

LIGGETT THINKS THAT MCGRAW STRUCK SLAVIN

Third Man in Taxicab Party Says Back Was Turned During Row.

LIQUOR SEIZED AT CLUB

Actor, Whose Skull Was Broken, Still Unable to Give Details.

The police and the District Attorney's office succeeded yesterday in clearing up some of the mystery surrounding John McGraw's affairs in the Lamb's Club and at other points last Sunday morning and the cases of whiskey which the prohibition authorities have been searching for in the club.

Winfield Liggett, one of McGraw's companions during the hectic events of last Sunday, told P. Francis Marro, Assistant District Attorney, that he thought the fractured skull from which John C. Slavin is suffering in St. Luke's Hospital was caused by a blow from the baseball manager, delivered in an altercation which developed after the trio had alighted from a taxicab in front of McGraw's home.

Soon after James Shevlin, prohibition enforcement officer for this district, had given the Lamb's Club a clean bill of health so far as any stored liquor was concerned the Police Department announced that Patrolman John J. O'Brien and Sergeant Dolan of the Fourth Inspection District had seized fifteen cases of whiskey, champagne and sherry at the clubhouse. The seizure was made soon after 4 o'clock in the morning, when Ernest L. Smith of 126 West Forty-fourth street and Charles Bertney of 114 West Forty-fifth street tried to remove it from the club in a taxicab. Smith, who is secretary of the club, and Bertney, a chauffeur, were placed under arrest.

Thinks It Was Locker Boose.

Before the police announced the seizure of the liquor Mr. Shevlin told newspaper men that on Tuesday night he had sent an agent to the Lamb's Club to investigate reports that stocks of liquor were there. The agent reported during the morning that he had not been able to find any basis for the reports, and he gave the club a clean bill of health.

After he learned of the police seizure of the booze Mr. Shevlin again got into communication with the executive officers of the Lamb's Club and issued a new statement repeating that the club contained no booze unless it was in private lockers, which is legal, and that the cases seized by the police probably belonged to Smith and did not reflect upon the efforts of the club to observe the law strictly.

Mr. Liggett, who was formerly a naval officer, told a somewhat different story from the one he had told the police when he was questioned yesterday by Mr. Marro. He previously had said that his back was toward Slavin and McGraw when they alighted from the taxicab, but yesterday he said that sounds of some sort of a row reached his ears. He actually saw no blow struck, he said, but he thought that McGraw must have hit Slavin, because when he turned Slavin was lying on the ground. Liggett told the Assistant District Attorney that the chauffeur, Meaghan, was facing McGraw and Slavin at the time, and that he probably could give more details of the row.

The Assistant District Attorney at once issued a subpoena for Meaghan and the chauffeur is expected to appear today at the Criminal Court Building. McGraw also is expected to appear before the Assistant District Attorney, his counsel, Emil E. Fuchs, having promised to produce him. McGraw was still in seclusion yesterday.

Liggett told the Assistant District Attorney that neither he nor Slavin had been drinking and that there was no altercation of any sort in the taxicab prior to arriving at the McGraw home, but that there had been an argument before leaving the club over the question of whether McGraw ought to accompany McGraw.

Slavin Is Recovering.

Dr. H. M. Lyle said yesterday that Slavin would recover from his injuries. He is still too weak to talk, the physician said in refusing to permit him to make a statement to Detectives Fitzgerald and Love of the West 109th street station, who had been sent to ask the injured man about the suspected assault. Dr. Lyle said he was uncertain when Slavin would be able to talk, but said it probably would not be long, as cases of his sort improve rapidly once the crisis has been reached and passed.

The officials and members of the Lamb's Club are not interested particularly in the Slavin end of the McGraw case because it did not happen at the club, but they are keenly aroused over the row in the club's grill room in which McGraw fought with William H. Boyd, an actor, after Boyd had taken exception to the baseball manager's language. A member of the house committee made it known definitely yesterday that McGraw had been suspended from membership pending the outcome of a meeting of the club's council, which has been called for 4 o'clock this afternoon. The council will take up the report of the house committee on the Sunday morning fight, but it will not be taken until both Boyd and McGraw have appeared and told their sides of the story. Since Boyd is working in motion pictures and would find it difficult to attend sessions now, and McGraw appears to be in seclusion, it is doubtful if anything more than a postponement of the case will occur to-day.

HAD 'JAIL RECORD' TATTOOED ON ARM

Court Gives Musician Chance to Add to It.

Henry Stevenson, a piano player of 222 Schenck avenue, Brooklyn, was sentenced in the Court of Special Sessions yesterday to serve four months in the Workhouse for stealing a fire extinguisher from an automobile belonging to Eli Sturgeon of 121 Saratoga avenue, Tonawanda.

Asked by the court if he had ever been convicted before, Stevenson rolled up his sleeve on his right arm and showed tattooed there "Workhouse, 1918." He admitted that he had served another term in 1919, but had not yet had it recorded on his arm.

"You'll be able to add that and 'Workhouse 1920' at the end of the next four months," said Justice Freschi in imposing sentence.

'COUNT' IS ARRESTED ON LARCENY CHARGE

Woman Says Stranger Stole Luggage in Station.

In spite of the protestations of a man who said he was Count Louis d'Henri, 42 years old, but recently from Paris, as he stood yesterday at the parcel window in the Pennsylvania station trying to explain how he came by two suitcases of women's belongings for which he held the parcel checks, he was placed under arrest.

His accuser was an excited woman who said she was Mrs. Marie Malacamp, of 249 Walnut avenue, Trenton, N. J. She said she was waiting for a Trenton train at midnight and set the bags near a newstand to get some papers. While she was making the purchase the bags disappeared. Mrs. Malacamp herself recently arrived from Paris, and the valuables in her suitcases included $2,500 worth of jewelry and effects purchased in the city.

Her emotion at the loss attracted the attention of several attendants and when the police arrived a search was made. The bags were found in the checkroom, and the clerk remembered the general makeup of the man who had left them. Mrs. Malacamp waited with detectives.

The Count appeared toward noon, presented the checks, and was arrested. In West Side Court he explained with gestures that he saw the bags apparently abandoned, and he had checked them out there. From the time he checked them, he assured the court, was to turn them over to "the president of the road." Magistrate Harris held him in $1,000 bail on suspicion of grand larceny. The Count has his present abode at 457 West Twenty-third street.

ALWAYS A FARMER, BERGDOLL CLAIMED

On Same Questionnaire He Said He Had Tilled Soil 2 1-2 Years.

Testimony that when Erwin R. Bergdoll, who, like his escaped brother, Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, is accused of desertion, filled out his draft questionnaire he said first one thing, then another, was delivered yesterday in the resumed court martial on Governors Island. The prosecution is expected to rest soon after the trial resumes at 11 o'clock this morning.

George C. Barber, a Philadelphia broker who was secretary to Bergdoll's local draft board, testified that in his questionnaire Bergdoll said first that he had been a farmer since childhood and then that he had been a farmer two and a half years. Mayor H. E. Kennedy of Lancaster, Pa., said Bergdoll was not found to be necessary to the conduct of his farm and was therefore placed in class 1-A. This was the decision of the draft board.

It developed that Bergdoll on the day before he was due to appear for physical examination visited not only the head of the local board but Dr. Horace Furness Taylor, chief medical examiner, and then disappeared. Bergdoll refused to be examined physically on that day, Dr. Taylor testified.

Comic relief and a bit of valuable testimony was furnished by J. Wesley Hatton, Justice of the Peace of Broomall, Delaware county, Pa. He testified that Eugene Stecker, who was Grover C. Bergdoll's chauffeur when he escaped in an automobile from two army sergeants in Philadelphia two months ago, also swore before him that Erwin Bergdoll was a farmer. Justice Hatton arrived in New York on Monday and followed the example of New Yorkers in getting lost in the subway. A kind stranger bought him a subway ticket for a dollar and forgot to return the change. Justice Hatton decided if a subway ride in New York cost a dollar he preferred returning to Philadelphia to a New York hotel. He went to Philadelphia Tuesday night, returning yesterday to testify.

Bergdoll's friends who have been present at yesterday's and Monday's sessions of the court-martial profess confidence that Erwin will get off lightly compared to Grover. Erwin's military counsel have pointed out to him that deserters from the front in France got off very lightly. James E. Romig, self-styled bodyguard of the Bergdolls, and Adjutant Gen. Frank D. Henry of Pennsylvania are expected to be the prosecution's last witnesses.

STRAUS GIVES CITY EIGHT MILK DEPOTS

Pasteurization Will Also Be Taken by Copeland.

The Health Department will take over eight Straus milk stations and the Straus Pasteurization Laboratory, Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Health Commissioner, announced last night. These stations, which have distributed milk to the poor for years at a low price, have been supported by Nathan Straus. In making the announcement Dr. Copeland said:

"Nathan Straus, through his milk stations has saved more lives than any one man I know of. His gift of the stations and his distribution of milk to the poor for years at a low price, have been supported by Nathan Straus. In making the announcement Dr. Copeland said:

"The Commissioner also announced ten cases of smallpox and one of typhus now being treated in the city. Every precaution has been taken and at present there is no indication that an epidemic may break out, he said. The general state of health of the community is encouraging, Dr. Copeland added.

MOTOR TRUCK KILLS WOMAN IN CRASH

Baby in Her Lap Escapes With Bruises.

A motor truck alleged to have been travelling south on the left side of Tremont avenue at Park avenue, The Bronx, last night crashed into an automobile in which were Mrs. Madeline Schuel, 34 years old, her daughter, Gertrude, 3 years old, carried in Mrs. Schuel's arms, and Edward F. Schuel, the husband, who was driving. Mrs. Schuel was hurled from the front seat as the truck hood ploughed into the side of the car and fell, carrying the child with her, into the street. She struck on her head and was killed instantly. Gertrude, the infant, in some manner escaped injury, except for a few slight bruises. Schuel was unhurt.

Michael Romer of 55 Elmwood avenue, Bridgeport, Conn., the truck driver, was charged with homicide. The truck was loaded with produce and is owned in Bridgeport. The Schuels' home is at 2045 Davidson avenue, The Bronx.

Smallpox From Jamaica.

Forty-three passengers on the British steamship Princess May, which arrived yesterday from Port Antonio, Jamaica, were sent to Hoffman Island for observation following the discovery of a smallpox case on the vessel. The victim of the disease was sent to Swinburne Island and the ship was disinfectant.

HOLDUPS RAMPANT IN TWO BOROUGHES

Three Cases in Manhattan and Four in Brooklyn Yesterday Reported to Police.

SEVERAL ARE ARRESTED

Woman Ticket Agent at Fulton Street Elevated Station Is Beaten About Head.

Seven holdups, successful or attempted, have been reported in Manhattan and Brooklyn within the last twenty-four hours. In most cases the victims not only were robbed but were assaulted by the robbers. Three of the crimes were committed in Manhattan, four in Brooklyn, and in that borough it is believed the same gang is responsible for all.

Firemen of a hook and ladder company, summoned by Samuel E. Segal, clerk in Reiner's jewelry store, at 143 Eighth avenue, helped subdue a robbery yesterday, knocking a revolver from the hand of Dominick Celano, 32, an artist, in a room at 366 West Twenty-seventh street, and arresting him on a charge of robbery. Isaac Dreyer told the police Celano tried to rob his pawnshop, at 252 Eighth avenue, and struck Dreyer on the head with a revolver.

Patrolman Charles Spreeman, a rookie, of the West Thirty-seventh street station, made his first arrest yesterday, knocking a revolver from the hand of Dominick Celano, 32, an artist, in a room at 366 West Twenty-seventh street, and arresting him on a charge of robbery. Isaac Dreyer told the police Celano tried to rob his pawnshop, at 252 Eighth avenue, and struck Dreyer on the head with a revolver.

Celano is a member of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney's Studio Club at 147 West Fourth street, where he was well thought of, according to the caretaker, Celano was quoted as telling the police that he had only $2.50, with which he bought a pistol from a negro at the Battery, and then, largely on impulse, attempted to rob the pawnbroker. He said he was ready to pay the penalty, according to the police.

Siegfried Z. Blumberg, a druggist at 378 East 125th street, was knocked unconscious late Tuesday night by two men, who took $65 from him. A woman found Blumberg stunned. He could not describe his assailants.

In Brooklyn where the police believe was the same gang robbed a woman R. R. T. ticket agent, a chauffeur, a shipworker and a Chinese laundryman. All the victims were assaulted by the robbers.

Mrs. Catherine Sullivan, 42, of 118 Fulton street, Brooklyn, was attacked in the ticket booth of the Elm street station of the Fulton street elevated line. She fought the heavily built man who demanded money and was knocked unconscious. The man took $23.50, the night's receipts, ran down the stairs and entered a waiting automobile.

Alex Peterson, 45, 242 Forty-second street, Brooklyn, was attacked and robbed by three men at Forty-second street and Third avenue, yesterday. One man in the Methodist Episcopal Hospital suffering from possible fracture of the skull. Thomas Eagen, 49, 845 Fulton street, Brooklyn, was attacked in a taxicab, which he was driving, by six men whom he had been driving about in Fourth avenue between Fortieth and Forty-first streets. He was robbed of $60 and left in his taxicab, dashed by a blow over the head.

Three men started an argument in Jim Jung's laundry, 7508 Thirteenth avenue, Brooklyn, and then attacked him. He retaliated with a fist, but received a knife in the ribs and the three rifled the cash register and disappeared. A year ago the same game was worked on Jung.

REDS PUT POSTERS IN SUBWAY STATIONS

Call for Suppression of Capitalistic Government.

An automobile carrying a party of men supposed to be members of the Communist party, which sped through Brooklyn early yesterday, putting up posters in subway stations and elsewhere calling upon workers to stage a general strike as an expression of sympathy with Soviet Russia, is being sought by Detectives Sergeant Gogan and detectives of the bomb squad.

"Throw down your tools," read the poster. "Call a general strike. Show the United States Government your power. Show your class solidarity. Stand by Soviet Russia. Down with the capitalist Government of the United States."

The poster recited that capitalist governments of the world are determined to crush Russia because it is a Government of the working class. British, French, Italian, German and Austrian workers are refusing to load munitions and move trains carrying war supplies against Soviet Russia. It was stated. The poster was printed on cheap paper and signed "The United Communist Party of America."

A subway watchman at the Forty-fifth street station in Brooklyn, said he noticed the men putting up the poster and furnished the police with a description of them.

WORK FALLS OFF IN BUILDING TRADES

Textile Plants Also Decrease Output in State.

ALBANY, Aug. 11.—A marked decrease in the output of textile plants, and of employment in the building trades was reported for July in a bulletin issued to-day by the State Industrial Commission. In general manufacturing continues without change, observing the seasonal closings for inventories and vacations.

The demand for luxuries continues unabated the report indicates, citing unusual activity in the jewelry trade and in the manufacture of furniture, pianos and other expensive house fittings. High building costs continued to hold down the demand for building materials. The stone, clay and glass group of industries reported 2 per cent. less workers than in June. A 4 per cent. decline in the number of workers was reported in the clothing trades. No reason was given for restricting production.

Certain-Teed Reports Surplus.

Certain-Teed Products Corporation reports for six months ended on June 30 a surplus, after charges and taxes, of $1,066,233, which contrasts with a deficit of $30,699 in the corresponding 1919 period. The company's gross operating profits amounted to $2,682,062 in the second 1920 quarter, against $1,168,495 in the corresponding 1919 period, and its final surplus for the second quarter of 1920, $748,228, against a deficit of $210,659 for the corresponding period of 1919.

FATHER SLAIN WHILE DEFENDING DAUGHTER

Son-in-Law Accused of the Shooting.

Jack Savio, 40 years old, whose wife left him several weeks ago and went back to her father's home at 91 Madison street, arrived from Lawrence, Mass., last night, intending to get her. Frank Cola, 53 years old, her father, met him at the door. There was a short, sharp argument, so loud and heated that neighbors came crowding out of the adjacent doorways and passerby halted.

Some one sent in a call for the police, and reserves came on the run, but it was too late. A revolver shot rang out and Cola dropped from a bullet that entered at the left temple and pierced the brain. When the reserves arrived Savio had been beaten into unconsciousness by the enraged crowd. He was bleeding from heavy cuts that had been made by fists and bootheels on his face. The reserves backed the crowd away from the shooting. The police picked up the men till an ambulance pulled up.

Cola died just after he reached Gouverneur Hospital. Savio recovered, but morosely refused to say anything about the shooting. The police picked up the revolver near Cola's body which they said was Savio's, and charged him with homicide.

TILDSLEY GETS POST LEFT BY SUCCESSOR

Is District Superintendent by Board's Order.

Dr. John L. Tildsley was elected unanimously a district superintendent of schools yesterday by the Board of Education to succeed Edgar Dubs Shimer, recently elevated to an associate superintendent as Dr. Tildsley's successor. Immediately after Dr. Tildsley's defeat for reelection by the Board of Education he was appointed as principal of Bushwick High School. On July 17 the board of superintendents voted to make him a district superintendent.

Once more the final decision in the case against Dr. Oliver C. Marloff, principal of Public School No. 139, Flatbush, charged with kissing one of his former pupils, was deferred. Dr. John A. Ferguson, who represented the Board of Education at the trial, was not present at the meeting yesterday.

DRY AGENTS WORK IN GOLF COSTUME

United States Commissioner Hitchcock held the prisoner in $500 bail, on the complaint of the two disgraced dry sleuths, who were Peter F. Thomas and John Culhane. Thomas Farrell, who leases the Van Cortlandt Inn from who was executed by the agents, who said that Edelweiss had taken a liquor supply secretly and without Farrell's knowledge.

Two arrests were made yesterday in Brooklyn of men said to have been responsible for the theft of seven cases of whiskey from the office of William D. Allen, Jr., in the Federal Building, in that borough. Alfred R. Ketcham, 30, a night watchman in the building, and Peter Kressly, a saloon keeper of 133 Rockaway avenue, were held in $1,500 bail each for the theft, which Ketcham was said to have admitted, saying that he sold it to Kressly for $600. Ketcham is a son-in-law of William H. Parry, Chief Deputy United States Marshal.

Huge Whiskey Cargo Seized —Magistrate Calls Prohibition 'a Joke.'

Edward L. Edelweiss was until yesterday a waiter at the Van Cortlandt Inn, where, it is said, he enjoyed an unprecedented popularity among certain golfers who are regular players on the golf course. But yesterday afternoon two languid youths came into Mr. Edelweiss' life and utterly destroyed his faith in tweed knickerbockers as a key to character.

These two beings sat at one of Mr. Edelweiss' tables and were discussing on golf. Had Mr. Edelweiss so far forgotten himself as to listen to what they were saying he would unquestionably have shuddered, and avoided the mistake he made. He merely subjected them to a hasty scrutiny and that satisfied him. He observed they wore what is described as the proper thing for the golfer but for the cut of their hair at the neck. He considered this detail of no significance at the time.

The languid youths said they would like something to drink, something that a fellow used to be able to get at what was jocosely called the nineteenth hole. Mr. Edelweiss disappeared and then reappeared with a napkin draped with a rather morose effect over a tray. And a moment later Mr. Edelweiss was bitterly reproaching himself for allowing the detail of the hair to pass.

Seize Whiskey Cargo.

Nine men were arrested and $50,000 worth of whiskey was seized at Greenwich, Conn. It was reported, when the attention of agents was called to three automobile trucks, because one of them carried quantities of garlic and another cabbage, both proving to be an attempt to camouflage cases containing the whiskey. The trucks were said to be from New York.

Magistrate Harry Dale, in the Gates Avenue court, Brooklyn, charged yesterday that Brooklyn is infested with "blind tigers" and "pig alleys," and that "prohibition is a joke." These and other sentiments he expressed when Louis Bayliss, owner of a cafe in Gates avenue, complained that John Moylan, B. R. T. motorman, broke down the door of the cafe early Sunday morning and was guilty of burglary. Moylan replied that he had been in the cafe during the afternoon and had had twenty-five drinks of gin.

Magistrate Dale then discharged the motorman and declared that the cafe proprietor should be prosecuted instead. "Why, prohibition is a joke," he said. "It has brought about a condition just as I predicted when I was in Congress. It has deprived the poor workman of his beer and it has flooded the country with rat poison."

James Shevlin, prohibition chief, and that Mr. Edelweiss was under arrest for serving liquor. They took possession internally of the contents of two small glasses, said to have been upon Mr. Edelweiss' tray, and saved two more glasses and contents as external evidence.

United States Commissioner Hitchcock held the prisoner in $500 bail, on the complaint of the two disgraced dry sleuths, who were Peter F. Thomas and John Culhane. Thomas Farrell, who leases the Van Cortlandt Inn from who was executed by the agents, who said that Edelweiss had taken a liquor supply secretly and without Farrell's knowledge.

ON the streets of the greater city through Westchester—along the roads of Long Island—the observer notes the great number of Packard Cars whose bodies are of individual design.

More fine custom built bodies are found on Twin Six chassis than on any other single chassis. Why?

First, consider the great intrinsic value of the Twin Six. A longer life than is commonly found, even in other high-class cars. Exceptional Twin Six engine performance. Comfort and safety far beyond the average.

Every sound consideration calls for the safe insurance of your investment in a special body by mounting on a chassis such as Packard.

Then the experience of the Packard Organization in "Individualizing" motor equipment. Not only does Packard represent the better builders of custom bodies, but it owns one of the best equipped painting, upholstery and service shops to be found anywhere.

Further, the great number of custom bodies designed and sold by the Packard Motor Car Company probably makes this Company the best informed consultant on this subject to be found in New York.

Owing to forehandedness in ordering Custom Bodies, the Packard Company today is able to show a few choice enclosed models of the leading special body builders.

Discriminating buyers who are looking for a fine custom body ought certainly to visit the Packard Showrooms to see these Special Models. They should undoubtedly have a demonstration of the wonderful flexibility, power, comfort and riding qualities of the Packard Twin Six.
