NEW SKIRT FOR 1865-6.

The Great Invention of the Age in

HOOP SKIRTS.

W. BRADY'S New Patent DUPLEX ELLIPTIC (double) SPRING SKIRT.

This invention consists of Duplex (or two) Elliptic Pure Refined Steel Springs, ingeniously Braided Tightly and Fly together, Edge to Edge, making the Toughest, most Flexible, Elastic and Durable Spring ever Invented. They seldom Break or Tease, like the Single Springs, and consequently preserve their perfect Beautiful Shape more than twice as long as any Single Spring Skirt that Ever Has or Can be made.

The wonderful flexibility and great comfort and pleasure to anybody wearing the Duplex Elliptic Skirt will be expressed particularly in all crowded Assemblies, Opera, Carriages, Railroad Cars, Church Pews, Arm Chairs for Promenade and House Dress, as the Skirt can be folded when in use to occupy a small place as easily and conveniently as a Silk or Muslin Dress.

A Lady having enjoyed the Pleasure, Comfort and Great Convenience of wearing the Duplex Elliptic Skirt for a single week will Never afterwards willingly dispense with them. For Children, Misses and Young Ladies they are superior to all others.

The Hoops are tipped with 2 ply double twisted thread and will wear twice as long as the 8 ngle yarn covering which is used on all Single steel Hoop Skirts. The three bottom Hoops on every Skirt are also Double steel, and twice as much covered to prevent the covering from wearing off the rods when dragging down stairs, stones, &c., &c., which they are constantly subject to in use.

All are made of the best and elegant Corded Tapes, and are the best quality in every part, giving to the wearer the most graceful and perfect Shape possible, and are unquestionably the lightest, most desirable, comfortable and economical Skirt ever made.

Weeks' Bradley & Co. are proprietors of the Invention, and Sole Manufacturers, 97 Chambers, and 79 & 81 Reade Streets, New York.

For Sale in all first Class Stores in this City, and throughout the United States and Canada, Havana de Cuba, Mexico, South America, and the West Indies.

EXECUTION OF CHAMP FERGUSON.

The Nashville papers are full of accounts of the execution of Champ Ferguson at that point on Friday last. We make the following extracts:

HOW HE TOOK HIS SENTENCE.

Some time since we announced the result of the trial, the finding and sentence of the Court, and the action of the authorities; and on the following day the result was communicated by Colonel Shafter to the prisoner in his cell—the official finding and sentence being read to him.

When the officer entered for that purpose, Champ was as firm and as relentless as when, in the midst of his mad career, he murdered alike the wounded, the sick, the aged, and the helpless child, and when the last sentence had been read, he barely remarked:

"As I expected, sir."

From that time he was urged to prepare for death, but for days he remained the same firm unflinching man he had been throughout the trial. He would talk of death as if it were rather a disagreeable matter, but a thing of no great moment; and as for futurity, that scarcely entered his mind, or, if it did, his proud spirit would not admit of its presence.

INTERVIEW WITH HIS FAMILY.

His family—wife and daughter—were with him the greater part of Thursday, and all Friday morning till a few minutes before he was led out to execution. Mrs. Ferguson is a spare delicate woman and appeared deeply affected all the time. His daughter was calm, until just before the final parting, but evidently deeply felt the horror of her situation. She, too, is delicate in appearance, and is but seventeen years of age.

It was half-past ten of yesterday when the parting came; and seldom have we witnessed a scene more heart-rending. Mrs. Ferguson clung to her husband and wept, aloud. "My God! my God!" said she, "have I not already suffered enough? Is my agony never to cease?" and her tears choked her utterance, and she remained long, clasping her husband, who stood like a marble statue, showing no outward signs of emotion.

"Alone, alone, henceforth am I," she at length said; "deprived of my supporter, my husband. Oh, God, is there nothing that will save my husband? Lost! Lost! Lost!" Then suddenly rising, she nerved herself up and exclaimed:

"Die bravely, Champ; die bravely!"

"I will," was the response of the condemned.

The daughter, too, was deeply affected; and after the two had been separated from the prisoner, it was with difficulty they could sustain themselves, and but for the assistance rendered them, they would undoubtedly have fallen, fainting to the floor.

HE MOVES OUT.

The hour of eleven arrived, and Champ was warned that the time had come when he must prepare to die. "I am ready when you are," said he to Lieutenant Crittenden, and he was led out, by a guard of eight men to the scaffold. His step was firm, his carriage erect, and his bearing just what it had been from the beginning. He nerved himself up to the occasion; not a shudder marred the tranquility of his frame; not a change passed over his countenance.

His hands were pinioned behind him with a strong cord. His dress was a black suit, of coarse cloth, but neat and clean; and on his hands were black gloves. When he reached the scaffold, Colonel Shafter inquired, "shall I help you to ascend?" "No," he replied, "I will walk up myself;" and he did so, with firm and unfaltering steps.

On reaching the platform, he faced the two or three hundred auditors and the guards without blenching, but requested that Dr. Budding should pray for him.

During the prayer, the prisoner wept—the first evidence of emotion which he had yet given. Colonel Shafter took a handkerchief and wiped the prisoner's eyes, his own at the same time being any other than dry.

After this the Colonel read the charges and the specifications against him—Ferguson standing unmoved till he had read the fifth in which he was charged with murdering the venerable Reuben Woods. When that name was mentioned, he dropped his head and looked steadily on the ground for a time. He was evidently affected; remorse had penetrated to his callous heart. But, like Pharaoh, he soon steeled himself against the reproaches of conscience, and he raised his head and braved the worst.

On reading the eleventh specification, in which he is charged with murdering an old man named Kiser, and his little daughter, he shook his head; and on reading the fifteenth specification, in which he is charged with murdering three soldiers of the Union army, he turned to the Colonel and said, "I could tell it better than that, Colonel."

"I presume you could," was the reply, and the reading was continued.

HIS LAST SPEECH.

After Colonel Shafter had finished the reading, he turned to the prisoner, and said:

"In obedience to this order, Mr. Ferguson it is my duty to execute you."

"I know it," responded the prisoner.

"Do you blame me?" inquired the Colonel.

"Not particularly," was the response.

"Have you anything to say?"

"I can't speak much," said the prisoner; "I did some of the acts charged, but not all; some I know nothing about. I desire, Colonel, not to have my body cut up by doctors, but I want to have it put in that thing"—pointing to his coffin—"and taken to the graveyard in White County Tennessee, and laid there. You won't have me cut up will you, Colonel?"

"No," responded Col. Shafter, "you shall not be cut up; your body shall be sent to your friends. Have you any thing more to say?"

"Well, whenever you say stop, I'll stop" said the doomed man; "I am under your control, I wouldn't be here if I could help it, but I must, and I must submit. What I am, I am, and I can't help it; but you would not have my body cut up, would you, Colonel."

The Colonel again assured him that his remains should be given to his family.

"I have" continued the prisoner, "some as good friends as any man; but they can't help me now. All I have to say is, I don't want to be cut up by the doctors; will you put my body in that thing"—again pointing to his coffin—"and send it to White County, Tennessee, and have it buried in the old graveyard there?"

The Colonel again assured him that he would accede to his request.

The cap of death was then drawn down over his face, and Colonel Shafter said:

"Have you any thing to say? If you have, say it now, and we will wait on you."

Raising his head toward Heaven, he said, in a solemn tone:

"Lord have mercy on me, I pray you;" and as his voice ceased, by a stroke of the ax, the support was severed, and the drop fell, and the prisoner was suspended between Heaven and earth.

The drop fell at precisely twenty minutes before twelve, and he remained hanging twenty-five minutes, when the body was cut down and laid in the coffin, and conveyed away.—His neck was broken, and he bled profusely at the nose. After he fell his body moved but twice, and that slightly, so great was the shock of the descent.

MISCELLANEOUS.

On being asked concerning his political faith, Ferguson said, "I die a rebel."

While on the scaffold Ferguson recognized a number of acquaintances in the crowd, to all of whom he bowed politely, and accompanied the bow with a smile.

His family, after separating from him, went to the large house adjoining the penitentiary, to await the result. His wife was so deeply affected that she was compelled to lie down. His daughter, however, nerved herself up, even to the indignant, for when the announcement was made that all was over, she exclaimed:

"Well, I hope they are satisfied now!"

CHRONIC DISEASES CURED.

Consumption Cured

BY INHALATION.

NO POISONS GIVEN.

NO MERCURY USED.

Dr. F. for the last fourteen years has been engaged traveling in the practical treatment of all medical and surgical diseases of Europe, the United States, Australia and the South Sea and Sandwich Islands, British Columbia and Vancouver's Island and during which time he has had

Thousands of patients under his medical supervision, and by careful and practical attention to all acute and chronic diseases of a special, surgical, and general nature, (having discovered the true physiological and pathological character of all diseases by microscopical and other minute researches) has been enabled to restore the enfeebled, debilitated and exhausted constitution to a state of energy, health and happiness, and as it were to revive the sinking-like faculties of the brain and nervous system to a new existence and renovate life with all its natural concomitant enjoyments.

Therefore the comonly called "Incurables" are particularly invited to avail themselves of this rare opportunity to recover their health.

In consequence of the deep seated and in many instances just prejudice existing in the minds of many against all traveling, advertising physicians and Surgeons, Dr. F. will prescribe to, and operate on all such who consult him, and charge nothing unless he performs all that is promised.

All therefore who have been doctored till they are tired and are no better should call at once on Dr. Flattery, and have the cause of their disease removed.

All who have Consumption, Bronchitis and Throat disease should apply to Dr. Flattery, whose cure of these complaints is based on recent discoveries in physiology of respiration and which bears the closest philosophical examination.

All affected with Chronic diseases which have baffled the Quacks and exhausted the medical skill of the faculty of surgeons, should apply to Dr. Flattery, whose marvelously successful treatment of all affections is owing to his medical discoveries made by microscopical and other minute researches during fourteen years' travel, and twenty years' practice.

The unfortunate should at once call and consult Dr. Flattery who has had twenty years experience in this class of disease, and branch of his profession, and therefore guarantees every cure.

All young men injured in body and mind from the effects of self abuse, with its concomitant symptoms such as pain in the head, mental despondency and aversion to society, inability to concentrate the memory and intellect, and disqualified from the various duties of life, whose countenances and debilitating constitutions depict the evil effects of that horrible and devastating vice, should consult Dr. Flattery before it is too late—all suffering with stricture and result of quack remedies, should avail themselves of Dr. Flattery's new method, by which the most malignant forms of this disease is cured in from one to two weeks, and without the usual torture to patients.

All having secondary symptoms Rheumatism and spermatorrhœa whose nervous temperaments having been destroyed by reading clap trap-catch penny publications and swallowing mercury until they are walking barometers, and have finally been given up as incurable, by an abominable set of illiterate and non-graduates of medicine, should seek the surgical skill of Dr. Flattery in these prevalent and worst of ills.

All who are barren and thus deprived of connubial bliss and parental happiness, should take the advice of Dr. Flattery at once.

All whose circumstances and physical condition will not admit of charging, should consult Dr. Flattery, and if not too late, procure his safe and reliable preventure.

All whose eyes and ears are diseased and have had the misfortune of being cauterized and drugged consult Dr. Flattery without fail, as he is a thorough oculist and aurist.

All who stammer should procure Dr. F's newly invented appliances for the cure of all impediments.

All suffering from nervous complaints, female of factions, skin diseases, heart, stomach and liver complaints, diseases of the bowels, kidneys, bladder, piles, rupture, tumors, scurvy, tumors, masked ague, cancers, Panama and mountain fever, erysipelas, &c., &c., should suffer no longer, but straightway proceed to Dr. Flattery for his new treatment.

All students and physicians of limited experience having a desire to learn Dr. Flattery's generally successful method of cure, will give him a call at his rooms, where he will instruct them individually or by class.

All patients at a distance can be cured at home by consulting Dr. Flattery, by letter, stating their name, age, occupation, time taken ill, constitution, number of treatments submitted to, description of causes and symptoms experienced and those existing. He will then send medicines with directions to cure any disease.
