In which she would find herself should she now go to war with France and be beaten. She would continue to exist as a nation only by the sufferance of France, and on condition of slavish obedience to French decrees.

He Cannot Be Happy. President CLEVELAND is, indeed, in a sad, pitiable condition. If he signs the bill, he becomes a voluntary participant in the parody and dishonor which he has denounced so earnestly.

The unfortunate alternative which now confronts the President, should serve as a perpetual warning to all men never to vary from the path of righteousness, never to promise with the lips and at the same time cherish a contrary purpose in the heart.

He Has Gone Astry. Mr. W. D. HOWELLS, the novelist, has been expending his imagination of late months in picturing a fabulous land, which he calls Altruria, and contrasting it with our "plutocratic" civilization.

Mr. SATOLLI and the Liquor Saloons. Mgr. SCROEDER, one of the professors of the Catholic University at Washington, has made to a correspondent of the New York Times an explanation of the attitude of Mgr. SATOLLI toward the liquor saloons.

This last "Letter from an Altrurian" is the last of a series of letters which Mr. HOWELLS has been publishing in the "Century" magazine since the month of March.

Will Italy Bring War on Europe? MR. ALDEN, lately the American Consul-General in Rome, has undertaken in the Nineteenth Century to plead the cause of the Italians against France.

The Adirondack Forests. The hearing given to representatives of the New York Board of Trade by the special Forestry Committee of the Constitutional Convention brought out some interesting proposals.

The subject of the sermon preached by the Rev. Mr. Dixon last Sunday was "The Yacht Race." We do not see any fault with his subject, which is an exciting one.

The Tariff Debate. Mr. COCKRAN'S appearance in the debate was one of those courageous performances of which he is always capable.

Run Through by a Swordfish. A Vessel Strangely Damaged in the Gulf of California. A communication received from California.

Killed by a Constrictor. A Georgia Boy Crushed to Death by a Snake. From the Augusta Chronicle.

Mr. Henry's Dreaming Crow. From the Florida Times-Union. We heard of a crow, and he is the gayest, oddest, ugliest, but withal the smartest bird ever seen.

The Atmosphere of Mars. How Guides Are Made. From the Levinton Evening Journal. "How do they make guides?" is the simple question we asked one of those "fraternally appointed guides."

Told by a Photographer. From the Courier-Journal. This is a photographer's story: "About a year ago, I was in a railway car, seated with a friend, when I happened to look out of the window and saw a young woman."

The Cup in the Communion Service. To the Editor of The Sun-Sun. The use of the cup in the communion service is a Protestant church is declared by your correspondent.
