NAZARETH, Israel — (NC) — With the election here of a Greek Orthodox Christian as mayor, the local communists lost a campaign to dominate this city of Our Lord's boyhood.

The fifteen-man Municipal Council, in which six communists form the largest party, rejected a communist-sponsored candidate and elected Amin Jarjurah to head the city administration. A Catholic party holds three seats on the council.

A Life-Long Desire Realized

Oris Caldron, a retired tailor, and a member of Holy Spirit parish, Columbus, has spent most of his 73 years, playing and directing other people's music. Recently, he has found time to realize a life long desire—to compose his own music. One of his works, "Ave Maria—The Radiant Crown", has been published and is now on sale. Another, a Christmas hymn, will be on sale in November.

Seven years ago, Oris Caldron, of Holy Spirit parish, Columbus, decided to try his hand at composing music. He had spent most of his 67 years playing and directing other people's music and loved the work. But there was something missing. He wouldn't be satisfied until he had composed music himself.

He chose the "Ave Maria" and worked on it sporadically, at times almost deciding to give it up as a bad job. At the urging of friends and relatives, however, he kept at it and was finally satisfied with his work. Early this year, in honor of the Marian Year, he wrote English lyrics to his music, entitled "The Radiant Crown."

Priest Advocates Ban On 'Wetback' Traffic

WASHINGTON — Two laws to curb "wetback" traffic across the U.S.-Mexican border were called "powerful instruments for justice and charity" by a priest in testimony before a Senate subcommittee here.

Father Matthew H. Kelly of Houston, Tex., told the Senate Subcommittee on Immigration and Naturalization that the proposed bills would help relieve the plight of Spanish-speaking Americans in the southwest and would squelch communist claims that the United States is "the enslaver of the foreign born."

The priest, who is executive secretary of the regional office maintained by the Bishops' Committee for the Spanish Speaking, said the measures would lessen "grievous wetback scandals" along the 20,000 mile Mexican border.

One of the bills would make it unlawful for an employer to hire any alien known to have entered the country illegally. The other would authorize federal seizure of any vessel or vehicle used to transport "wetbacks"—so-called because some swim or wade across the Rio Grande into the U.S.

Father Kelly, who has spent 12 years working among the Spanish-speaking people in Texas and California, painted a word picture of "evil and unchristian exploitation" of alien Mexicans who enter the U.S. The illegal entrants live in servility and fear, working on American farms for as little as "a nickel an hour in some cases" under "the most atrocious working and living conditions," he stated.

At the same time, he said, the American farm worker and the naturalized Spanish-American is forced to become a migrant worker in order to get a living wage—"a displaced person in his own land." The entire pattern of exploitation has also caused bitter anti-Yankee feeling in Mexico and has given communist propagandists material for their work in Latin America, Father Kelly said.

He told the Senate group that penalties "are being imposed on the wrong people and I firmly believe that it is time that the blame for wetback disorders was placed where it belongs."

If the American rancher did not hire wetbacks—and, under one of the proposed bills, he would risk arrest for doing so—the wetback traffic would dwindle, Father Kelly said.

Representatives of American rancher interests have opposed the two bills. The Texas Fruit and Vegetable Shippers and Growers' Association called the bills unnecessary.

Father Kelly, in supporting the bills, said the regional office of the Bishops' Committee for the Spanish Speaking has campaigned for many years to secure legislation of this kind.

The Bishops' Committee, composed of sixteen Bishops of the Southwest and West, was formed nine years ago to coordinate the Church's work among Spanish-speaking citizens of the region. Under executive chairman, Archbishop Robert E. Lucey of San Antonio, the committee works for social justice and spiritual aid to Mexican-Americans, most of whom are Catholics.

Judge Upholds Police Censor Ban On Books
DETROIT — (NC) — The right of Detroit's police censor to ban the sale of paperback books he judges obscene has been upheld in the first round of a test case.

In a trial preceded by the announcement by both sides that they would pursue the case to the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary, Recorder's Judge John A. Ricca found a district sales representative guilty of selling a book classified as "objectionable" by the censor. He was fined $100. The case was set up by prearrangement when the defendant sold a copy of the banned book to Inspector Herbert Case, the police censor.

The book in question, "The Devil Rides Outside," is one of some 190 books placed in the "objectionable" category by Inspector Case and the county prosecutor's office; and was also found "objectionable for youth" by the National Organization for Decent Literature. The 190 "objectionable" books, as well as 46 others described as "partly objectionable," were banned under the State act which forbids the sale of paper-bound volumes which are obscene and tend to corrupt the morals of youth.

In this three-page decision, Judge Ricca held that the State law does not violate either the first and Fourteenth Amendments to the U.S. Constitution or the "freedom of the press" provision of the Michigan Constitution.

The judge held the book in question to be "obscene, immoral, lewd and lascivious," and declared that the police power may be used in the public interest to prevent the corruption of the morality of youth.
