

SEPARATE

Coat Has Gone Out Of Fashion In The East

And Each Frock Must Have Its Own Coat

Cloaks For Evening Wear Are Very Handsome

Some Pretty Cuff And Collar Sets Shown

Hose This Summer Must Match Costume

(By Florence Fairbanks)

New York, June 11—It is certainly to be regretted from considerations of economy that the separate coat that might be worn with any costume, has gone out of fashion.

Tailors make up coat and skirt models which are worn with blouses to match, or frock and coat model for ordinary street wear.

There is no end to these short coats and wraps and each is more chic than the last, though you need time to accustom yourself to their abbreviation.

It is a well recognized fact that American women, as a rule, are far more conservative than their sisters in France.

Long coats and cloaks for carriage and evening wear are lovelier than ever before, and the triumph of the season is the filmy cloak of chiffon, net or lace, usually without lining other than another tone of chiffon.

Sometimes a plain chiffon is laid over a flowered chiffon, and there are beautiful models in shaded chiffon, unlined and finished with bordering marabout.

All sorts of odd little shoulder capes or wraps draped in chiffon, lace, satin, etc., are being exploited by the French designers, but especially in suits with frocks.

Directoire coats with revers, shoulder capes and waist line shortened in the back if not all around are numerous in Paris, and the short waisted frock has never been really out of fashion for evening and house wear.

Nine out of ten frock models imported from Paris have kimono sleeves. Often the blouse is of the simplest sort, plain over the chest, shoulders and arms, very slightly full into a waist band or girdle, trimmed only around the neck and sleeves and relieved by thin guimpe and undersleeves.

Sometimes there is not even this veiled trimming and the model achieves distinction in the simplest fashion by the beauty and harmony of the colors and the exquisite material, combined with the perfection of the cut.

The plaited frill is perhaps the most pronounced neckwear fad of the season and is offered in every imaginable variation and in every degree of fineness and daintiness.

Some of the prettiest cuff and collar sets have flat bands on collars of lace or embroidered linen with the plaited frill bordering them, and there are close stock collars with frills running around their lower edge just at the base of the throat.

Owing to the great popularity of the plaited frill as a collarless neck finish there is an increasing liking for flat turn down collars finely embroidered and lace-trimmed, and these are shown in great quantities in all the fashionable shops.

Exquisitely embroidered collars of fine linen are modish for wear with the low cut coats and are distinctly becoming, especially when the blouse, as is so often the case, is collarless.

A belt of patent leather, preferably a black one, should be worn with a separate waist and skirt.

A new trimming feature which promises to become decidedly popular is the many-colored ostrich plume.

The stockings this summer are in most cases two-toned, matching the costume or in contrasting color.

Coarse blue linen frocks, embroidered with blue and coral silk, are made for young girls.

WEDDING OF ADELINE GENE London, June 11—Society and the stage were both represented in the assemblage which filled St. Margaret's Chapel today at the wedding of Miss Adeline Genee, the wonderful Danish dancer who recently finished her American tour, and Mr. Frank S. N. Isitt, a prominent London solicitor.

BOLD

Attempt To Burglarize The Lincoln Flats

Robbers Made Escape Before Police Arrived

A very bold and persistent attempt to rob certain rooms in the Lincoln flats on East Gambier street was made on Friday night. The burglars were discovered in time, however, to prevent their making away with much booty.

On searching the building after the excitement had died down, all that could be found to be missing from any place was a marble top from a fine stand which was standing in the hallway.

FARMERS SHOULD LEARN THE NEEDS OF SOIL

A circular recently issued by the Department of Agriculture says, in part: The farmer must ascertain just what his soil needs, as soils vary in their supply and the elements of plant food are secured in unequal quantities by different plants.

It is the law now that every bag of fertilizer must have on it stamped just what food it contains. This is shown in percentages. In other words, in 100 pounds of fertilizer it shows there are so many pounds of the particular substances.

nitrogen, 3 per cent. Soluble phosphoric acid, 5 per cent. Reverted phosphoric acid, 10 per cent. Potash, 2 per cent, it means: Three pounds nitrogen, six pounds soluble phosphoric acid, four pounds reverted phosphoric acid, ten pounds available phosphoric acid, two pounds of potash,

WESTERN CANADA

What Prof. Shaw, the Well-Known Agriculturist, Has to Say About It. I would sooner raise cattle in Western Canada than in the corn belt of the United States. It is cheaper and climate is better. Your market will grow faster than your supply. What can be done to develop the West? The answer is to be found in the West. The West is the future of the United States.

70,000 Americans will enter and make their homes in Western Canada this year. 1910 promised another large crop of wheat, oats and barley. In addition to which the cattle and sheep exports was an immense item. The West is the future of the United States.
