ADVICES from Washington state that the Interior Department has rendered a decision that hot-water privileges for bath houses outside of the Hot Springs, (Ark.) reservation can not be granted. The decision, it was reported, would be a disappointment to a large number at Hot Springs. There was an almost general desire for the establishment of bathing establishments in different parts of the city outside of the Government reservation, upon which most of the bath houses are now located. The Superintendent of the reservation, General C. W. Field, in his report to the Secretary of the Interior, recommended granting water privileges to two bath houses south of the reservation.

SOME notable amendments to the penal code have been introduced in the New York Legislature. They make it a misdemeanor to receive, as well as to take, a child under sixteen for immoral purposes. They prevent such purposes as were alleged against Ramsey a few years ago by forbidding the keeping of ignorant or homeless children in unlicensed, unincorporated institutions, and increasing the strictness of the laws governing legitimate institutions of the sort. They forbid the training, as well as the use and employment of children under sixteen as rope-walkers, dancers, gymnasts, wrestlers, contortionists, and adding bicycle riding, rag and bone picking, cigar-stump collecting and market-refuse gathering to the prohibited occupations. The amendments aim a severe blow at the dime museums, forbidding the exhibition of insane, idiotic or deformed children.

The following strange story is told by Henry J. Tolbert, an electrician of Reading, Pa.: The City of Reading is furnished a portion of its light by a company which produces the electric current by means of the Brush machine. Mr. Tolbert says that he visited the plant of the Reading Company, and while looking at the brushes gathering the sparks of the fluid a rat came running over the floor. To escape its human enemies it jumped directly to the floor on to one of the brushes and was thrown back to the ground. It lay motionless, apparently and certainly dead, but without even a stir. One of the employes was summoned. He went to gather it up, but he never touched it; the rat disappeared. A little cloud of particles of dust from the place where it disappeared fell on his hair. There was a single hair, fish or bones etc.
