U. S. MAY CONTROL WOOL AFTER WAR Men in Trade See Many Benefits if This Is Authorized.

It will not hurt their business. While they do not expect sweaters without collars, belts and other ornaments which have been banned by the wool restrictions to be popular, they have planned to obviate this curtailment by using other materials than wool for these purposes.

Ask That Special Rule Continue. WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—The 10 o'clock opening of business today may be continued here for another six months. The district commissioners have requested it so that the traffic congestion, which is expected to be more aggravated than ever during the cold weather, may be relieved.

Special Despatch to The Sun. WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Prospects of the War Industries Board exercising control over wool for a year or so after the closing of peace are being discussed here, and the opinion seems to be that such control would be beneficial. It could be given to the board by act of Congress.
