CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF OHIO ARTICLE 7, SECTION 2.—No new county shall be established by the General Assembly...

LUCAS COUNTY WHIG CONVENTION.—We call the attention of the Whig voters of the county to the proceedings of this body as published in our paper to-day...

And first—let us see what sort of a case is made out by the officers of the Toledo convention...

Port Lawrence had 20 delegates; Sylvania 3; Waterville 11 Mr. Shaw; Providence 2; Royalton 1; Chesterfield 1; Gorham 1. Majority of Port Lawrence 11.

Such and so many were the delegates that rejoiced in the published name of REGULAR WHIG COUNTY CONVENTION. Twenty delegates from Port Lawrence (Toledo) and nine from all the balance of Lucas county...

It will be seen by comparing the account of the whig county convention with the "regular" of the Blade, that of five delegates from Waterville, one only, Mr. Shaw acted with the "regular"—the others, who undoubtedly correctly represented their town...

We then have left for the "regular" convention, out of sixteen townships organized in the county;—Port Lawrence, Sylvania, Providence, Chesterfield and Gorham—five out of sixteen.

The county convention of which Mr. W. ite was Chairman made out a full ticket of active, consistent and intelligent whigs to fill the various offices. Not so the convention of Toledo.

Though somewhat out of place, it is proper here to state, that when the question of calling Judge Jerome to the chair was put by Mr. Scott, all present appeared to vote, and the affirmative clearly had most voices.

Since the above was written, the Toledo Blade of the 21st has come to hand. Under its editorial head, an aspirant for legislative honors, has by a mixture of truth and falsehoods made out such a case for the convention of Toledo...

There was a miserable petty larceny attempt at stratagem (when some few of the persons in attendance and refusing to recognize the Toledo meeting as a county convention had consented to vote with the Toledo people at the request of a friend from Sylvania on the proper day for holding the county convention) by which some Toledo lawyers claiming that having joined the meeting to agree upon a day for the meeting of the convention, they had thereby acknowledged the convention to be properly called and organized.

Lucas County Whig Convention.—We call the attention of the Whig voters of the county to the proceedings of this body as published in our paper to-day, and beg leave to add a few remarks on the subject in continuation of those made last week.

And first—let us see what sort of a case is made out by the officers of the Toledo convention; or more properly, the convention of the Toledoans.

Port Lawrence had 20 delegates; Sylvania 3; Waterville 11 Mr. Shaw; Providence 2; Royalton 1; Chesterfield 1; Gorham 1. Majority of Port Lawrence 11.
