

HERO OF GALLIPOLI SNEAKS INTO ACTION

(Correspondence Associated Press)
LONDON, Dec. 12.—The story of a colonel of Australian infantry who was wounded in the Gallipoli campaign and sent back to Australia but who concealed his rank and re-enlisted as a private to serve with the Australians in France has added to the esteem in which Australians are held in London. Colonel Charles Melville Macnaghten, the hero of the story, is hailed as a man of gallantry and grit.

He was the son of Sir Melville Macnaghten, chief of the criminal investigation department of Scotland Yard, says the Daily Mail, and was practicing law in Australia when the war began. He was the major in command of the first brigade which landed at Anzac Cove on Gallipoli peninsula. Within two days he was wounded three times. After recovery in England he returned to Gallipoli and led his battalion in their immortal charge at Lone Pine.

After the evacuation of Gallipoli he served for a time in Egypt and was sent from there to England suffering from wounds and fever. Surgeons refused him permission to return to active service and he was sent to Australia as second in command of an Australian training camp.

One day he slipped away from the camp and joined a replacement battalion in Queensland under the name of Charles Melville and soon afterward was back in England training on Salisbury Plain as Private Melville. He was quickly promoted to be corporal and one day was asked by his commanding officer, "Corporal, do you think you could go to this company?" Having commanded a brigade, the corporal put the company through its paces like the veteran he was.

Back in France again he was recognized by officers who had known him in Gallipoli as the daring and brilliant soldier they had called "fighting Mac." General Birdwood, with whom he had served at Lone Pine, sent for him and gave him a commission. Not long afterwards Colonel Macnaghten was again sent as an invalid to England where he was summoned to Buckingham palace to receive from the king a decoration as a companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George which had been conferred upon him several years before for gallantry at Gallipoli. While serving in the ranks in France as "Corporal Melville" he had been personally congratulated by the commanding general for valor at Messines Ridge. Macnaghten's fighting days are now over and he is compelled to recognize this fact for, as one of his men put it, "he is 'addled like a colander and it is only his fighting spirit which keeps him alive.'"

Utah Indians Decimated By Ravages of Influenza

(By Associated Press)
SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 22.—Certain tribes of Indians on reservations in Utah have been almost decimated by the influenza epidemic, according to unconfirmed reports reaching the state board of health here. The scourge is said to have caused the death of at least 2000 of the different tribesmen on a part of the Navajo reservation in southern Utah and Arizona, one report says.

Advices from San Juan county in the southern part of the state, say that fully 2000 perished when the epidemic swept the Navajo reservation. Bodies are being found in many out of the way places, it is reported, where Indians, men, women and children died alone and far from medical assistance. A canvass is being made in this section, and it is feared that one or two small tribes may have been wiped out entirely. Realizing the epidemic character of the disease the Indians wander away from their tribesmen, it is said, and strict account of deaths is virtually impossible.

The Uinta reservation, situated in Uinta county, this state, also has had a visitation of the scourge, according to a letter received recently from an employe of the Indian service at Ouray, Uinta county, by Thomas Redmond, former field inspector for the government bureau of animal industry. Up to New Year's day, says the letter, 62 Indians on the Uinta reservation had died of influenza. More than 20 Uncompaghe tribesmen have gone to meet the Great White Father, the letter says. Members of the Willow Creek tribe have left the reservation for the hills and it was not known whether they had suffered. Little Creek Utes, from this reservation, are said to have suffered to some extent.

Hydraulic Cartridges.
It is often difficult and sometimes dangerous to use ordinary explosives for mining and excavating in confined spaces, a fact that has led to the development of the hydraulic mining cartridge.

The cartridge consists of a steel cylinder containing numerous small pistons that move at right angles to the axis of the cylinder and expand when water is injected into them by a hand pump. After drilling a hole through the rock the worker inserts the cylinder and then sets to work at a hand pump.

The tiny pistons expand until they free themselves from against the mass of rock with constantly increasing force and the rock is gradually freed under tremendous pressure. The operation, it is said, is not only cheap, but the ordinary blast drill disintegrates a larger area of rock.

INSURANCE AGENTS DEMAND HIGHER PAY

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, Jan. 22.—Two thousand agents employed by a London insurance company have notified their employer's officers that they will strike unless their weekly wage of about $14.65 is not increased by $5. They have also inaugurated a move to organize the agents of other companies, and thus enforce the demand throughout the country. At the preliminary meeting, when the demands were formulated, and the men appointed a committee to call on the directors, their leader, David Jones, of Leeds, advised them to make their demands retroactive from January 1, 1918, in order that they might be repaid for the advanced cost of living in the last year of the war. "If your demands are refused," said Mr. Jones, "take concerted action within a month." The suggestion was cheered. The men claim that the company pays to its stockholders 40 per cent. free of income tax, on a capitalization of $5,000,000.

NOT HILARIOUS OVER AMENDMENT

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—One would hardly say that the doughboys who reached this port today received with barely the news of the ratification of the prohibition national amendment.

They had first learned of the nation's impending drought at 7 o'clock this morning, when reporters boarded the transport boats from a revenue cutter, carrying copies of the New York morning dailies with the news that only three more states were needed to make the nation dry. By the time the Belgies docked the three additional states had ratified the amendment.

"Say, what is this about the country going dry? Is that straight?" "Good night, isn't there any booze left?"

"Isn't there even any machine over here?"

"I'm going back to France, 'torture' which is the way a doughboy says 'darned quick' in French.

Those are samples of the remarks shouted from the decks of the Belgies.

Some of the men were angry, declaring it was not fair that the country should be made dry while they were away and had nothing to say. Others took it philosophically and asserted it did not make any difference to them either way, while there were a few who said it would probably be a good thing for every body concerned.
