To Gineral Pierce, President of America, and agoing to be (that is, if Gineral Cushing is'nt mistaken,) the founder of "Modern Rome."

DEAR GINERAL: I'm afraid you've thought strange of it that I haint writ to you afore now, for so long time past; but I couldn't. I've been so busy cruising round among the fishermen down to New Brunswick, and Nova Scotia, and the Gulf of St. Lawrence, that I couldn't get no time to write, nor couldn't find no post office to send it. Ye see, Gineral, I didn't accept your invitation to take a seat in your Cabinet, 'cause I'm one of them sort that can't bear setting a great deal. I can't stand it without I'm up and knocking about pretty much every day, and I understood the Cabinet had to set nigh about half the time, so I told you I should a good deal rather have some foreign appointment, where I could stir myself. And you told me the foreign appointments was pretty much all spoke for twenty times over, but you would give me a commission of Minister Gineral, and I might go round and look after the interest of the country whenever I thought best. Now that was just what I liked; you couldn't a gin me no appointment that would suit me better.

Wal, my first cruise, Gineral, has been away down East, and a little beyond; for I thought 'twas high time them fishermen of ourn down there was looked arter. I heard they were getting wrathy, and the Britishers was flockin' in there with their armed vessels agin, and there was pretty likely to be a muss if 'twasnt seen to; and I knew twould be a good cool place in this hot Summer weather, so I sculled off. I went all along the coast, and boarded the fishermen, and talked with the skippers, and give 'em good advice. I'm sorry to say their backs is up pretty round. They swear they'll never stan that straight line "from headland to headland" no way you can fix it. They say the cod-fish and the mackerel are a good deal thicker inside the line than they are out, and they are bound to go where's the best fishin, let who will stan in the way. Wal, Gineral, since most of our politicians and office-seekers is doing the same thing and setting 'em the same example, I couldn't find it in my heart to blame 'em much; for who is there among 'em all, politicians and office-seekers, that stans much about any straight line from headland to headland, when they think there's any better fishin 'tother side of it?

Howsoever, I guess you may calculate the fishermen will remain quiet this Summer if they are allowed to fish where they are a mind to, and the British vessels don't crowd 'em too hard. But if they do, you must look out for a regular row that'll stir the whole camp of Young America. I got home last week, and have been overhauling the newspapers, and having talks with Uncle Joshua, and larning how things is getting on. I see that you and some of the Cabinet have been on to New York to see the openin of the Crystal Palace, and had a good time. I'm glad to find your Administration is getting on so swiminly, and that you have got such a fust rate Cabinet round you. I like Mr. Marcy better and better; he's sich a prudent man and a fust rate Dimocrat. I always heard he was prudent and savin and wasn't ashamed to have his clothes mended as long as they was decent, before he would go into any extravagance to get new ones. And I'm right glad he's going to set such a good example to the country by making our foreign ministers and consuls follow his prudent ways. His circular of the first of June has been worth a hundred dollars to me right off, to begin with.—When I got home I says to Uncle Joshua, says I, "Uncle, I want you to lend me a hundred dollars, and I'll give you an order on the President for it to take it out of my salary; for I'm agoing to take a circulating tower to Europe with my commission of Minister General, to see that England and France puts a stop to that Russian war, and I've got to get a bran new rig for a court dress."

Uncle Joshua laughed, and says he, "Major, you can save yourself that trouble and expense. I guess you haint seen Mr. Marcy's circular. Our foreign ministers and consuls have all got to wear the plainest home spun clothes, just as Dr. Franklin did when he was a minister in the beginning of the Government. The circular says, it is to be regretted that there was ever any departure in this respect from the example of Dr. Franklin." And it goes on and lays down the rules about plain clothes in a most thorough dimocratic manner. And the Union newspaper, I don't know whether it's an organ or not, but it puts on airs and speaks as though it was talking by authority, and it says the Administration is determined to "exhibit the same progressive American spirit in the clothing business, that it does in its other foreign relations; and that it is time to restore the strongly marked republicanism of Dr. Franklin's clothes. So, Major, your clothes is all good enough now, and jest the right sort. Only may be you better take with you my long drab surtout and my broad brim hat, perhaps they'd look a little more like Dr. Franklin than yourn does." And then cousin Nabby spoke up, and says she, "Yes, cousin Jack, and I've got half a dozen pair of blue wollen stockins already knit for you; so you'll be all fixed up nice and warm."

Wal, now, Gineral, I feel a great deal relieved about this dress business; it will save so much expense, and besides, I shan't feel afraid now to go to any royal Court in Europe, and face the finest on 'em. The fact is, General, since Mr. Marcy's circular has set me to thinkin on this matter of dressin for our ministers, I don't know but it would be more dimocratic and American to go a step beyond Dr. Franklin, and take the real abborigin style. There ain't to my mind nothing more becomin than a buffalo robe or a hansom blanket, with fine worked Indian leggins and moccassins; and then an American Minister would be known every where as soon as he was seed. They might paint or not as they pleased, but it would be real American, and beat the Turks in pictureskness—and besides look Roman like too. Give my respects to Mr. Marcy, and hint this Indian notion to him. I am sure it would take like wild-fire.

And, Gineral, you've got another real whaler in your Cabinet, and that is Gineral Cushing. It seems to me, if that man lives, he's agoing to outstrip General Jackson. I had no idea there was so much grit in him till he made that speech 'tother day at Newark, in the Jarsies. Since I've read that speech I feel all over like an old Roman. It seems as if I can see our country marching right up to the very tip-top of the world's mountain and kicking all the nations of the earth down to the bottom of the heap. That old Greek that folks tell so much about, never poured out sich a grist of oratory in all his born days. I can't help copying a little piece of it out of the newspapers into my dispatch. Here 'tis:

"There is a destiny to a Republic.—There is a law of its existence as clearly and undeniably as there is a law of the existence of a human being, that he shall begin in youth, that he shall grow in juvenescence, that he shall harden into manhood, that in the plentitude of his manful strength he shall overtop the nations around him. [Applause.]—We are now the men of the modern Rome. How was it with the old Rome. She conquered. She went on annexing, according to the law of her existence, [applause,] and so long as she proceeded in the application of the law of her existence, no earthly power could withstand her progress. [Applause.] I say that was the destiny of ancient Rome, and it is the destiny of modern Rome. There can be no pause in our progress, except the pause of decay; when we cease to grow we shall begin to perish; for upon us as a republic is impressed, not a curse, (though it was a curse of him who thrust from his door the thirsting Saviour on his way to Calvary; it was his curse that vengeance of God should pronounce over him as the perpetual sentence of his sin—march, march, march; for him there was no pause. I say, as on him was pronounced the curse, on us has been poured the benediction, [applause;] for us that same Divine voice has said, March, march, march—onward, upward, so long as there remains a celestial hight in the infinite regions of greatness which it is possible for human power to scale." [Applause.]

That speech came over cousin Sargent Joel like a streak of lightning.—He went right to work and scoured up his old fire lock as bright as a pewter platter. And now from morning till night, with his fire lock on his shoulder, he marches about the house and round the barn in a military step, saying to himself as he goes, "March, march, march; we are the men of modern Rome!—March, march, march; annexation day is close at hand; March, march, march."

But, Gineral, I must be in a hurry, and be off on my tower before the countries is all annexed, for then my commission of Minister Gineral won't be of no use. So I subscribe myself in haste, your faithful friend and well-wisher.

MAJOR JACK DOWNING.

Swift and his Servant.

Dean Swift, while on a journey, and stopping at a tavern, desired his servant, John, (who, by the way, was as eccentric as his master,) to bring him his boots. John brought up the boots in the same state as they were taken off the previous evening.

"Why didn't you polish my boots?" said Dean.

"There's no use in polishing them," replied the man, "for they would soon be dirty again."

"Very true," said the Dean, and he put on the boots. Immediately after he went down to the landlady, and told her on no account to give his servant any breakfast. The Dean breakfasted and then ordered the horses out. As he was ready to start John ran to him in a great hurry and said:

"Mr. Dean, I didn't get my breakfast yet."

"Oh!" replied the witty divine, "there's no use in your breakfasting; for you would soon be hungry again."

John, finding his theory thrown back on himself, submitted to the privation with the same stoicism as did his master with his boots. On they rode, the Dean in front reading his prayer book, and the man behind at a respectable distance, when they were met by a gentleman, who, after eyeing Dean very closely, accosted the servant thus:

"I say my man, you and your master seem to be a sober pair; may I ask who you are and where you are going?"

"We're going to Heaven," replied John. "My master's praying and I'm fasting."

The gentleman looked again in wonderment at the master and man, and rode off!

MRS. E. KIDDER'S

Cholera, Dysentery and Diarrhœa Cordial,

An Immediate and Perfect Remedy for Cholera, Dysentery, Summer Complaints of Children, Diarrhœa, Sea-Sickness, General Debility, &c.

WHERE this all-powerful antidote is at hand, Cholera is no longer to be seriously feared, or looked upon with terror—as this Cordial will most assuredly cure the disease in the course of a very few hours, if taken at the commencement.

It has been before the public for more than seventeen years, and was the first article made known to the public as an

Immediate and Perfect Cure of the

CHOLERA.

It has been thoroughly tested in every country and every climate, and its effect has everywhere proved the same; SURE TO CURE, even where the disease has advanced to its last stages.

CHOLERA.

Accounts almost daily reach us of the ravages of the CHOLERA, both at home and abroad, and of the little success which has thus far attended the attempts to check its frightful inroads on human life.

Such being the fact, it surely may be regarded as an era in modern discoveries, that a medicine has been discovered possessing the power of checking the progress of the cholera, and eradicating it from the system.

Mrs. Kidder would most respectfully call the attention of the public to this invaluable medicine, known as her

"Cholera, Dysentery and Diarrhœa Cordial."

Many thousand lives have been saved by this medicine, when the disease had advanced to its last stages.

It is hoped that every housekeeper will keep the cordial at hand, and, if timely administered, but little danger is to be apprehended from an attack of the Cholera, Dysentery or Diarrhœa.

This Cordial immediately checks the vomiting, relieves the pains, stops the Diarrhœa, and restores the bowels to a perfectly regular and healthy state, however severe the attack may be, or however low the patient may have become, it invariably restores.

The Severest Cases of Dysentery are immediately counteracted, the pains are allayed, the bowels healed, and not unfrequently the bowels become perfectly regulated and restored in the short space of ten or twelve hours.

Chronic Diarrhœa,

Either in children or adults, of months or years continuance, is most readily cured with this cordial, notwithstanding they may be reduced to mere skeletons; it immediately strengthens and shortly restores them to perfect health.

Cholera Infantum.

It has saved the lives of many thousand children when reduced to death's door by this complaint—it gives them immediate relief, and they very soon recover.

Sea Sickness.

It is a most pleasant and desirable remedy for Sea Sickness. It checks the vomiting and readily restores the patient. It invariably checks vomiting, produced from any cause whatever.

Children that are Teething, if inclined to diarrhœa, should always be provided with this medicine, as it will keep the bowels regulated, and keep off the canker. It is wholesome, safe and pleasant to the taste; and children are fond of it, and will take it without trouble or dislike.

For General Debility and Dyspepsia, it is a most excellent restorative, giving a healthy tone to both the stomach and bowels, and prevents food from pressing or distressing the stomach.

MRS. E. KIDDER, 100 Court street, Boston, Who is the inventor and sole proprietor. Sold in bottles, holding nearly a pint, for FIFTY CENTS.

BROWN'S ESSENCE OF

Jamaica Ginger.

THIS Essence is warranted to possess, in a concentrated form, all the valuable properties of Jamaica Ginger, and will be found, on trial, an excellent Family Medicine. It is particularly recommended as a tonic, to persons recovering from fever or other diseases, a few drops imparting to the stomach a glow and vigor equal to a wine-glassful of brandy or other stimulant, without any of the debilitating effects which are sure to follow the use of liquor of any kind; and it is therefore especially serviceable to children and females. To the aged it will prove a great comfort; to the dispeptic, and to those who are predisposed to gout or rheumatic affections, it gives great relief; and to the inebriate who wishes to reform, but whose stomach is constantly craving the noxious liquor, it is invaluable—giving tone to the digestive organs, and strength to resist temptation; and is consequently a great agent in the cause of temperance.
