Where do they go, I wonder. The clouds on a cloudy day. When the evening sun comes peeping out...

A GOOD WATCH-DOG.

How he Barked an Alarm of Fire and Saved the Woodshed. One day Mary, the cook, went to see her mother, who was sick. The children were all at school...

Hardly had she begun to sew, when she heard him bark again. Now, Dan was a good watch-dog, and always barked when any one came in the gate...

Just as soon as Dan saw her downstairs she stopped again. Thinking that some one must be going into the cellar, Mrs. White went down to look...

Mrs. White kept on sewing at first, but the dog made such a noise that she soon saw she would have to quit him. "I wonder what he wants," she said...

BILLY DODD'S IDEA.

The Lesson Taught by a Dream to a Boy Who Had a Good Mind Not to Try to Learn.

"I certainly seem cruel for parents to insist on their boys going to school when the day is fine for a game of ball, kite-flying, sailing, coasting, or building snow forts...

Billy Dodd had some such idea as that, as he afterwards told me, on a certain day when the chestnuts were just ready to drop into the eap of any fellow who could get under the trees...

Then, feeling particularly indolent, and lulled by the murmur of the waters, he fell asleep, and the whole of the water-sprite came and sat on his eyelid, for straightway he began to dream...

A VICTORIOUS BOOK.

The Past and Future of the Bible—What It Has Done and Is Still Doing—Forever Triumphant.

When our readers hold the rippling assertion that the Bible is an obsolescent book, that the age is outgrowing it, and it is less read now than in former years, and less influential, we suggest to them to recall what they know of its history...

SOLID FOOD.

The American Audience Wants and Demands of the Palpit.

"The age has no patience with triflers and abnegates laziness. Nothing but solid merit will gain a hearing with an American audience for any length of time.

"I have dropped one for I've only four; see it is over there by your chair? thanks—now, what shall I do? Is it no play? Mercy! what's the trumps? Diamond! why I haven't a red card in my hand. Oh, do I have to follow suit? There I played the wrong one—but never mind. Is that ours? No! Well, if I can't follow suit, can't I trump? How stupid! did I throw away the wrong card? Didn't I follow suit? Oh, I'm so sorry; I never mind. I do wish you had let me know you had the right power. It's all your fault. Mercy! there's the bell, and we haven't a point." -N.Y. Commercial Advertiser.

The Progressive Talker at Progressive Euchre.

In playing progressive euchre, of course you do not have the satisfaction of always meeting with interesting and scientific partners. But of all them, allow me to mention the fidgety, fussy little woman who plays euchre after this style: "Oh, I can't get my cards together! thanks! Oh, dear, there's our—I've dropped one for I've only four; see it is over there by your chair? thanks—now, what shall I do? Is it no play? Mercy! what's the trumps? Diamond! why I haven't a red card in my hand.

The remedy has stood a test of forty years, and has proven itself in every instance the best blood purifier, system renovator and strengthening cordial that can be compounded from a thorough knowledge of medicinal herbs and roots.
