CONCLUDED STORY.

The editor of The Reporter has had another effervescent spasm. An examination of the bile is found to contain three ingredients: ignorance, bullheadedness and maliciousness, with a slight trace of enlargement of the cranium. Ignorance of the whole matter in question in the first instance. Bullheadedness, because when he found out his mistake he was not man enough to acknowledge and apologize. Maliciousness, because finding his first statements untenable he has switched off, and makes new charges, for which there is no excuse. He tried to mix the fair association up with it, and lastly charges continuous gambling in the village and ropes in the saloon question.

In reply we say that there is not a better governed village than ours in the state of Ohio, or where less vice and crime has been committed in the last ten years, and a large majority of our citizens seem satisfied.

All this has been accomplished without outside interference in the past, and all that can be said by a young editor will have little weight regarding the moral standing of our village or its officers. Don't think you have been appointed a conservator of the peace for Lorain county, it was just supervisor of enumeration, that's all, but if you are disposed to take up the work of moral reformation you will not have to go outside your own bailiwick for plenty of work. See mayors docket, and Lorain county records for comparison. Well, some things improve with age and therein lies our hope.

In conclusion we will make this proposition. We will send the Reporter $5, to pay for the space and cost of composition, if they will publish a correct statement of the arrest of the street gamblers and what followed until their cases were disposed of, together with the sensational trash you have been feeding your readers on, side by side, and let the public see who, if any one is deserving of censure. Nothing could be more fair or just, and that would be the end of the controversy. Now write up or shut up.

Last Wednesday evening the Oberlin council passed an ordinance granting the electric railroad company a franchise in the village. Our council will be asked to do likewise at their next regular meeting. Then if the farmers along the line will do their part we will soon have an electric load.

AUCTION SALE OF HORSES

I will sell at public auction on the fair grounds at Wellington, O., on Saturday September 23, 1899, beginning at 10 o'clock a. m., 20 head of young horses and colts ranging in age from weanlings to four year olds, (nearly all standard bred, several matched pairs,) all bred by Vigil Rene, (No. 11816,) and Buckeye Bourbon, (No. 17253,) both well known sires of high class carriage and roadster horses. Every colt offered at this sale, with one exception, is a fine colored bay, and they have all been selected with great care for individual excellence and soundness. This type of high class horses has never been as scarce in this country as at the present time, from the fact that the recent depression in the horse market has caused the farmers to stop breeding. What is the use of paying exorbitant prices for cattle for feeding purposes, when you can come to this sale and buy high class colts at your own price, for all of these will positively be sold to the highest bidder without reserve. Sale will begin promptly at 10 o'clock rain or shine. Every animal sold guaranteed as represented. These colts will be kept at my place one half mile south of Wellington, O., until the day of sale, and all are invited to call and look them over.—Terms: One year time, 6 per cent interest, with approved security. S. K. Warner, Trum Mead, auctioneer.
