IT REGULATES HARBOR FISHING. A Protest Against a Novel Feature of the Charter of Greater New York. Among those who are finding fault with the Greater New York charter, not any are making a more vigorous protest in proportion to their numbers than the market fishermen, who earn a livelihood by setting nets in the waters of the newly defined city.

catfish, suckers, eels, pickerel, sturgeon, white and yellow perch in the Hudson River by means of hoop nets, Buoys, and gill-nets—the sturgeon to be taken in nets of not less than 7-inch mesh. And then there is the minor matter of taking minnows used for bait. Minnows are captured with net also. All of this net fishing is to be abolished if the harbor provisions of the new charter stand as now printed.
