Anarchists Sack Two Churches and Burn a Crucifix.

ATTACK ON ANTI-SEMITES.

An Immense Crowd Around Guerin's Besieged Headquarters.

Cries of "Down with Rochefort, Drumont and Guerin!" Sacred Furnishings of the Wrecked Churches Thrown into the Streets and Burned—Fifty Policemen Injured During the Fighting, One Inspector Killed—The Daily Proceedings—Morally—Leader of the Mob Arrested with Fifty Others—The Daily Proceedings—Recall the Acts of the Communists in 1871—Paris from Their Places and Destroyed—The Crowd Seized the "Carmagnole."

PARIS, Aug. 20.—Several riots occurred here this afternoon. The trouble originated in an attack made by Anarchists on Anti-Semites. A thousand Anarchists under Sebastian Faure assembled in the Place de la Republique and resisted the police who attempted to disperse them. The latter fought bravely, but were finally overpowered.

A police commissioner and an inspector attempted to arrest some rioters who were carrying a red flag, but they were trampled upon and beaten with bludgeons. A number of shots were fired by the mob. The inspector was mortally injured by the clubs, and the commissary was hit by a bullet, receiving a serious wound. Four other policemen were stabbed. Notwithstanding their defeat the police made a number of arrests, among their prisoners being Faure.

Subsequent to the rioting in the Place de la Republique the mob rushed to Rue St. Maurice, where they stormed the churches of St. Maurice and St. Joseph. They entered the buildings, and while some of them tore down the altars and pulpits, others seized the sacred pictures, holy vessels and the Host, the consecrated wafer, all of which were thrown into the street. The altars and pulpits furnished wood for a bonfire, and all the sacred church property was burned. A similar scene was enacted at St. Nicholas's Church. The mob tried to burn the churches, but failed.

While the rioters were storming St. Nicholas's church they were charged by police and cavalry, but they succeeded in carrying out their plan despite the efforts to disperse them. The attacking of the churches recalls the excesses committed by the Communists in 1871. On Saturday night a number of revolutionary Socialists, angered by Guerin's continued defiance of the Government, held a meeting and resolved to make a demonstration against the anti-Semites to-day. Copies of the resolution were distributed by the revolutionary organ, Journal Du Peuple, the populace being called upon to move against the priests and Jesuits.

It was a fine afternoon and the demonstration attracted thousands of Sunday idlers. Soon the crowd was carried away by the banners of the leaders, and many and frequent were the cries of "Down with Rochefort, Drumont and Guerin." It was at this point that the police interfered, whereupon the crowd turned on them.

A vast crowd, estimated to number twenty thousand persons, assembled to-night in the Boulevard de Magenta, which transects Rue de Chateauroux, in which street is located the headquarters of the Anti-Semite League. There was also a large crowd in Rue Beaumarchais around the offices of the Petit Republicain.

During the fighting that has occurred fifty arrests made up to midnight. Faure, with four confederates named Dhorz, Ferreris, Perrin and Well, faked when it was seen that blood had been shed. The five men tried to make their escape by climbing to the top of a tram car which was going toward the Louvre. Inspector Noriot saw them, however, and stopped the car and arrested them. They were all locked up in the Chateau d'Eau Barracks.

The mob which attacked St. Joseph's Church carried hatchets and long knives, which had been taken from the counters of various shops. The aged sacristan, seeing the rioters coming, hastily closed the outer gates, but his precaution was futile. The mob attacked the gates with hatchets and long bars of iron, and soon forced them open. The oak doors were next attacked. They finally gave way and the crowd burst into the church.

The six aisle and baptismal font were thrown to the ground. The holy water stoups were broken, pictures were torn, and the statues and other devotional objects were thrown to the floor and smashed to pieces. Next the mob attacked the high altar. The tabernacle was torn from its place. The sacred hosts were thrown on the ground and trampled upon, and the candlesticks were broken. The altar was then set on fire.

The altar was then set on fire. The altar was then set on fire. The altar was then set on fire. The altar was then set on fire. The altar was then set on fire. The altar was then set on fire. The altar was then set on fire. The altar was then set on fire. The altar was then set on fire. The altar was then set on fire.

While some sang the "Carmagnole," the rioters seized the chairs and carried them to the main square in front of the church, where a bonfire was made of them. Not content with the destruction that had been wrought, some of the mob returned to the sanctuary and succeeded in pulling down the crucifix, which they then threw into the flames.

Some one raised the cry that the statue of the Virgin had been forgotten. Back into the church poured the crowd and quickly they pulled down the image. Meanwhile the sacristan, whose name is Theroux, had been captured by the Anarchists. He succeeded in escaping, however, and immediately warned the police. A detachment of the Republican Guard and many constables soon arrived, but they were compelled to fall

THE DREYFUS FORGERIES.

DEMAND THAT MERCIER REVEAL THE AUTHOR OF THE LATTER.

DEFENSE WILL PROBE THE SCHNEIDER AFFAIR.

ESTERHASY'S LATEST STATEMENT AS TO THE GORGES OF THE BORDIERE—DISORDER IN PARIS HURTS DREYFUS'S CASE—M. LABORI MAY BE ABLE TO ATTEND TO-DAY'S SESSION.

PARIS, Aug. 20.—The chief interest here tonight centers in the news from Paris. It is deeply regretted by Dreyfus's defenders that the peculiar situation should have led some of the most disorderly elements in France to range themselves, for malevolent purposes, in the real chambers of justice and truth. Such is the fact. Professor Dreyfus's cause has suffered severely during recent months on account of its unsought supporters among the enemies of society. The honor of the situation in which M. Guerin, armed with two thousand bottles of St. Galmier water, is successfully defying the government of France, does not appeal to those concerned in the serious case that is being enacted here.

The defendant's lawyers are not ready to announce how they will deal with the important development of Schneider's denial of the genuineness of a document which is one of the chief reliances of Dreyfus's accusers. It is expected that they will promptly demand that Gen. Mercier disclose the source of this forgery and if he does not reveal it he and the other Generals will stand convicted of still another black outrage.

The manuscript of Esterhazy's latest story was received here from him to-day. Each fresh statement from this pitiable villain goes a step further in the direction outlined in previous despatches to THE SUN. He now insists that the bordier was a woman, and that her name, copied by him (Esterhazy), went to the German Embassy when Col. Schwartzkoppen was absent, and thence through to Col. Henry by a French spy. This was done because Sandherr was exasperated over his inability to secure proof of Dreyfus's treason, and he was convinced by evidence which it was impossible to use publicly on account of its involving names which could not be disclosed.

This is one of several mysteries which the lawyers for the defence say they will clear up before the trial is finished. Dreyfus's counsel, Maître Labori, who is up and about, is much improved, though he is by no means cured, his wound being still open. He said to-night: "I will not appear in court to-morrow unless I find I cannot stay away. If I find that my impatience because of my absence is worse for me than the exertion of sitting taking my post, then I will attend the latter portion of to-morrow's session."

Recess to-day is abnormally, almost ominously, quiet. The streets are completely deserted. MORE PLOTTERS TO BE ARRESTED? Rumor that M. Millevoye was One of Them Being Hunted by the Government.

PARIS, Aug. 20.—There are rumors that further arrests of plotters against the Government will be made, but they cannot be confirmed. It was stated that the arrest of M. Millevoye, a Nationalist leader, was imminent, and he was to be arrested by the Gendarmes if the report was true. The latter said the Government had no intention of arresting him. The Anti-Semite leader Guerin and his friends, who are harbored in the headquarters of the Anti-Semite League, are being hunted by the authorities to arrest them for their part in the bread. Some of their friends on the outside attempted to smuggle supplies to them to-day, but were prevented by the police. La Parrie declares that English newspapers paid Esterhazy 25,000 francs to declare himself the author of the bordier.

AN INVASION OF CATERPILLARS. Fashionable Neighborhood in Chicago Overrun and Many Lawns Spoiled.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—Chicago is being overrun by caterpillars. A cloud of butterflies descended there a few days ago, and the first caterpillar pest was noticed on Friday. They soon began to increase in numbers. Soon they were everywhere except the railroads and the wires, and doors were not well screened, they even invaded houses. The sidewalks of Prairie avenue from Eighteenth street to Twenty-second street were covered with them. Women walk in the streets and do not sweep them up with their hats. Great patches of lawn have been eaten down to the ground. The lawn around Marshall Field's house has suffered severely. S. W. Allerton's place also has suffered. Frank O. Lowden's lawn looked as if it had been rolled with a hot iron, while the grass around Ferman's house was as brown as if winter were at hand.

MRS. ALDEN'S JEWELS STOLEN. Taken During the Fireman's Parade at Yonkers.

YONKERS, N. Y., Aug. 20.—While the crowd of visitors were here on Friday to witness the State Firemen's Parade the house of Herbert Alden, at 147 Warburton avenue, was robbed of diamonds and jewelry amounting to more than $3500 in value. Mrs. Alden, who is a publisher, accompanied by her wife and five children, left her home at 10 o'clock, and returned at 6 o'clock. She had just returned to her bed-room, and discovered that a tin box, in which she kept her jewels, was gone. It was not found until she had returned to her home. She immediately proceeded to the Alden home, with Detective Sergeant Valley, of the New York Central office, who, with four other city detectives had been assigned to duty here during the convention was called. It was found that Mrs. Alden had information which will probably lead to the arrest of a prominent Yonkers man as the culprit. An inventory of what the box contained was taken, and the principal articles were a diamond brooch, valued at $2,500; a diamond earring of $500 value; a gold hunting case watch, which cost $150; several rings, and other trinkets worth about $400. It is said that a warrant will probably be procured to-morrow for the arrest of the suspect. He is said to recently become financially embarrassed.

CANAL BREAK AT SYRACUSE. Water Driven Off From the Five-Mile Level to Repair Lock 49.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 20.—A serious break occurred in the Erie Canal here at Lock 49 this morning. The lock diked at Lock 49 this morning. The lock did not fill and notified Supt. Thompson of the middle division. He discovered that the under part of the partition between the two locks had washed away and that it leaked in two places. He immediately ordered the water to be drawn off from the Five-Mile Level. About 200 boats will be delayed by the trouble. It cannot be found out how much damage has been done until all the water has been drawn off. A force of men will work day and night until repairs are made.
