U. S. SECRETARY OF EDUCATION URGED

G. O. P. Platform Framers Would Create Federal Department of Learning.

NATIONAL DEFENCE AID

Bureau of Public Works Also Favored by Many Organizations.

Proposals for the creation of a new Department of Education, with the head of it a member of the President's Cabinet, and for physical education of all children up to the age of 19 receive favorable consideration from the committee on policies and platform of the Republican National Committee.

In considering the limitation of Federal and State control and regulation, the committee finds that the public is irritated by the overextension of Federal powers during the war period and their application to many purely local matters.

After remarking that the Federal Government has already assisted local education by distribution of public lands for school purposes, granting money for agricultural and vocational schools, the committee says there is a growing demand that this cooperation be extended to include primary education in the public schools.

There should be greater State wide and even national recognition of the excellent work done by many individual teachers, who are underpaid and poorly supported with tools for their work, the committee says.

Blow at Illiteracy.

The present proposal for the creation of an executive department with a Secretary of Education as a member of the President's Cabinet will be judged not only as a measure of administrative reform but also in connection with the accompanying proposal that the Government should spend a very large sum, perhaps $100,000,000 annually, to be apportioned to the States for the removal of illiteracy.

A subcommittee appointed to investigate delegations with excess members submitted a report favoring the seating of all the delegates.

such aid coming up to certain minimum standards in the use of Federal funds, and also conditioned upon their making corresponding financial provision proportionate to their ability for other educational matters to which the Federal funds may or may not be applied.

Education of Youth.

Under the head "Physical Education" the report has this:

"Physical education of the youth of the country has so important a bearing on national defense, military policy and public education in general that it is believed that a thorough system of physical education for all children up to the age of nineteen, and adequate health supervision and instruction would add greatly to the economic, industrial and military strength of the nation.

Another section of the report deals with "Law and order and the administration of justice." The committee believes it is needed to protect against incitement to acts which are injurious to the Government such as sedition, espionage and acts of violence.

Regarding alien deportation, the report says: "It cannot be doubted that every Government has the power to exclude and deport those aliens who constitute a real menace to its peaceful existence. And it must be recognized that in many instances of exclusion and in some cases of deportation it is not practical to require a judicial review.
