Tortured by Masked Robbers.

Mansfield, Aug. 15.—Details have been received here of a brutal robbery Sunday night at the home of a farmer named John Miller, who lives three miles west of Plymouth. Four masked men broke into the house and tormented Miller and his wife from midnight until 4 o'clock Monday morning by burning their feet and other fiendish tortures. They obtained only $2 and two gold watches. Miller's daughter, Amy, aged 23, struck one of the robbers with a carpet sweeper; he shot at her but missed her. Miller recognized two of the men as tramps who had been aided by Mrs. Miller Sunday evening.

Holds the Motorman Responsible.

He holds Motorman Earl Martin responsible for the accident, on the ground that he disobeyed orders in running his car without reporting it at Northfield. Neglected impurities in your blood will sow seeds of disease of which you may never get rid. If your blood is even the least bit impure, do not delay, but take Hood's Sarsaparilla at once. PLIGHT OF A BASHFUL MAN.

He Would Have Gone If He Could Have Summoned Up Courage to Ask for His Hat.

"I always was a bashful sort of a fellow when I was young," said Ananas Fisher, as he passed his plate for the third piece of pie. He was dining out with friends and wished them to understand his temperament.

"But I was broken of that habit before I was 25. It was either a case of get over it or stay all night, and I got over it," he said, as his plate was returned with a good sized piece of pie such as Topeka housekeepers make. "I was calling, out on Fillmore street, and when I went in I forgot all about putting my hat on the rack in the hall, and carried it into the parlor with me. I put it on a sofa, and when the lady of the house came in she said 'how-dye-do' and sat her 200 pounds down on that hat."

"I beg your pardon," I said.

"Why, what's the matter?" she asked, for I seem I looked kind of bewildered.

"O, nothing," I answered. "I just got a stitch in my heart."

"We went on talking, and I thought that when she got up I could sneak that hat, but she turned and talked to me."

"It got along to nine o'clock, and I knew I ought to go, but I was too bashful to say anything, so I just waited. Then the clock struck ten, and I knew I was staying too long, but I could not get that hat."

"Is it moonlight?" asked the 280-pound lady.

"I said it was, and knew she wanted me to go, but I did not have the nerve to ask for that hat. Just as the clock struck 12 she blurted out: 'Why don't you go?'"

"I will if you will give me that hat," I said.

"What hat?"

"My hat."

"Where is it?"

"You are sitting on it."

"Me? and she jumped up."

"There was my hat, and it looked much sat upon, but no more than that woman. I have never been bashful since then."—Burlington Hawkeye.

THERE IS A LIMIT.

The Fourth Gentleman Severely Strained the Bounds of Human Credulity.

"You may not believe it, gentlemen," remarked one of an after-dinner group engaged in smoking cigars in front of a hotel. "but I have used a fountain pen constantly for four years, and have never had the least trouble with it."

"That is indeed remarkable," rejoined another. "Nevertheless I am the father of six children and have never had to walk the floor by night with a single one of them."

"There was a silence, lasting a minute or so. Then another spoke up: 'I don't doubt it, in the least,' said he, 'for I can testify to something stranger still. I have a bright little four-year-old boy at my house, and I've never repeated any of his smart sayings to my most intimate friends.'

"Gentlemen," observed a fourth, after a protracted and somewhat painful pause, "I am fond of hearing young women practice their scales on the piano after I have retired to rest. It lulls me to sleep."

One or two other members of the group made more or less feeble attempts to say something, but faintly gave it up. It seemed to be generally felt that the extreme limit of human credulity had been reached.—London Telegraph.

The Battle Field Route.

The Veterans of sixty-one and five, and their friends, who are going to attend the 33rd G. A. R. An Optimistic View.

"The lies the blamed newspapers publish about us," said one politician to another, "is enough to drive a man to drink."

"Yes, that's so," replied the other, "but still we have no cause for complaint."

"Why not?" asked the first, in surprise.

"Well, it might be much worse," was the reply. "They might publish the truth,"—Chicago Evening News.

An Explanation.

"It strikes me this ice water is dirty," said a Cincinnati hotel guest.
