

Two Profits From the Same Land at the Same Time

THE more fertile your land, the greater its value and the larger the crop. Farm land is made fertile by evenly spreading the proper quantity of stable manure. Therefore, the farmer who uses an IHC manure spreader collects a double profit. He markets heavier crops and his land is made more valuable. To find out how this is done, see your local dealer and have him show you an

IHC Manure Spreader Kemp 20th Century Corn King or Cloverleaf

The local dealer will show you why an IHC spreader does the best work—why it makes the most of the manure it spreads. The service he can render you is worth dollars to you and it costs you nothing. Buy an IHC manure spreader from your local dealer and collect a double profit from your farm.

OBITUARY

John Rinehart was born July 20, 1825, died April 21, 1912.

He was born on the farm two miles south of Fredericktown, where his brother, David, now resides, and spent his life within a mile of that place. He was united in marriage to Susan Alfred May 14, 1857. For years he held political offices of trust and was always a prominent political worker.

Mr. Rinehart united with the Presbyterian church April 11, 1886, and was elected trustee Jan. 3, 1887, which office he held as an active member as long as he was able to attend to the duties and continued an honorary member of the Board of Trustees until the time of his death.

Mr. Rinehart spent a useful life always doing good for everybody.

His death is mourned by his wife and children and a host of friends. The children are George and Adam Rinehart and Mrs. Barton of Fredericktown, Jesse of this city, W. B. of Ambridge, Pa., Stanton of St. Louis, Mo., and Mrs. Tressel of New Philadelphia.

All of them were at his bedside when the angel of death came.

BETWEEN WILSON AND UNDERWOOD

Jacksonville, Fla., April 29—In the State-wide Democratic primary tomorrow the voters of Florida will record their preferences for nominees for the presidency, for the governorship and other State offices, for nominees for representatives in Congress and for the delegates and minor offices. The contest for the presidential endorsement will be confined to Woodrow Wilson and Oscar W. Underwood. These are the only names that will appear on the ballot.

Most interest centers in the contest for the governorship, for which there are five aspirants. They are Cromwell Gibbons of Jacksonville, Park M. Tranwell of Lakeland, John W. Watson of Miami, William H. Milton of Marianna and E. M. Semple of Key West. Each of the three present representatives in Congress is a candidate for renomination and each has opposition. In addition there are four candidates for Congressman-at-large.

Guthrie, Okla., April 29—Officials of the Oklahoma State Baseball league report everything in readiness for the opening of the season tomorrow. The organization this year is made up exclusively of Oklahoma towns, the circuit comprising McAlester, Oklahoma City, Guthrie, Ardmore, Tulsa, Okmulgee and Holdenville. The schedule is split into two seasons, the first to close on June 30 and the second on Labor Day.

He fixed 9 o'clock tomorrow morning as the earliest that he can expect to make this port with his cargo of dead.

CROWD

Went Wild When Schweitzer Made A Great Catch

A Memphis, Tenn., paper of recent date tells of a most sensational catch made by Al Schweitzer in a game of baseball. Schweitzer caught a fly ball while running at high speed. He was thrown off his feet and rolled over twice, but held onto the ball. The paper states that it took the crowd fully ten minutes to quiet after Al made the catch.

Shearing Sheep in Syria.

The manner of shearing sheep in Syria and all Asiatic Turkey does not differ materially from the ancient methods of the people as applied to practically every other vocation. While the sheep industry is one of the oldest in the country, having existed for centuries in the same pastures where the ancestors of the present herders also tended flocks, there does not appear to have been any improvement in the manner of shearing or breeding the sheep. Shearing is still accomplished in the crudest way, the workers always leaving a considerable amount of wool on the animal, while the fleece removed is cut most unevenly. The shears frequently cut great holes in the skins of the sheep, which by the use of modern shearing machines could easily be avoided.

Oh Juicy! "I'll just tie my raft to this buoy!" Cried a chipwrecked sailor named Ruoy. Through calm and through gale He watched for a sail. And then he yelled out, "Ship ahoy!" —Cincinnati Enquirer.

DEATHS

Mrs. Hester Dugan Mrs. Hester Dugan died at her home on the Columbus road in Souts, Vernon Monday morning at 1:15 o'clock after a ten days' illness caused by pneumonia. She was aged 40 years, 8 months and 28 days at the time of her death and is survived by her husband, Mills Dugan, and five children. The funeral at the late home Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. J. T. Black officiating. Interment in Mound View cemetery.

Martin Nolen Martin Nolen died at his home just east of the city early Sunday morning after an illness of only two days caused by an attack of heart trouble. On Friday he was taken very ill and grew steadily worse until his death. He was 58 years of age and is survived by his wife, one son, John Nolen, and two daughters, Miss Catherine Nolen and Mrs. Harry Beck, all of Mt. Vernon. The funeral at St. Vincent de Paul's Catholic church Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock. Rev. L. W. Mulhane officiating. Interment in Calvary cemetery.

Mrs. Martha Cotton Mrs. Martha Cotton, widow of Emmett Cotton, and mother of County Infirmary Director Frank Cotton, died Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock of paralysis at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Richard Wilson, who resides in Wayne township, six miles west of Fredericktown. The deceased is survived by two children: Frank Cotton and Mrs. Richard Wilson. The funeral Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, sun time, from the Green Valley cemetery.

Mrs. Julia Hayes Mrs. Julia Hayes, wife of Daniel Hayes, 210 Coshocton avenue, died Sunday morning at one o'clock, after an illness of many months. The cause of death was heart and stomach trouble. The deceased was 71 years of age, being born in the county of Kilkenny, Ireland, in the year 1841. She came to America in the year 1856; was married to Daniel Hayes, in this city, 45 years ago. One son, Thomas F. Hayes, of Cleveland, Ohio, together with her husband, survive her.

Mrs. Hayes's maiden name was Julia Dalton. She was a sister of the late Mrs. John Purcell, of this city, and Mrs. Patrick Smith, of Rochelle, Illinois, also deceased. Her funeral will take place at nine o'clock Wednesday morning from St. Vincent de Paul's church, and interment in Calvary cemetery. The deceased was in poor health for about two years, and during the last four months of her sickness she was a great sufferer, but never murmured, but patiently awaited the summons from Almighty God. Mrs. Hayes lived and acted the life of a true Christian woman. She was a true wife, a kind and loving mother, and a good neighbor. She had only kind words for all. Her good deeds and sweet memory will live in the minds of all who knew her.

Artist and Courtier Too. The painter is likely to be brusque. Even when he possesses a bit of tact he is not wont to waste it on "Philistines," even if they are customers and persons of distinction. No such charge, however, can be brought against an eighteenth century painter named Chabert. He was commissioned by William IV. to paint the attack commanded by the sovereign when Duke of Clarence on a fortress on the Spanish coast. The attack took place at night, and with the view of relieving the somber veil of midnight the artist took the liberty of introducing sea gulls skimming the clouds. "Hello!" exclaimed his majesty when he first saw the painting. "It will never do to have the birds flying about at night. They were all gone to roost." "So they were, your majesty," artfully agreed the artist, "but you gave such a rousing broadside with your guns that they all woke up and flew about."

Good Piano Playing. In an article on piano playing in the Woman's Home Companion the author reports as follows the views of Leschetizky, the teacher: "When I was studying with the great master he pointed out to me the importance of musical expression in the following way: He called my attention to the fact that one person, for instance, may tell you a tale in such a way that you find little in it that is interesting, whereas another person may tell you the same story in such a manner that you follow every word with the keenest attention. The secret of interest lies not only in the story, but very especially in the voice, the tone, the expression—in the manner of telling. All this is interpretation. A careless or dull piano student may play even some exquisite melody in such a way that it does not attract you at all, whereas an artist's playing of it may bring tears to your eyes."

A Human Salamander. Chabert, the fire king, who was a popular favorite in London eighty years ago, claimed to be able to swallow arsenic and other poisons with impunity. Visitors to his entertainment were requested to come provided with phosphorus, prussic acid, arsenic and oxalic acid, which he proceeded to consume before their eyes, taking an antidote afterward which was supposed to neutralize their effects. Then, to show that he was as impervious to heat as to poison, he would take a raw leg of lamb into an oven heated to 220 degrees and remain inside until the joint was cooked, when it was carved and handed around to the audience. The performance concluded by Chabert rubbing a redhot shovel on his head and face and allowing any one who wished to drop molten sealing wax on his tongue and haunches.

Hats and Occupations. In some parts of the world the silk hat is still the professional headgear of the chimney sweep. About a dozen years ago the writer constantly observed this in Wurttemberg, and last year he found the same combination in Switzerland. The mysterious relations between the hat and occupation, convictions and recreations, would make an interesting study. At one time the politician who wore a white hat proclaimed himself a Radical. Nowadays he would probably be suspected as an old fashioned Tory. Then no self respecting cricketer would have appeared without a tall hat in former days. But Mr. Jenner-Eust has recorded how he and others were compelled to drop the habit in the twenties and thirties by the spectators' jeers at "post boys."—London Chronicle.

Before the Breakaway. Two heavyweights had gone on for a preliminary, both willing and eager, but hopelessly ignorant in the craft of the game. One of the first grapples brought the pair to their knees, and neither knew how to make a move which should be both aggressive and defensive. They were head to head literally at loggerheads—and remained in this position for a minute. The lull gave the comedian in the audience a full stage. "Well," he shouted, "what is the secret?"—Chicago Post.

Varying Views. Came a helpless little babe To this world of good and ill. Thinking of the cost of meat, Thinking of the grocer's bill, Cried his parents practical, "Here's another mouth to fill!" Thinking of the secret trust, Joy which none would want to miss, Mindful of the moonlight nights, Thinking of the stolen bliss, Cried the maiden fanciful, "Here's another mouth to kiss!" Thinking of the flow of words No device avails to balk, Shuddering at speeches long Made in public life and walk, Cried the person cynical, "Here's another mouth to talk!"
