Third Edition THE PRESIDENCY

Electoral Meetings in the Disputed States. Oregon Takes a Hand, and Adds to the Confusion.

New York, Dec. 7.—Up to midnight two hundred and ninety-five bodies had been removed from the ruins of the Brooklyn Theater, and the search was still being continued with the aid of calcium lights. It is reported that the entire orchestra perished, the stage door being looked and members perishing in vain attempts to gain egress. Two bodies were found shortly before midnight under the director's box. One was recognized as that of Claude Burroughs, actor, and the other is believed to be that of the actor H. S. Murdoch.

The bodies were burned as to be wholly unrecognizable, but were identified by portions of stage dress worn by those actors. The total loss of life will be over three hundred, the majority being young men and boys who were in the gallery and better means of egress from the theater. It is known as a precaution against the spreading of fire, that theaters be provided, as in Paris, with wire screens to let down just in front of the drop curtain. The flame could not then penetrate beyond the edge of the stage, as it has been ascertained that times can not be commuted through the meshes of the wire. Another safeguard the Herald suggests, is that a force of firemen with adequate means for the prompt extinguishment of fire, be present during every performance. This would have a reassuring effect and prevent panic.

All the other morning papers unite in the demand for proper safeguards against fire and better means of egress from theaters in case of danger. The theater loss of life in the Brooklyn Theater, is attributed to inadequate means of egress in an emergency of this kind. The Sun says even had a panic not occurred there must still have been great loss of life. There was no escaping the flames. It is the theater had been crowded, as it was during Clara Morris' engagement, the loss of the world certainly have been vastly greater than it now is. There does not seem to have been the most ordinary precaution taken against fire. There was no water at hand and no attempts to stay the progress of the flames. It is well appointed stage is an abundant supply of water under sufficient head to reach every part of the combustible structure, with hydrants having hoses already attached to denude the whole place at a moment's notice.

It calls attention to the necessity of legislation to enforce an adequate system of water tanks and hydrants to prevent fire in theaters, and suggests that a commission of skilled engineers be appointed to investigate the matter, and advise in detail the necessary preventive measures for legislative action.

At the Police Headquarters the total number of bodies found in the ruins of the theater is now given at two hundred and forty-four. This is considerably less than reported last night, but the authorities say two hundred and forty-four is the correct number. Workmen are still digging in the ruins. A Coroner's Jury is now in session.

Mr. Dea Bonacoutt has started a subscription in aid of the families of the victims with $5,000. Others of the theatrical profession have offered their services for a benefit for the sufferers.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—A dispatch from Brooklyn says three hundred and ninety-five bodies have been recovered from the ruins of the fire, and more are still in sight.

NEWS FROM THE METROPOLIS

As to the Presidency. NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—The Herald, editorially discussing the result of the Electoral College meetings yesterday, says: The regular certificates give one hundred and eighty-five votes for Hayes and Wheeler and one hundred and eighty-four for Tilden and Hendricks. On the face of the certificates Hayes is therefore elected, and, we judge, it is probable that this result will stand. At all events the burden of proof is now on the side of the Democrats, with the prima facie case against them. Under ordinary circumstances the certificates of the Electoral Colleges are accepted as conclusive, and it requires the strongest rebutting evidence to impeach their validity. The Democrats will make a vigorous struggle in Congress to have the certified votes of Louisiana thrown out, but we doubt whether they themselves have any expectation of success. They may gain a party advantage by arising the subject and parading evidences of fraud, but it is against all probability that they will succeed in making Mr. Tilden the next President of the United States. They may lay the foundation for breaking up the Republican party, but they are not likely to prevent the inauguration of Mr. Hayes.

The New York Theaters were but slightly attended last night, and at the Union Square Theater there was no performance, in consequence of the Brooklyn disaster.

FROM THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

Fever Heat at the Capital. WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The Democratic caucus held in the hall of the House of Representatives immediately after the adjournment was called on the spur of the moment, and partook of the nature of an indignation meeting at what was denounced going outside of official duty by the President in making an official and a partisan report of private gentlemen. No decided action was taken beyond a reference of the whole subject to a special committee, consisting of Messrs. Howell, Payne, Wood, Randall, Holman, Warren and Sparks, with instructions to report a line of policy to be observed by the party at an adjourned meeting of the caucus to be held immediately after the session of the House to-day.

The course of the President, and especially the action of the House, has caused great excitement here. The Democratic and independent and the Republicans feel that an important point, in a party sense, has been gained by the first presentation of the report from that side. The report of Sen. or Sherman and others, sent by the President to canvass, fully sustains the action of the Returning Board of Louisiana. It gives an account of the origin of the State law creating the Board, which came out of the Ku Klux difficulty in 1875, when it became necessary to adopt some measure to protect the rights of those whose voices were silenced by intimidation.

Republican Salute. WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The Republicans of this District fired a salute of one hundred guns at 1 o'clock to-day in honor of the election of Hayes and Wheeler.

The Senate To-day. The Senate was called to order at 12 o'clock by President pro tem. Ferry, and prayer was offered by the Chaplain. The Chair fell before the Senate an inventor of the property of the Senate in charge of the Sergeant-at-Arms. Laid on the table and ordered printed. Also a communication in the form of a petition from Carl Schurz and J. B. Henderson, asking that the Constitution be amended so as to allow the Electoral vote to be counted by the Supreme Court.

Mr. Edmunds said the matter contained in the communication had already been reported to the Senate. He moved that the communication be laid on the table. So ordered.

Mr. Anthony, from the Committee on Printing, said he was authorized to report back the Message of the President and accompanying documents in relation to the Committee sent to Louisiana to witness the count.

Colliery Fire. National Press Association to the Star. TAMAUCA, Pa., Dec. 7.—About midnight last night the colliery owned by the Alaska Coal Company, about a mile from this place, was discovered to be on fire. The breaker was totally destroyed. The fire was evidently the work of an incendiary. The loss is estimated at $12,000; insurance not yet ascertained.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 7.—Russia has notified the European Cabinets that a military occupation of the Turkish Provinces is not essential if their autonomy is secured.

At this the July butcher smelted a large-sized mice and quietly posted Officer Woodyard, who came and secreted himself to await the arrival of this "steeward." He came in due time with a red check for $50, signed "Gov. Steamboat Lily, per W. W. Readebeck." That settled it, and Archie Woodyard stepped out and collared the "bill." His real name is N. W.
