SPENCER'S SINGLE RESCUES GIANTS

Two Runs Scored in Twelfth Bring Defeat to Cardinals by 6 to 4.

Special to THE SUN AND NEW YORK HERALD.

ST. LOUIS, July 13.—In an exciting twelve inning game here to-day the Giants defeated the Cardinals by a score of 6 to 4. After Frisch had been disposed of in the twelfth Kelly was hit by a pitched ball and King singled to right. Doyle was thrown out by Sherdell, but Spencer beat out a hit to Lavan, Kelly and King both scoring.

Barnes was hit hard in spots by the Cardinals, but he managed to hold on until his team mates came through with the runs necessary to win the game. Schupp hurled seven innings against the Giants. Then he gave way to a pinch hitter. He was succeeded by North, who in turn gave way to Sherdell.

The fielding of Burns, Frisch and Heathcote featured the game.

A pass and a hit, an error and a double play figured in the scoring of a run by the Giants in the third inning. Snyder started the inning by walking and Barnes, in attempting to sacrifice, succeeded in beating out a bunt. Clemons's tardy throw was so wide that Snyder went all the way to third on the error. Lavan made a great stop of Burns's swift grounder through the box and started a double play that engulfed both Burns and Barnes, but Snyder scored while the double killing was in progress.

Three more runs were scored by the Giants in the fourth inning. Young was thrown out by Lavan, but Frisch singled to centre, stole second and scored on Kelly's single to left centre. King walked and Doyle drove a long fly to McHenry, Kelly taking third on the catch. King stole second. Snyder slammed the ball to the fence in left centre and Kelly and King scored. Barnes was called out on strikes.

In the Cardinals' half of this inning Burns made a circus catch of a low line drive from Hornsby's bat. This was the star fielding feature of the day.

After Knode, batting for Schupp, had been retired in the sixth, Smith doubled over Young's head. Frisch made a great stop of Fournier's rap down the third base foul line and threw him out. Smith being held at second, but Stock singled to right and Smith crossed the plate.

North, who assumed the pitching burden for St. Louis in the seventh, was fortunate in not being scored upon in that inning. After Barnes had been retired on a fine stop and throw by Lavan Burns walked and stole second. Bancroft popped to Hornsby but Young walked. Frisch singled to right and Burns tried to score. Heathcote, however, cut him down at the plate with a splendid throw to Clemons.

After Barnes had disposed of Lavan and Clemons in the Cardinals' half of this frame McHenry doubled to left and Heathcote singled to right, scoring the former.

In the eighth the Cardinals tied the score. Smith led off with a single to left, and advanced to second when Doyle threw out Fournier. Stock singled to left, scoring Smith. Stock scored when Hornsby tripled to right centre. A squeeze play was tried, but Lavan bunted the ball on a line into Barnes's hands and Hornsby was easily doubled off third.

In the ninth Bancroft beat out a hit to Lavan after Burns had been retired and Young moved him up with a sacrifice. Frisch poked a single to right, but Heathcote came through with another great throw and Bancroft was nipped at the plate. The score:

38,823 Paid Fans See Shocker Tame the Babe

Pitcher of the Browns Fans Fourteen Yankees in First Game of Double Header.

By WILLIAM B. HANNA.

The Yankees emerged from a double header yesterday with an even break and little glory. Their biggest crowd—New York's biggest crowd—was there. Saturday, Sunday and holiday attendances—yesterday's beat them all. It was announced officially as 38,823, which is the biggest actual, if not the biggest paid, baseball gathering the Polo Grounds ever has held. The Yankees, facing pitching extraordinary by Shocker in the first game, were beaten, 6 to 4, by the St. Louis Browns. They pulled out the second one, 7 to 2.

Great chance for the Yankees to show off, but there was not much show to their playing. Certainly it wasn't showy. The offence hadn't the usual drive and clatter, and the day's work, viewed as a whole and in detail, although not shaking to any appreciable extent the faith of their huge gathering of friends in their ability to win the pennant, didn't increase it a particle. The St. Louis pitchers, Shocker and Wellman, did a whole lot of things to the New York batters.

Shocker, with his spitball, curve and change of pace, plus headwork by which he repeatedly outwitted the New York batters, Ruth in particular, suppressed the Yankees completely for a greater part of the game. They reached him in the seventh and eighth innings with one of their characteristic uprisings, but he had more than enough left to check them in time.

The Yankees spent a considerable part of the afternoon striking out. Shocker struck out fourteen in the first game, a red letter feat, including the whiffing three times of Babe Ruth. The Tarzan-Bambino-Colossus-Sultan of Swat and all the rest of it slugger had a bad day. He struck out three times in the first game and twice in the second and made but one hit in six times at bat. Nevertheless the Babe made two runs. By the sheer might of his presence he made two runs. He converted two walks in the second game into runs and thereby was instrumental in conducting rallies which won the second.

The Babe would have outdone himself had he not gone after bad balls in his efforts to hit homers. That's what the crowd wanted him to do, and he strives to please, but it wasn't good baseball to slam at bad ones the way he did. With curves and slow ones and dewdrops Shocker simply outgeneralled him. Wellman struck out seven in the second game, the grand total of twenty-one being somewhat epochal for the Yankees in one day, and not enhancing their reputation as a team which swings a potent flail.

Sisler Also Stopped.

The assist column of the Browns was remarkably small for a double header, ten in all. That shows the Yankees weren't hitting the ball on the ground. To the extent of twenty-one times they didn't hit it at all. Rip Collins pitched a poor game as opponent of Shocker. Not poor in the sense that he was hit hard, but an unsteady game of poor control and predelection for getting into dilemmas. In four of his six innings he put the first man up on base some way or other. When the Browns did bunch hits they bunched them for results.

Sisler, another kingbee of the mallet, was stopped too. As he didn't strike out, he wasn't as conspicuous with his defections as Ruth, but he was even less effective. Ruth's one hit counted in run getting, but Sisler's one hit didn't, and the American League leader made one in nine times at bat. Ruth made one in seven. Ruth made two runs, Sisler none.

Gerber, with two out in the fourth inning of the first game, whacked a home run with a man on base. He punched between Bodie and Vick, each of whom made the mistake of trying to cut across the path of the pellet instead of going out with it. Poor fielding, that; poor judgment. Collins winged a man in the fifth, inserted a wild pitch and was tapped for two singles. Severeid bruised him for a home run in the sixth.

In the seventh a two bagger by Tobin, Collins's mistake in throwing to the wrong base and an infield out, the last named off Thormahlen, sent in the sixth St. Louis run. Entering the seventh inning the Yankees had two hits. That lean supply found them scoreless. Shocker struck out eight men in the first three innings. The Yanks hopped on him for a spell in the seventh. With two out Meusel, Bodie and Pratt singled and turned in a pair of runs.

Peck went up in the eighth to look at Shocker's mystifying stuff, struck out and on coming back reported that reports that Shocker had something were not exaggerated. Still Ward jammed a double to left in that inning. Vick did likewise and Ruth made a single. Two runs more and all, for Shocker was himself again in the ninth, and except for Gerber's fumble of Duffy Lewis's grounder nobody got on.

Mogridge Does Well.

George Mogridge, an absentee from competition since he sprained his ankle in Chicago, pitched the second game and did right well. He outlasted Carl Weilman in the southpaw tilt. Bunched hits gave the Brownies two runs, but they couldn't impart any momentum to their attack. One way Mogridge held them in leash was to pass William Baby Doll Jacobson whenever anybody was on base. He reserved his sorcery for Kenneth Williams and always with desired results.

Muddy Ruel caught the second game. He was fresh, spry and peppery after Hannah, who seems a bit overworked. Muddy scored in the third inning on his two bagger, Mogridge's sacrifice and Ward's parabola to Tobin. Thereupon the Yankees subsided until the seventh, when Ruth took it calmly and drew four balls. Meusel singled, and by splendid base running Ruth reached third. Bodie walked, Pratt's fly to Tobin scored Ruth and Ruel's fly to Tobin would have scored Meusel had he come in. Through some perverse working of his gray matter he held third and never would have tallied if Tobin hadn't made a wild return of the ball.

The New York eighth had a queer play. Ward walked. He trotted to second when he thought Vick had been hit by a pitched ball. He trotted back when Evans called Vick back. He didn't have to return to first, and he could have been put out if the Browns had thought of it. Moreover, he was running the bases the reverse way. But as there wasn't enough quickness of wit on the St. Louis side to take advantage of Ward's failure to grasp the situation that player didn't suffer. 'Twas compound ivory.

Vick and Pipp had struck out when Tarzan - Bambino - Colossus - Behemoth, tired of swinging at something too elusive to be hit, waited it out. Meusel rammed to left, Gerber balled up the relay and Ruth, Class A on the roadways if not with the stick, scored. Bodie's triple sent Meusel in, and Pratt's double tallied Ping. That was the real Yankees—that batting bee. Williams, Bodie, Joe Gedeon and Del Pratt embellished the equatorial day with fine fielding. The second base play was quality all over. The scores:

ELLIOTT'S WILD PEG COSTLY TO DODGERS

Ninth Inning Throw Allows Cubs to Win.

Special to THE SUN AND NEW YORK HERALD.

CHICAGO, July 13.—Harold Elliott, a former Cub, in attempting to catch Dave Robertson off second base in the ninth inning, threw the ball to centre field and two Cubs crossed the plate. This error gave to-day's game to the Cubs over the Dodgers by a score of 3 to 2.

The Dodgers were about to snatch victory from Grover Cleveland Alexander when Elliott made his costly throw. The league leaders entered the Cubs' half of the ninth leading by one run. Leon Cadore, who had hurled brilliantly after the first inning, suddenly lost his effectiveness. Terry, the first man to face him, hit to left centre, but Zack Wheat, with gloved hand outstretched, made a wonderful catch. Merkle followed with a single to left and Robertson cracked a curve up against the right field wall for two bases. Flack was put in to run for Merkle.

Wilbert Robertson then replaced Cadore with Al Mamaux. Barber, batting for Paskert, was being purposely passed when Hy Myers crept in close to second as Robertson took a long lead off the bag. After receiving the third wide pitch, Elliott shot the ball with great speed toward second. It went past Myers like a rifle shot to deep centre. Flack dashed across the plate with the tying run and Robertson followed him with the winning tally.

The Cubs scored their first run off Cadore in the opening session, when Twombley tripled to right centre and scored on Hollocher's double.

In the sixth Wheat tripled to left and scored when Myers followed with a three bagger over Paskert's head. Myers tried to stretch the hit into a home run but was cut down at the plate, Koney followed with a single. It was Grimes's bad coaching which sent Myers home.

The Dodgers scored their second tally in the ninth, when Griffith singled to centre and reached second on Paskert's poor throw to the infield. Griffith advanced to third on a wild pitch and scored on Myers's sacrifice fly. The score:
