NOT AFRAID

Of the Whole Crowd.

Brittain's Burglar Made Good His Escape.

He Outwitted 25 Farmers and Officers.

They Had Him Surrounded In the Woods.

Walked Boldly Out—Threatened to Kill Crowd.

Just when and how he entered the house is not known, but at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon a burglar was seen emerging from a window in the residence of a farmer named Sechrist, in Springfield township, two miles east of Akron.

Clutched in one of his hands was a revolver; in the other was a gold watch, two gold rings and a razor, stolen property.

Although several persons were about the house, seeing him and he seeing them, the burglar walked away in a most deliberate and unconcerned mannar. He was apparently not afraid.

And then another singular feature presents itself: Several men, it seems, witnessed the departure of the burglar. Stupified for a moment at the thief's boldness, the men remained inactive. Recovering themselves, they started after him, overtook him, and for a short distance walked almost side by side with him. But he was armed, and they were not.

Finally the bold desperado ordered the men to leave, threatening to shoot if they refused to do so. They obeyed, but kept an eye on his movements, meanwhile arousing the neighborhood.

Soon a chase was instituted and the crowd of pursuers kept growing larger and larger. Some were mounted, others in buggies and yet others to a large number on foot. Excitement, intense from the first, now began to assume furious proportions.

Soon the bad man was coralled in a wood on the Brittain farm, three miles east of Akron. A crowd of 25 farmers had him surrounded. Some were armed with double barreled shotguns, others with revolvers, and a few had corn cutters, while one, with rare presence of mind, brought along a copy of one of Mark Hanna's late speeches on trusts, which as a last measure of threatening violence he intended to exhibit to the burglar, and if he refused to surrender the stolen articles, taking his own life in his hands, it was the further intention to read the speech to him, with the hope that if death would come to his relief, he would become an easy prey to the pursuers.

But the thief then became desperate, reason apparently forsaking her throne, and he defied the whole phalanx, with Mark's speech thrown in.

The next move was to send to Akron for help. Deputies Sheriff Hollinger and Stone started at once, with Sheriff Kelly following in hot haste. The police department was notified and in a short time the patrol wagon with four big officers was hastening to the scene, amid a cloud of dust and grave apprehensions.

All along the line, people were hurrying to the wood. some on bicycles and others running, all out of breath.

At the woods the farmers at first debated what to do. Some suggested that the thief be lassoed, others declared that he ought to be gigged, and while one was advocating the idea of sailing into him with a corn cutter, others stood around like an accusing conscience on the 5th day July, and listened with respect to the lamentation of a man who regretted that Bosco wasn't there to "eat the thief alive."

The burglar, in a few well chosen words, declared his intention of retiring from the scene, which he did in the most song-froid manner.

The whole thing was funny; the farmers, county officers and police, besides the reporters and other prominent citizens, all standing around, trying to blame it on the other, while the thief continued on.

And then an undue quietness, broken only by the tinkling of a cowbell in the valley, settled over all, while the crowd dispersed for their respective vines and fig trees to discover where they were at.

The thief escaped so completely that no trace could be got of him.

It is thought he is one of a gang of tramps whose headquarters have been in a swamp just south of Weeks' pottery establishment in East Akron. In company with several police officers a reporter for the DEMOCRAT visited the camp Thursday evening. It was then deserted, but there were on the ground pots, skillets, tin cans and fire wood. A hollow tree served for a cupboard and in it were stored sugar and salt.

The tramps have been there for some time, and are thought to be a bad set of fellows. They usually creep into the pottery establishments to sleep at night.

These carbuncles on society, however, are going to get into trouble if they are again caught in the neighborhood. They will be promptly arrested; but it is thought this exciting incident will cause them to leave. The men are well supplied with arms.

Early Wednesday morning, before daybreak, a driver of one of Renner's brewery wagons was driving along in the vicinity. A small, smooth-faced tramp approached him and asked him to go with him to assist in thrashing some members of the camp, whom he said, "have it in for me."

Of course the driver didn't go, whereupon the tramp replied: "Well, I'm prepared to fix 'em," at the same time displaying a razor and a revolver.

SALT TRUST

May be Ousted From State of Ohio.

Local Correspondent Calls Attorney General's Attention to Operations.

The recent purchase of the Loomis Salt company by the trust has been called to the attention of Attorney General Monnett and it may result in action being commenced to oust it from doing business in this state.

A letter was forwarded to Columbus from this city giving details of the operation of the trust in this state. The correspondent says the trust has "distributing agents" in all the large cities and gives the following names of them:

Joy, Martin & Co., Chicago; L. J. Pettit, Milwaukee; J. F. Curry, St. Louis; J. H. Wasson, Columbus; Cutter & Guilbert, Duluth; W. D. Creassy & Son, Cincinnati; A. S. Nichols, Michican City, Ind.; M. Basshare, Toledo; and F. A. Hobbs, Benton Harbor, Mich.

He says the total output of the trust is four million barrels per year and that they have increased the price of salt since the organization was made to the extent of 80 cents per barrel.

This means that the organization of the trust increases the profits of salt dealers to the amount of $1,200,000 per annum, all of which comes out of the pookets of the salt consumers.

WILL OF VANDERBILT.

It Gave Cornelius Only $1,500,000.

ALFRED HEAD OF THE HOUSE.

He Gets $50,000,000—Others Given $7,500,000 Apiece—Alfred Raised Cornelius' Share to That Amount and the Latter Accepted—Charitable Bequests.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Senator Depew gave out a statement of the terms of the will of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt. It shows that the fortune is estimated at $70,000,000. Alfred Gwynn Vanderbilt will get about $50,000,000. He thus becomes the head of the family. The will gives Cornelius Vanderbilt about $1,500,000. It gives to each of his remaining brothers and sister about $7,500,000. Alfred, of course, not included.

Out of the spirit of affection and for the purpose of satisfying all of the members of the family, Alfred Gwynn Vanderbilt gives his brother, Cornelius, enough of his inheritance to make his fortune equal to that of the other members, namely, $7,500,000. Senator Depew says that Cornelius Vanderbilt has accepted this arrangement in the spirit in which it was offered.

Mrs. Vanderbilt gets for life the dwelling house and premises on Fifth avenue between Fifty-seventh and Fifty-eighth streets, also the stable, in East Thirty-eighth street, certain pictures, etc., the pew in Trinity church, Newport, R. I., houses vehicles, etc., house and stables, etc., in Newport, $2,000,000 in money or securities, as she may elect, and an annual income of $250,000, from securities to be set apart by the executors.

A legacy of $100,000 is given to the Young Men's Christian association of New York city and the desire is expressed that the income, so far as practicable, be used for Christian work among railroad employes.

Also, a bequest of $200,000 is given to the rector, church wardens and vestrymen of St. Bartholomew's church, to be kept invested by them and the annual income applied to the missionary work of the parish.

There is a further bequest of $200,000 for the erection of a building for church purposes in said parish, contingent upon its not having been erected prior to the testator's death, the surplus, if any, to be added to the bequest last above named.

Also to the Protestant Episcopal Society for Seamen in the city of New York a bequest of $10,000 is given, and Turner's painting of the Grand canal, Venice, is given to the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York.

THE SULTAN WAS EASY.

Sulu Royal Family's Support Secured For What Would Have a Good Circus.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—War department officials refused to make public any of the provisions of the arrangement made by General Bates with the sultan of Sulu, the southernmost group of the Philippines, but state that its main features have been touched upon in the cabled press reports from Manila. The document arrived in Washington about six weeks ago.

A cabinet officer said that General Bates had secured for the United States the valuable services of the whole royal family of Sulu for the compensation of a good circus, and provided for the immediate mitigation of the conditions of the slaves and their ultimate emancipation. Not being in actual possession of the Sulu group (and Spain has never been able to obtain more than a nominal suzerainty over it) the ability of the United States military commander to effect these things, besides preserving peace and opening the islands to trade, is regarded as commendable.

It is further said that this arrangement is not permanent, and does not prevent different treatment of the islands in the future, and still further, it has not been approved thus far by the president, and may be rejected if it is deemed proper to do so. The arrangement is regarded as a purely military one, fully within the powers of the American commanding officer to draw up, and so it will not be submitted to the senate as would be a treaty, but will be merely transmitted as a matter of information.

HARRISBURG, Oct. 27.—These pardons, among others, were recommended by the board of pardons: Harry Shanley, Washington county, larceny; Geo. Straesser, Allegheny, murder first degree; Samuel J. Frost, Lawrence, felonious rape. Among the applications refused were these: William Jonnston, Allegheny, felonious assault and battery; Edward Glosser, Allegheny, felonious assault and battery; Jacob F. Gates, Allegheny, false pretenses; John Nikirk, Lawrence, larceny; Warren Major, Warren, assault with intent to rob. A rehearing was granted in the case of Barnet Pelinick and Rosa Pelinick of Philadelphia. These cases, among others, were held under advisement: Hartman Coleman, Allegheny, embezzlement; Cornelius W. Shaw and Joseph Birch, Allegheny, burglary; Peter McCarthy, Mercer, burglary; Eli Cady, Washington, felonious rape. Other cases were continued.
