

A contemporary mentions a case beyond the ordinary onist. It is that of a young lady who, instead of a pupil, has a professor in her eye.

TEACHERS' COLUMN.

"As the Teacher is, so is the School."

History as a School Study, and How to Make the Study Interesting.

History may be properly styled moral philosophy. It is moral philosophy of the past, because its principles are exemplified by the lives and actions of men in the past, as well as the systematic conclusions derived therefrom, are all molded by certain processes in the school of actual life in the world.

History as a school study is not a matter of mere facts. It is a matter of understanding the past as it is a part of our present. It is a matter of seeing the past as it is a part of our future.

low-headed son to be President of the United States, or even told him that he could be.

Besides the thought already brought forward, that a knowledge of the history of our republic is necessary that we may intelligently do our duty as citizens, there is still another thought equally as valuable and philosophic in its teaching.

The vessels that go from Lake Huron to Lake Michigan, during gales, often find themselves in great straits.

study from a text-book. By this time, if you are an average pupil, you will have read a mass for history and a flaming desire that can not be extinguished.
