

HENRY, ON STAND, REPEATS CHARGES

Contradicts Smith on Every Material Point in Testimony in Perjury Case.

ENRIGHT AIDS INSPECTOR

Says Affidavits Against Prosecutor Were Filed Long Before Inquiry Opened.

In reply to the charge that he committed perjury when he swore that Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith had asked him to do less than his duty as police head of the Fourth Inspection District, Inspector Dominick Henry took the witness stand yesterday in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court and contradicted Smith on every material point.

In the course of his testimony Henry not only contradicted Smith, but also pointed brother-in-law, Dennis Quinn, and James J. Hines, Democratic leader of the district in which Smith and Henry live. They both have appeared as witnesses to corroborate Smith.

The story Henry told was a refutation of all the charges, often published, which he alleged before the Grand Jury, but which contradicted a meeting with him held by him which was "out for the jewel" in Henry's district, but would not say any Christians who were Henry's friends that Smith said to him: "I'll give you a half of your head. If I hear of anything doing in your district I'll let you know," that Smith told him Inspector Costigan (Honest Dan) was a cheap man who could be bought for $2,000 and that (Smith) carried District Attorney Swann in his vest pocket, since Swann relied on Smith to make him Governor.

HELD IN ELLIS ISLAND, GIRL DRINKS INK

Not Allowed to Go to Her Father, Grew Despondent.

Madeline Pagot, Parisienne, comely and only seventeen, who came here three months ago with Arthur Wright of Lakeland, Fla., to whom she is betrothed, but was detained at Ellis Island because she did not have her passport, was held in the island yesterday night in a moment of despondency to go to a place where passports are not required. She supposed that the ink applied to the island by the Government was poisonous and drank a small bottle. It was not red ink.

Frederick A. Wallis, Commissioner of Immigration, happened to be making a nocturnal inspection, the second of a series, and he had a doctor rushed from the hospital to Madeline, who quickly revived. The Commissioner called on her yesterday and she told him through an interpreter that she felt so despondent that she did not care whether she lived or died. She said she had become acquainted with her fiancé through his brother, who was a soldier in France and that she expected to join him at his home in Florida when she was released. The Commissioner will make an effort to help Madeline. He said he was not startled by the girl's despair considering the unsanitary conditions, the congestion and the stagnation of inspection courts and needless detentions. He declared that he would demand money and help necessary to make the immigration station a credit to the country instead of an island of lamentations.

Henry said good use of an opportunity given him by his counsel to do what he thought best. That right case, and his only object was graft.

Henry made good use of an opportunity given him by his counsel to do what he thought best. That right case, and his only object was graft.

An important witness for Henry was Police Commissioner Enright. It has been alleged by the prosecution that Henry made his charges against Smith after Smith began to get after him for neglect of duty. Commissioner Enright swore that affidavits made by Henry and accusing Smith had been filed with him by Henry in March, 1918.

Inspector Henry was cross-examined for three hours last night by Col. Rand. The testimony given by Henry before the Grand Jury last March was gone over in detail. The record showed that Inspector Henry was asked if he had any additional complaints to make against Assistant District Attorney Smith, and that he replied he had none. Last night the inspector said there may have been other complaints, but that now they could not be corroborated and for that reason had remained silent.

Inspector Henry refused to admit that he had considered Mr. Smith a candidate for public office since 1918. He said, however, that the things he had heard about Smith made him believe that this integrity was open to suspicion.

HYLAN'S MEMORIAL PLAN CAUSES STIR

Art Committee Reseeks Rush in $17,800,000 Project.

The instance of Philip Berolzheimer, City Chamberlain, who said he was authorized to represent Mr. Hyland, that the Mayor's memorial committee buy Madison Square Garden as a site for a $17,800,000 war memorial almost caused a bolt yesterday of some of the leading members when the committee met for the first time and received the report of the art committee.

The revolt began brewing when the City Chamberlain undertook to let the committee adjourn for two weeks and then come back with a definite yes or no on one of three proposals of the art committee—a Liberty bridge over the North River, a great auditorium and community building on the site of Madison Square Garden or a memorial arch. The recalcitrant members were pleased only when Martin J. Conboy persuaded Mr. Berolzheimer to accept an amendment for an adjournment until July 22.

There were fewer than fifty of the 250 members of the committee present. In the absence of Rodman Wanamaker, chairman, the meeting was presided over by Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Public Works. The issue was forced when Frederick deP. Postor took the floor, and referring to Mr. Berolzheimer, said:

"This gentleman seems to be undertaking for one thing to stand for any such thing."

The Madison Square Garden site is assessed at $2,800,000. It is estimated that the new building would cost $15,000,000.

Plans were taken at the meeting to make it clear that the project is not connected in any way with the Victory Hall Association.

QUESTION SERVANTS ON CARUSO ROBBERY

Suffolk Prosecutor Acts on Theory $500,000 Jewel Theft Was 'Inside Job.'

Acting upon the theory that the $500,000 jewel robbery in the summer home of Mrs. Enrico Caruso, at Easthampton, L. I., was "an inside job," District Attorney Leroy M. Young, of Suffolk County, will question all of the household servants to-day at a John Doe inquiry.

This move was decided upon after a day of examination into various matters that may or may not be clues, after the Caruso jewel theft and after a household had re-narrated the scene that transpired Tuesday night when Mrs. Caruso and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Park Benjamin, Jr., heard the burglar alarm in the Caruso jewel cabinet ring and after a host of private detectives had combed the estate for the jewels.

Two of the most interesting developments were the discovery of a rubber heel print near the mantel on which the Caruso jewel cabinet ring and after a host of private detectives had combed the estate for the jewels.

NICKY GOT $14,500 FROM FANNIE BRICE

Says Actress Wife Gave Him $5,000 After He Fled.

According to schedules in bankruptcy which he filed yesterday in the United States District Court Nicky Arnstein received $5,000 from his actress wife, Fannie Brice, on February 15, three days after he is alleged to have fled from the police.

It also appears that he received $9,000 from his wife on February 11, the day before his flight and the very day on which Joe Gluck, arrested in connection with the $5,000,000 bond theft plot, was implicating him in a statement given in the office of Second Deputy Police Commissioner Lahey.

Adding $100 that Nicky got from Fannie on February 9 his confessed liabilities amount to $14,500. He declares in his schedules that his wife is his only creditor and that his assets consist only of $1,800 in the Pacific Bank, and that he has no stocks or securities of any kind.

In explaining to reporters about the sums obtained from his wife Arnstein said that they had nothing to do with his disappearance, but were borrowed to help an acquaintance who had gone broke through gambling. The schedules, however, contain no mention of any claim against this "friend" for money loaned.

Nicky was to have testified again yesterday, but because of the pending motion to punish him for contempt his examination was adjourned until next Thursday. Edward P. Strong, a Cleveland attorney, is scheduled to testify again this afternoon.

STOREY SENTENCED, CLEMENCY REFUSED

Lawyer Must Serve Two Years for Receiving Bonds.

Frank DeR. Storey, lawyer and broker, who was found guilty Monday night of having criminally received $1,000 worth of Northern Pacific Railroad stock which had been stolen from the Gans Steamship Company last October, was sentenced yesterday to two and one-half to five years at hard labor by Judge Malone in General Sessions. Storey is 32 years old and lived with his widowed mother at 11 South Elliott place, Brooklyn.

Storey's mother and a brother were in the courtroom when he was sentenced. Ames Hogan, wife of a vaudeville actor, who lived at the Hotel Commodore last December at the same time Storey did and who was later named co-spendent in a divorce action brought by Storey's wife, also was in court. Both women were when they went to the sheriff's office to say goodbye to Storey, who probably will be taken to Sing Sing the first of next week.

George Gordon Battle, counsel for the defense, made a plea for clemency, saying that Storey allegedly had been humiliated; that his conviction automatically bars him from practicing law, and that he had been associated with "the best people in the land."
