that came from abroad. The first day's racing began eventually with a bad spill in which Patsy Keegan got a broken nose and badly damaged face. This accident came just as the riders were finishing up a long sprint that resulted in a new record for an hour's riding—26 miles. After that there was a lull. The pace slackened and the men began to drop back of the record. Four teams, Rockowitz and Shukins, Downing and Limberg, Krebs and Foster and Caldwell and Hooper had been left a lap behind in the wild scramble of the early day. About 4 o'clock they made desperate efforts to regain their lost ground, but the best they could do was set the others spinning faster and climbing up a bit closer to the record. After the bad falls of the morning (Continued on Tenth Page.)

(Special to The Evening World) RACE TRACK, NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 5.—Very ordinary horses made up the fields that met on the Crescent City Jockey Club track to-day. This was in all probability due to the heavy track and unfavorable weather conditions. The fourth event on the card, the Lightweight Handicap, was the feature of the day's racing. In this a number of good horses went to the post. The other races were for maidens and non-winners of certain amounts, which enabled the poorer division to get a share of the spoils.

Cataline Takes First.

Ogontz jumped away in front and set a swift pace with L. O. Sawyer, Cataline and Ojibwa closely bunched behind. They held this order to the far turn, where Cataline drew away from the bunch and gradually overhauled Ogontz. He was on even terms at the stretch turn and finally drew away winning easily by four lengths from Birch Rod, who closed strong and got up in time to beat Ogontz a nose.

Lord of the Valley Weakened.

Kleinwood was a warm choice in the second race, but he was not in the money. Lord of the Valley, the second choice, had lost in the first half mile. He came with a rush on the extreme outside, won by four lengths. Lord of the Valley had to drive hard to beat Extol half a length for the place.

Judge Himes Was Easily.

Judge Himes was a stonewall played favorite in the third race, and though he was out-run in the first quarter and man-lengths out of it he closed strongly and was in hand at the end. Caraway, at 100 to 1, urged to the front soon after the start and made pace to the far turn, where Atola and Mauser closed. Caraway beat Atola and Judge Himes, racing up on the outside went to the front and won easily by two lengths and a half from Mauser, who was the second choice.

CARNEGIE'S NAME ON NOTE FORGED, SAYS STEEL KING

United States District Attorney Says Name Is on Mrs. Chadwick's Note—Steel King Says He Never Signed It or Had Any Dealings With Woman.

ALLEGED CARNEGIE NOTE USED BY MRS. CHADWICK.

Jan. 7, 1904. One year after date I promise to pay to C. L. Chadwick, or order, $250,000, with interest at 5 per cent. ANDREW CARNEGIE.

At least one of the two notes used by Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick in securing the loans which wrecked the Citizens' Bank of Oberlin, O., bore the alleged signature of "Andrew Carnegie." This was the note for $250,000. It reads as follows, according to a despatch from Cleveland:

"One year after date I promise to pay to C. L. Chadwick or order $250,000 with interest at 5 per cent." (Signed) ANDREW CARNEGIE.

This note is indorsed on the back "C. L. Chadwick." It was found in the wrecked bank and is now in the possession of the United States Government authorities in Cleveland.

United States District Attorney Sullivan this afternoon acknowledged that he had had in his possession the note for $250,000, and it was signed with the name of Andrew Carnegie.

"Now, remember," added Mr. Sullivan, "I do not say this note was signed by Andrew Carnegie, but simply that Carnegie's name was signed thereto."

There are rumors in Cleveland of another arrest to be made soon in connection with the case.

NOTE FOR $500,000 YET HIDDEN.

It is positively stated that the second note for $500,000 also has Mr. Carnegie's name on it. This note is supposed to be in the safety deposit box of President Beckwith, of the Oberlin Bank. He has the key to this box in the vault of the bank, which is locked.

Mr. Carnegie declares emphatically that he never signed any paper for Mrs. Chadwick, and that if his name appears on such notes, it is a forgery.

NEVER SIGNED THE NOTES.

He declares that he never knew the woman at all. The question if he had any further statement to make was put to Mr. Carnegie when from Cleveland came a story that his name was signed as indorser to both notes of Mrs. Chadwick held by the wrecked Oberlin Bank.

Woman Who Brought Dead Baby from Albany for Cremation Let Go.

Mrs. Florence Wieland, of Rensselaer Heights, East Albany, who was arrested on Thursday last at Fresh Pond, L. She showed a birth certificate, a death certificate and a burial permit which she obtained from Albany, and the Magistrate, after reading them and satisfying himself they were all right, he discharged the woman.

At the time of her arrest she told the officer who arrested her that she wanted to have the body of her little child

NAN PATTERSON BARS AGED MEN FROM THE JURY

Florodora Girl, on Trial Again for the Murder of Caesar Young, Says She Does Not Want Patriarchs.

MANY GRAY BEARDS ARE EXCLUDED FROM THE BOX.

Young Woman Received a Letter To-Day Telling of Her Mother's Recovery and Hopes to Be Free Christmas.

NAN PATTERSON JURORS.

THOMAS H. HARMER, of No. 250 West Eighty-fifth street, receiving teller of the Nassau Bank. WILLIAM JOHN LEE, of No. 2163 Croton avenue, Bronx, manager at No. 1050 Third avenue. THOMAS FARRELL, of No. 42 Headhurst avenue, dealer in fixtures at No. 428 Tenth avenue.

"I do not want a jury of patriarchs." Nan Patterson announced this afternoon, as she aided her counsel in their efforts to select jurymen to try her for the murder of Caesar Young. Gray-beard after graybeard had been called from the panel of talesmen drawn to serve before Justice Vernon M. Davis in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court, where the young woman faced her second trial.

Many of the elderly talesmen were acceptable in every other necessary qualification, but the actress was firm in refusing to admit them to the jury when they passed the meridian of life.

The examination of talesmen by counsel for both sides were unusually long drawn out, every effort being directed to the picking of a jury qualified in every particular to serve throughout the trial. Nine talesmen were examined and refused the defendant using two of her thirty peremptory challenges before five candidates had been questioned, when Justice Davis intervened and assumed the role of examiner in order to expedite matters. He made no more progress than counsel had, however, and ten members of the special panel were discarded. Excuses of different kinds had reduced the panel from 30 to 10.

Recovers from Illness.

Early last week Nan Patterson suffered from an attack of tonsillitis, but quickly recovered. When she was led into court to-day to make her accusations before five candidates had been questioned, when Justice Davis intervened and assumed the role of examiner in order to expedite matters. He made no more progress than counsel had, however, and ten members of the special panel were discarded. Excuses of different kinds had reduced the panel from 30 to 10.

HAD BEEN WELL CARED FOR.

The little body was perfectly clean and everything about the child showed care and attention. That is one of the things that has mystified the police. That a child should have all the attention showered on it that this little one did, for three months of its life, only to be carried out then and brutally murdered, is a little inconsistent from the police point of view.

TWO END THEIR LIVES IN SAME ROOM WITH GAS

Charles Nelson, twenty-three years old, and a strange man about his own age were found dead this evening in Nelson's room at No. 895 Second avenue.

The gas was turned on and the usual devices for stopping any leakage of the gas from the room were found which makes the police of the East Fifty-first street station certain it was a double suicide.

No motive could be discovered for the apparent suicide pact, and no one has as yet been found who can identify Nelson's companion in death.

He was a clean shaven young man 5 feet 8 inches in stature with dark hair and eyes.

No one in the neighborhood ever saw the two young men together, and the double suicide is shrouded in deep mystery.

GIRL BABY IS CHOKED TO DEATH AND BODY HIDDEN

Child Not More Than Three Months Old and Dressed in Silk Clothing Found Near Empire City Track, the Skin of Her Neck Bruised.

A pretty little girl, dressed all in silk, lies dead to-day in the morgue at Yonkers, the soft flesh of her neck turned black and blue from the pressure of the fingers of the person who murdered her and cast her body behind a clump of bushes.

All over this city and Westchester County are detectives trying to find the man and woman who are now believed to have carried the little one to the lonely spot where she was found, to murder her, Saturday. If the present suspicions of the police are true, and they are founded on very good evidence, a crime revolting enough to make the most calloused person shudder has been committed.

CARRIED AWAY TO BE SLAIN.

It looks very much as though this child is one that was seen on one of the trolley cars of the Huckleberry system on Saturday in the arms of a well-dressed woman, with whom was a man. At that time the child was alive and well. If this was the same child as was found dead yesterday in Yonkers, there can be no doubt that it was carried out into the country to be murdered and that strangulation is the means that was resorted to by the murderers.

FEW RESIDENCES IN THAT LOCALITY.

At the same time no reasonable explanation of the couple's getting off the car where they did is furnished. There are few residences near the track, and there few have been visited by detectives to-day without anybody being found who was visited on Saturday by a man, woman and child from New York.

By a curious coincidence the man and woman who carried the child to Yonkers boarded Glennon's car on the return trip at a point a quarter of a mile from where they left it an hour earlier, and Glennon is very sure that they did not leave the child with them. It is on Glennon's statement that the police believe that the dead child was taken up from New York to be murdered and that the passengers on his car are the ones who committed this atrocious crime.

The dead child bears evidences of an environment of refinement. Her clothing is of the very best, consisting of a cream-colored coat of spangled material, lined throughout with silk, a white lace hat tied with blue ribbon, a white silk veil, a long white, lace-trimmed dress, white stockings, silk underwear and blue and white leather shoes.

Every detail of the appearance and clothing of the man and woman who rode on Glennon's car on Saturday afternoon have been taken by the police, but unfortunately Glennon's recollection is not as clear as it might be and there is little chance of catching the couple on the descriptions furnished.

Glennon says that the woman, while well dressed, looked rather coarse. She showed not the slightest sign of nervousness, but kept the baby close in her arms all the time. Several times Glennon says he heard the child
