TO PHYSICIANS AND PATIENTS

The Blind Piles, said to be incurable by external applications--Solomon Hayes warrants the contrary. His Liniment will cure Blind Piles. Facts are more stubborn than theories. He solicits all respectable Physicians to try it upon their patients. It will do them no harm, and it is known that physicians who had the honesty to make the trial, have candidly admitted that it has succeeded in every case--they have known one of their most respectable members, now deceased. Why refuse to use it? Because it is sold as a proprietary medicine! Is this a sufficient excuse for suffering their patients to linger in distress? We think not. Physicians shall be convinced that there is no humbug or quackery about this article--Why then not alleviate human suffering? If they won't try it before, let them after all other prescriptions fail. Physicians are respectfully requested to do themselves and patients the justice to use the article. It shall be taken from the bottle, and done up in their prescription, if they desire. Let them apply to the Comstock & Co., at the New York, No. 2 Fletcher street near Pearl, or to any of the most respectable drug-stores throughout this country. Also at O. Williams & Co., Maumee City 1

SOLOMON HAYES.

FLORENCE, Ala. Sept. 23, 1838--A gentleman of the highest standing in this town, who has been dreadfully afflicted with the Blind Piles for the last 20 years, called upon me and freely confessed to me his situation. After describing the severity of the complaint, he remarked he had not been so well for 20 years past as he was at that moment. He has used one bottle only of my Liniment. To use his own words he said "the whole human family, who were thus afflicted, ought to be made acquainted with this medicine."

TO THE PUBLIC.

H. EASTMAN would still invite the attention of the afflicted, and the public generally, to his Elixir of Health. He is encouraged to do so from the increased evidence of its efficacy as a successful remedial agent for many of the maladies and diseases to which the human family are subject. From eight years experience in the efficacy of this medicine, he is warranted in assuring the public that no medicine has proved so universally salutary and beneficial as a family medicine. It was devised as an assistant to the efforts of nature whose operations are always exerted to rid the system of whatever is deleterious, and to maintain a healthy action throughout. This she would ever accomplish were she not occasionally overpowered by counteracting causes, such as marsh miasmata, impure air, colds, exposures, irregularities, &c. By these the primary organs are deranged, enfeebled and overpowered--hence disease in some form is the result. The Elixir was designed to assist nature in expelling from the system all morbid and deleterious matter--give vigor, tone and energy to the digestive organs and the secretory vessels, the prime regulators of the whole, upon the proper action of which depend the health of the entire system. The success which has attended the administration of the Elixir, proves conclusively that it answers the purpose of its design. It is adopted and has proved most signally successful in all those cases of derangement of the digestive organs indicated by loss of appetite, nausea, oppression from food, acidity, heartburn, weakness, lassitude, a sense of weariness, pains in the stomach, side shoulder or limbs--costiveness--dizziness--bilious habits--nervous symptoms--melancholy depression of spirits--disturbed sleep--cold hands and feet--sick headache--liver complaints--jaundice &c. For Dyspepsia it has proved more successful than any other known remedy. For feeble and delicate females, children, whose health has been impaired by Ague and Fever and other diseases; it proves a sovereign restorative for that state of ill health so frequently met with in new and flat sections, and such as border on sluggish waters, indicated by pale and sallow countenances, debility, loss of appetite, bilious habits &c., it is invaluable and from its powers of removing morbid matter from the system--preventing its accumulations and keeping the digestive organs in a healthy and vigorous state, is a powerful preventative of the disease incident to such countries--no new settler in such sections should, as he values his health, dispense with its use. Fenoles of from forty to fifty years of age, have found it a powerful assistant to nature in the impedes change which the system then reverts to a proper termination of which depends their subsequent health. It is also salutary in removing obstructions. As a common family medicine, the Elixir is unequalled--being a perfectly safe, mild yet efficacious physic--it does not nauseate the stomach or debilitate the system; but thoroughly cleanses the stomach and bowels, restores and maintains their healthy action. It is entirely botanical in its composition and may with perfect safety be taken at any age, by either sex, in any condition of life. The proprietor is aware that the world abounds in patent medicines--some of which are valuable and others worse than useless; and that much imposition is practised on the public by these medicines. But from eight years experience in the effects of his Elixir, the increased demand and reputation it has secured wherever known--the proprietor does with the most entire confidence recommend it to the afflicted as an invaluable remedial agent--for such it has proved, as thousands will bear witness, many of whom had exhausted every other known remedy and despaired of relief, and now from the use of the Elixir enjoy perfect health. Testimonials from the most respectable sources may be seen on the wrappers accompanying the medicine. But the most sure testimony is its use, and on this testimony I depend for its perpetuity. For sale, wholesale and retail, at the Drug Store of the subscriber, in Zanesville, where he keeps constantly on hand a general assortment of Drugs and medicines, of the best quality, among which are all the valuable Family Medicines. H. EASTMAN. For sale at the Drug Store of O. & D. Williams, Maumee City. June 22. 128.

BY HORATIO GATES ZOE. When you see the lake waves glitten As the moonlight pours above them-- When their soft sounds you listen As the zephyrs gently move them, Deem you not that love and duty Prompt them thus to speak and shine! Due to Zoe's charm and beauty Is their homage--so is mine. When the morning birds are singing In their sweet retiring voices-- When the evening breeze is blowing, Others share its walks in mildness-- Know that every gentle breeze Leaves his gite at Zoe's whisper, Birds and zephyrs ever shrink Love and duty--just like mine. TREMENDOUS AFFAIR AT HURON--DREADFUL ROW, BUT NO LIVES LOST.

We understand that a terrible public oblation occurred at Huron, a few days ago, which resulted in tearing down the stairs that led from the surface of the vulgar earth up to the attic from which emanates the Huron Commercial Advertiser. We are advised that the editor is now obliged to mount his airy height by means of a ladder. There are intimations that the editor of the Cleveland Herald is acquainted with the facts in the case. Do tell us, Mr. Harris, why Mr. Gray has been harassed in this manner.

The Cleveland Herald states that the millers of that place are paying one dollar per bushel for new wheat. The general impression seems to be that that will be the average price of the crop, along the lake.

THE HEN.

Was once a hen of wit not small, In fact was most amazing. And apt at laying eggs withal, Who, when she'd done, would scream and bow! As if the house were blazing. A turkey cock of huge nature, Felt throat indignation; 'Twas quite improper, he was sure, He would no more the thing endure. So she capitulation. He to the fact straight repaired, And thus his business he declared:-- 'Madam, pray what the matter is, That always when you're laid an egg, You make an awful clatter? I wish you'd do the thing it quiet, Do be advised by me and try it! 'Advised by youth?' the lady cried, 'And tossed her head in proper pride:-- 'And what do you know, now I pray, Of the fashions of the present day? You're cresting, ignorant and low! However, if you want to know, This is the reason why I do it: I lay my egg, and then scream it!"

POETRY.--The following contains a sprinkling of the sublime not to be sneezed at:

Old Uncle Sam! Old Uncle Sam! What an ass you've got to sm!

For you've so long been plundered and rided It's a wonder you aren't long ago died.

FROM THE NEW ORLEANS PLEASANT. AN ARKANSAS JUSTICE.

THE WAY THEY LAID OUT THE LAW IN NEW ORLEANS.--A particular friend of ours at Batesville has furnished us with the groundwork of the following account, showing up the manner in which they do things in the back part of the "Ranunculus" country.

In one of the back counties lives a "big man" named Vowel, a red hot democrat, and not over bounded with honesty. Rich in lands and tenements, meaner than "gar broth," and regardless what means he uses to attain his ends, Vowel has always a gang of diaks or strikers with him--men who will do any thing and swear to any thing he bids them. A short time since he obtained a commission for one of those tools as "Justice of the Peace, or rather Justice of the Peace. The fellow's name was Blumpy, an ignorant dolt, as destitute of a conscience as a crying hyena after a several day fast. On receiving his appointment, with the governors name and seal to it, Blumpy swelled up with pride at one, felt himself wonderfully elated and started on his way home rejoicing.

Arrived there he commenced strutting and cutting a dignified swell about and across his cabin. "What has got into you Blumpy?" asked his wife. "Don't bother me," said Blumpy. "What are you gawking about in that high-faluting style for?" continued his wife. "I'm a made man" was the mysterious answer. "Something has made you crazy, Blumpy."

"Crazy! Look here," said the husband, showing the commission, "look here, Mr. Blumpy--see this--I knew that keeping that bore Chapman would bring me out. I am now just out of that snare, and will be in the legislature next year, sure. Hadn't we better put another story on the house, Sally?" continued the fellow, swelling like a frog and blowing like a porpoise. "In course we had. Maint I strut too Blumpy?"

"Certainly--catch hold here," said her husband, offering his arm. They were now hard at it, strutting and "amplifying" about the room. The children were astonished at the mad pranks of their parents, and thought they had found a gold mine. "Mamma, say one of them, 'maint I strut, too, with you and me and daddy!"

Set down you rascal, you," said Mrs. Blumpy. "Nobly is in office here, but your dad and me!" at the same time knocking the little Blumpy over with a chunk. "Some days after this, and when Blumpy had cooled off a little, the "old man" was called upon to make his first appearance as justice, and try a case. Rigging himself out in his Sunday-go-to-the-tavern suit he was upon the spot in season. The case was one in which his friend and patron was engaged--Vowel vs. Datem. It was an open account, his master had made out against Datem for sundry goods, wares and merchandise, to which the latter demurred. Vowel opened the argument on his own account in a violent strain. Turning to Datem, the defendant, he commenced with "D--n you, do you dispute my account? You won't pay my bill, eh? Mr. Blumpy, your honor, that rascal came to my house and made just as free as though it was his'n, d--n him. He found my crib open, and he marnelled into the corn. He eat my red tomatoes, (breen.) His wife flouts in my eye, he drinks my ball face, (whiskey) like a horse, and now he disputes the bill, the rascal. Eq. Blumpy, take your seat on that horse block, try him and give him 'goss'."

Blumpy took his seat with all the mock dignity of the sham duke in the "Honey Moon." Not a particle of proof had been adduced in favor of his patron's claim, but that did not in the least alter his decision, which was as follows:

"Seeing as how my friend Vowel's crib has been open to Datem, the defendant, that the plaintiff's crib has been worn by Datem's wife, his prunells danced all to massah by Datem's pullits, and his half-face swilled down by the defendant himself, in course he has got to pay for them and fork over my fees into the bargain. Them's the court's sentiments."

Judgment accordingly rendered against Datem, and he was obliged to foot the whole bill.

Goss--Experiments have shown that Morus Malticiana leaves make very good greens. We are glad to hear they are good for any thing.
